Oh! Stars.

To-night will occur one of the most interesting astronomical events of the year. Venue and Jupiter will be at their nearest point of approach. The conjunction will occur exactly at midnight, when Venus passes a little more than three degrees to the north of Jupiter. To-morrow Venus reaches her greatest elongation, or most distant point from the sun, when she will reverse her course until the 2d of May, when she comes into inferior conjunction, passing between the earth and sun, and ending her role as evening star. The course of Venus will be most interesting to watch during this period. She will be exceedingly brilliant, being visible in daylight, and casting a perceptable shadow on mospless nights. Those who have noticed, during the past two months, the bright constellation of three stars in the western heavens, will readily recognize the brightest one, as Venus. The other two are Jupiter and Saturn. These stars will shortly begin their transit across the zenith, and in four or five months will adorn the eastern heavens as morning stars.

SATURDAY'S . SENSATIONS.

Including a Case of Arson, a Brutal Assault and an Attempted Suicide.

A few minutes after midnight Saturday an alarm of fire was sounded from box 12, the scene of trouble being the old "Star" house on Harney, be tween12th and 13th streets. The fire started in a room in the second story near a bench opposite to and remote from the stove. A man named Gustave Schiller, a carpenter by trade, oc cupied the room and certain suspic lous circumstances led to the belief that he had started the fire. The department turned out, but the bucket brigade got in its work and saved the boys any trouble. After the fire Schiller was arrested on complaint of

Mr. Henry Homan and one of his men, who charged him with arson He was lodged in the city jail until 10 o'clock yesterday morning when he was removed to the county jail. The man is about 35 years of age and says he is a consumptive. His stories Saturday night were conflicting. He is believed by the officers to be non compos mentis, and they say he ought to be in Lincoln.

BRUTAL ASSAULT. About 11 o'clock the same night a difficulty occurred in Wallenz's saloon, on Leavenworth street, between the proprietor and a man named O'Nelll, the latter being intoxicated. Mrs. Wallenz was present and ordered the man out of the house, when interfered, and in the course

Higgine was taken away by his brother, and a physician and a policeman were sent for, the latter arresting O'Neill, and taking him to jall. The search for Higgins was not successful up to ate last night, and it was believed that he had left town. The possible result of the blows is more serious on account of Mrs. Wallenz being in a HOUSE.

Special Correspondence to THE BER LINCOLN, February 17 .- In house this morning Mr. Howe of Nemaha, moved the suspension of the rules that the house might go into committee of the whole to consider bills on the general file. This was a piece of strategem which the house promptly nipped in the bud. Mr. Howe's bill No. 85, for a liquer prohibitory amendment to the constitution was placed on third reading the other day, and was on the calendar for consideration under the head to-

The matter was of too great importance man named Fred. Higgins to be lost through the absence of a few men. It was not a matter of dollars "d cents, but a matter of good to our

w men. Three hundred thousand te are waiting the verdict of this body on this great question. It has een debated here year after year, and they want this matter sectled at this time in the right way. Not only people of every vocation have petitioned the house, but the churches have petitioned us to parthis bill, and I have resented this amendment in the inerest of the whole people. Mr. McShane, of Douglas, rose to a point of order. The gentleman had allowed his eloquence to carry him from the juestion, which was suspending the rules. Mr. Howe wanted to say to these gentlemen that have told their constitgents their intention to vote on this Mr. McShane-"Does the gentleman want every member present be fore vote is taken?"

Mr. Howe wanted all the men pre sent who had asked to be allowed to vote. "Our side of this debate have had only been in the city a few days, never taken advantage of anything and was last seen going to his room that the rules did not entitle us to. I about noon. Now I say—and I challenge any one to say that I have not met every proposition on this question with fairnesswhen once the natural order of things has been restored, then the members can take their chances of being present to vote on this question. only fair that all should be heard.

Mr. Bartlett, of Douglas, said it was true that several members were absent, and prevented from returning by the storms. They had not absented themselves when important business was to come up. They went away upon their private business Now, then, what do the members do. The ayes and nayes were called for on the motion to take a recess, which was carried. At two o'clock Mr. Howe moved that house-roll No. 85 be recommitted to the committee on constitutional nendments.

Mr. Bartlett, of Douglas, wanted to know the object in recommitting this oill, as it was ready for passage. Mr. Howe-The majority of this nouse are not ready to vote on this bill antil all its friends are here. We des re to put it away where it will be safe. A long and tiresome argument here ensued upon the point that a bill could not be recommitted after having been ordered to the engrossing committee for third reading.

The chair held that the bill in ques tion had not been ordered to third reading but had taken its natural place under that heading on the calendar, A motion to recommit was in order. Mr. McShane, of Douglas, moved that the motion of the gentleman from Nemaha be laid upon the table "for safe-keeping." Mr. Kyner, of Douglas, amended by 'laying the gentleman, also, upon the table." [Laughter.] [Laughter.] After more wrangling the origina notion to recommit prevailed, and again the crowds in the galleries went away disappointed. The house then resolved itself into committee of the whole, Mr. Wells, Franklin, in the chair.

On motion the special order of yes-terday was resumed—being that of House roll Nos. 1 and 2, to "pre vide a system of revenue" was taken up. It provides for the local taxation of railroads, etc. No final action was taken upon it. The women suffragists, who have been waiting to be heard for some time, have been granted to-morrow at 10:30 to convert the members into their faith. The bill to submit an amendment to the constitution to the people in their behalf will also be conildered at that hour.

The senate bill limiting the fare on railroads to three cents per mile for passenger and 100 pounds of baggage, was reported correctly engrossed and ordered to third reading. Mr. Gere moved to refer the bill giving as a reason for this that one of the bills introduced by the special railroad committee covers the same Mr. Van Wyck, of the special com-mittee, informed him that such was not the case: that their bill referred to freight charges, and did not touch

Van Wyck said, "The gentleman may attempt to kill this bill by recommitting it to the committee on railroads, but a vote to do that is really a vote againzt the bill and they must make up their minds to accept all the responsibilty which such a vote will incur upon them. They cannot deceive their constituents by saying that they did not vote against the bill. If they want to defeat it let them place themselves squarely on record to that effect, and not show their bad faith and cowardice by shirking the responsibility of voting upon the bill at all." Among the new enterprises starting continually in our midst is one the importance of which must make it an important institution at no distant day. This is the manufacture of an article called "boiler purger" by Mr. James Smith, a practical chemist and machinist. The article is for the purpose of cleaning off the scales which accumulate on boiler flues and of preventing like accumulations. Engineers all know how great an advantage such an article would be, and we understand that aside from its prevention of all necessity of laying up locomotives for repair of flues and boiler heads which have burned out it will result in a saving twenty-five to thirty per cent in fuel. The Union Pacific folks are going to give the article a thorough test, and others wao desire to do so may obtain it by inquiring of Mr. Bertram Hanson, at the land office east of the U. P. depot. It is anarticle which, if it possesses the merit claimed for it, will prove invaluable, and as Omaha has been chosen the headquarters for its manufacture It must eventually give us another manufactory, that will give employment to quite a force of men. The inventor is confident of the success of the preventive in boilers of all kinds.
