Every summer we hear of deaths caused by the use of cold water, even the drinking of large quantities of cold water from the well, when one is over-heated, is often injurious. It is better to drink moderately cool water frequently than to wait until one is excessively thirsty, and then take ice water or even very cold well water. Water may be kept sufficiently cool by covering the jug or other vessels with cloths, which are to be kept moist. Nothing is better in the hay field than the old fashioned farmer's drink, "Switchell." This consists of molasses and water, with enough vinegar to give a pleasant sharpness; some ginger is usually added. This satisfies thirst and is always welcome to the hands, who appreciate any such provision for comfort.

Our First Circus "Ad." Yesterday a young man with the good clothes of a bunko steerer, and the glad, confident look of a great man who is comfortably full, came into the Boomerang office, and after some mental labor at the desk of our society editor, who had gone over across the street for a Bologna sausage, produced the following advertisement which he desired inserted for two weeks on the fourth page of "The Boomerang":

Grand farwell bridal tour of the only double and twisted, all wool aggregation, the world's congress of wonders and torchlight procession of aerie tal, headed by a living phalanx of gold-bespattered chariots, and winged by the most jewellike goshawk-bellied exposition of camels with twisted tails, wavy jayed griffons and speckled hyenas from farther India, squeaking baboons with purple snouts, Early Rose dromedarians from Europe, slim tailed birds of paradise, and big snakes from everywhere.

Suggestions for the Season. Frequent cultivation is necessary to destroy the weeds in the corn field, and to keep the soil mellow. While the corn is small a smoothing harrow can be used to advantage, to be followed by the cultivator and hoe as the plants get larger. It is true economy to do as much of the work of corn culture as possible with the horse-power. The double cultivator is more efficient than one for a single horse, and does not cost any more for the driver. It should be remembered that much of the work of tillage in the corn field counts upon the rows that are to follow, its beneficial influence being felt throughout the whole rotation. Therefore, charge a part of the labor to succeeding crops. The cultivator should go over the corn ground about once a week during the rapidly growing part of the season. It does not matter that there are no weeds to be seen, the soil is loosened, growth stimulated, and the weeds that are just starting are killed before they do any harm. It is best to sow fodder corn in drills 2 1/2 to 3 feet apart, and at intervals of ten days, for a number of weeks from this time on, so that there may be a continuous supply of green food. If the seed is sown broadcast the plants can not be cultivated while young, and this early attention is very important to insure a good crop. The notion that sweet corn makes the best fodder is not well founded. The fact that the grain is sweeter does not indicate that the whole plant is therefore better. The smaller and leafy varieties of corn are best on account of the superior quality of the finer fodder.

From Chicopee Falls, Mass., Edgar T. Page, esq., druggist, writes that Mr. Albert Quenther, at Wild's hotel, has used that remarkable remedy, St. Jacob's Oil, for a severe case of rheumatism, and it cured him, as if by magic. He also used it with great success among his horses, in cases of sprains, sores, etc., and it cures every time.
