Isn't it about time we were hearing something about the Farmer's Institute?

The last game of the base ball tournament was celebrated by the appearance of the foot ball players.

Don't forget that Red Cloud is a good place in which to trade. You will find large up-to-date stocks in every line in this city. Quality unsurpassed and prices that attract any pocket book.

The city sewer proposal is meeting with general approbation. Our well water is fast becoming contaminated and now the opportunity to check the danger that confronts us is here and we should act promptly and decisively.

It is much easier to lead people than to drive them. We often hear it said that a person was "driven to destruction." As a rule this person was led to destruction. There are so many snares and pit-falls in the highway of life, and so many are lured to destruction by those who enjoy seeing others brought to their own level. It is well to remember that only the good believe in the good, and to the noble alone is given the power to recognize the noble.

Now comes the celebrated California astronomer and glibly informs us that in two hundred thousand years from now we will be unable to see the big dipper in the northern sky. This cuts us to the quick. All our life long we have enjoyed, from time to time, gazing on this greatest of all dippers, at times we have used its position to guide us on our journey after night. In fact we have become so accustomed to the presence of this dipper that to take it away will cause us deep regret. We trust that this astronomer will either leave the constellation where it is or else revive his figures and extend the date of delivery.

After all there is a good deal in talk. Let a man talk dull times and it is infectious, everybody talks dull times, and instead of rustling around to take care of what business there is, they all sit down and mope over dull times. If a customer happens to drop into a dull-time store he actually gets frightened out of half as much as he expects to buy because things look so blue. The bugbear of hard times should be set down upon. It will do more to kill business than anything else. Tell a man he is sick, keep it up and eventually you will hound him to death. Exchange.

During his pastorate here Rev. Cole has endeared himself not only to the members of his church but to a large following out side. He chose to consider himself as the pastor of the community and he offered his services freely to all who needed them. Non-church members were particularly attracted to him because of his visits to the county jail, to the homes of the sick and despondent. He impressed them with the idea that he was their friend and his work here proved that he did all in his power to help men who were down and out. Many of these he succeeded in getting them squarely on their feet. The men on the street were quick to detect the sincerity of Rev. Cole. They regret to see him leave. The Chief joins in these regrets but wishes for him success and happiness in his new home.
