The case was dismissed for lack of evidence, the principal witness falling to put in his appearance.

Fred Ayres of Holbrook, Nebraska, and proprietor of the Holbrook Observer, but who at the present time is holding down the position of deputy oil inspector, was in town Monday and paid us a pleasant call. Fred says he does not believe he shall ever lose the desire to hear the hum of the press and expects to some day again get back in the harness.

The popular sixth grade teacher, Mrs. Arnold, was given a Valentine party on Friday evening by her pupils at the home of Mrs. E. McFarland. Dainty refreshments were much in evidence, and before leaving the children presented her with a fine valentine, thus attesting in a way the esteem in which she is held by these young minds that she is endeavoring to train.

Speaking of great men born in February we overlooked the mention of the fact that Constable C. A. Schellak and Geo. Trine each celebrate birthdays this month, and that should we wish to go farther and name a few of the great women who were also born this month, would start by saying that last Thursday marked the 51st mile stone in the life of Grandma Hale, mother of the editor of this great household necessity—The Chief.

The quiet of last Sunday evening was broken a bit by a little fistic encounter participated in by one of our town boys and a lad from Guide Rock. It seems that the lads had had some misunderstanding as regards to who should accompany a certain fair dame, and decided to settle it in this manner. A temporary ring was made near the brick livery barn, and the fight was conducted according to Marcus of Queensbury rules, and after lasting several rounds was stopped and the participants departed for their respective homes each more or less peeled up—just as the church bells pealed their sweetest.

Mrs. Geo. Henderson was taken to Hastings on Monday and Tuesday afternoon she underwent an operation. She died early Wednesday morning at the age of 53 years, 5 months and 4 days. Her maiden name was Sarah Francis Young, and she was born in Arcadia, Illinois. She was married to Geo. Henderson on February 22, 1880, and to this union was born five children all of whom survive her. Funeral services were conducted at her home by Rev. Cole, pastor of the Baptist church, yesterday afternoon and the body taken to her old home in Illinois for interment.

Prompted by our ever generous spirit, but at the same time not being in need of a good family cow, we announce that any one in need of such a family necessity, could no doubt be able to secure a real bargain by consulting the Rev. W. F. Cole. It seems as though on Wednesday, this said animal was caught red-handed in the act of butting one of his fancy scored chickens, the effects of which the chicken was unable to survive. In our opinion, the cow was only in play, but the Reverend is inclined to believe it to have been premeditated, hence it may mean a cow for sale.

On the afternoon and evening of February 14th. about 100 guests met at the home of Mrs. C. H. Miner's in response to a very neat invitation from the second division of the Baptist Ladies' Aid to partake of a very sumptuous luncheon. The decorations were in keeping with the day and consisted of red hearts and crepe paper draperies, all of which made a very pleasing effect. The guests were very pleasantly entertained with music and reading. The climax was reached when they were invited to the dining room and there partook of the dainties that the Baptist Ladies' know so well how to prepare. When the hour came for departure they all felt that it had been a good place to be.

The old reliable firm of Turnure Brothers, which for the past 19 years has stood for the best to be obtained in the line of general merchandise, was this week dissolved, D. W. retiring from the firm, and the business to be conducted in the future by Fred Turnure, he having purchased the former's interest. Dell expects to leave in the near future for California, and when school is out intends to move his family to that place. It is with sincere regret that the citizens of Red Cloud part with this estimable business man and his family, but there is solace to be found in the fact that Fred Turnure will remain among us, and under his efficient management we are safe in saying that the store will be kept up to same high standard in the future as it has in the past.

S. R. McFarland, of Madison, Nebr., Grand Patriarch of the Encampment, stopped off here Tuesday night and visited some of his friends. He was enroute to Beaver City.

Selling a carload of hogs less than eight months old for a little more than $1.185 shows how the up-to-date hog raiser can produce popular sized hogs that bring the best prices at a very young age. E. J. Peterson of Inavale, Neb., marketed such a carload of hogs here Monday. On his 2,000 acre farm, Mr. Peterson raises over 800 hogs a year. "The Duroc Jersey are the great favorite with us," he said. "They outnumber any other breed in that section of the Republican valley"—Drovers Telegram.

Manager Geo. J. Warren, of The Tepee, is to be congratulated upon the way he has remodeled the interior of this popular amusement place. The floor has been taken up and put down in the opposite way as formerly—sloping toward the east instead of the west—thus doing away with the steps, which were so much in evidence and making it so now that you merely walk up an incline on entering the theatre. The seats now face the east, the screen on which the pictures are shown, being now in the east end of the building. This change gives considerable more floor space and fifty new seats have been added, which will make it much easier to accommodate the large crowds which frequent this place. It is a decided improvement and makes The Tepee far more comfortable and convenient, and again do we congratulate Manager Warren in his efforts to have only the best.

Capt. Sid Florence, of banking fame, and also possessing a reputation of having clerked more sales in Webster county than it has population, in company with Geo. Overing, who is known to have surveyed over every foot of ground in this said county, more times than the average farmer has hay stacks, and E. H. Newhouse, second to none as a jeweler and optometrist, and who since time memorial has conducted an up-to-date jeweler store at this place, and Wilbur Hamilton, the distinguished looking gentleman (known only to the boys as "Alexander") who presides over the destinies of the popular Paul Storey Clothing house, and whose rise in the mercantile world has been a steady one until today he bears the distinction of being the only man in this or adjoining counties, able to tell blue from black by lamp light, and two other gentlemen whose names we were unable to learn at this time, met on Tuesday evening and proceeded to William Lindley's popular eating emporium where they enjoyed a well prepared repast of prairie oysters. We learn that it was not the intention of the said gentlemen to appear selfish, nor was it due to the fact that the invitations did not hold out, that some were overlooked, but that the oysters consisted of a limited number, therefore prohibiting much liberality.
