Washington Special to The Chicago Tribune. The appointment by Secretary Kirkwood as a clerk in the Indian office of Frank La Flesche, a brother of "Bright Eyes," is in pursuance of a policy which the secretary had adopted with a view of training Indian young men for the Indian service.

Secretary Kirkwood goes within a year or two to place under training in the Indian office one or two more Indian young men from the school at Hampton. The secretary will also endeavor to fill a greater number of the subordinate places at the Indian agencies with Indian men.

THE ITALIANS Fight? The prompt action of Signor Depretis in suppressing all demonstrations of hostility toward France shows that the Italian government cannot be provoked, even by the Marcellines outrage, into a hasty abandonment of its peace policy.

MANITOUS NEW WONDER. A Hole in the Mountain That Will Rival the Great Caves of Kentucky. The Denver Tribune says: The recent discovery of an immense cave at Manitou is now the reigning sensation at Colorado's chief summer resort.

THE STRIKING CHARACTER. A reporter for the Tribune hearing of this new-found wonder, took a morning train a few days ago and made a trip to Manitou. For information it was not necessary to ask questions, for it was the leading topic among all the inhabitants.

A Significant Fact. The required medicine in use is Thomas' Electric Oil, because so very little of it is needed to effect a cure. For croup, diphtheria, and diseases of the lungs and throat, whether used for bathing the chest or for taking internally or inhaling, it is a matchless compound.

PRELUDE KILLS. "Eleven years ago my daughter suffered on a bed of misery under the care of several of the best (and some of the worst) physicians, who gave her disease various names, but no relief, and now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had used for two years before using it. We earnestly hope and pray that no one else will let their sick suffer as we did on account of prejudice against so good a medicine as Hop Bitters." The Parents.—(Telegram) codjyl task. There are no braver men than the countrymen of Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi. Where is the land that can show a roll of martyrs to compare with those of modern Italy—the men who in the long years of baffled conspiracy against domestic and foreign oppressors flung themselves against the Austrian bayonets or died on the scaffold, gladly giving their own lives to keep alive the patriotism of others? What page of history shines as splendidly as that which tells the story of the expedition of the Thousand—that campaign where, as at Palermo, Milazzo, and the Volturno, numbers, discipline, and position were all on the side of the oppressor, and victory was won by indomitable and reckless bravery! The Frenchmen may find when they reach the Plains of Lombardy that even superior numbers cannot overpower the enthusiasm of an army fighting on its own soil, exasperated by the sneers of French Chauvinism, and no longer handicapped by Lamarmora. Let Italy strive to keep the peace by every honorable means, and she may find, if war is finally forced upon her, that victory does not always side with the heaviest battalions.

Frank La Flesche. Washington Special to The Chicago Tribune. The appointment by Secretary Kirkwood as a clerk in the Indian office of Frank La Flesche, a brother of "Bright Eyes," is in pursuance of a policy which the secretary had adopted with a view of training Indian young men for the Indian service. Frank La Flesche received all the education he possesses in the Indian school at the Omaha agency in Nebraska. He has written a letter to Secretary Kirkwood. The letter shows that La Flesche has a fair education. He is said to be a young man of intelligence and good habits. Having spent his whole life among his own people, he of course understands them as no white man could. It is intended, after his experience and training in the Indian office shall have made him thoroughly familiar with the scope and methods of Indian administration, to send La Flesche to one of the Indian agencies as a clerk or superintendent, and ultimately, if he shall be found fit and qualified to MAKE HIM AN INDIAN AGENT.

Secretary Kirkwood goes within a year or two to place under training in the Indian office one or two more Indian young men from the school at Hampton. The secretary will also endeavor to fill a greater number of the subordinate places at the Indian agencies with Indian men. He hopes to find in every tribe young men willing to become assistants to the blacksmiths, farmers, carpenters, millers, etc., employed on the reservations, and eventually he expects to see them doing most of the work undertaken by the government for their people. This policy has been pursued to some extent during the last ten years in the Indian service, and mainly with good results. A great many of the employes at the agencies now are Indians, and their employment has been on the whole a benefit to their people, as well as a advantage to themselves. Secretary Kirkwood also does much thought and study to the subject of Indian reservation and titles to land.

O. S. Fowler. NEW YORK, June 29.—The firm of Fowler & Wells, of this city, are making some vigorous protests against the association of that old arch-lecher, O. S. Fowler, with the concern. The protest was left the firm some years ago, but went back to the beginning for the purpose, and upon their earnest solicitation to bolster up its waning fortunes. Since then he has been traveling over the country practicing his phrenological frauds on the public, and the New York house has been reaping the advantages accruing from association with his name. It is remarkable how promptly they permit themselves to be gulled in the manner they are, for recent investigations have clearly shown that the system of so-called examinations of heads and readings of characters as practiced here are as CLEARLY UNRELIABLE as those of the peripatetic professor who plays upon the credulity of the old and young alike in remote portions of the country. The simple truth is, that for long years the rottenness of this phrenological syndicate has been so carefully guarded by the families (allied by marriage) having a monopoly of the so-called science that it has been kept from the public eye, but now that it is being exposed those who have much to be made are prone to tremble, and are seeking to save themselves by denial of association with the one who has brought this great disgrace upon them.

The Italians have not been conspicuously successful in fighting the Austrians, but they have no reason to be ashamed of the conduct of their soldiers. They can recall the three days' battle in which the citizens of Milan, led by a heroic priest, afterward famous as the Garibaldian general, Sirtori, drove out their Austrian garrison from the city, and the victories of Palestro and Goito, where the gallant little Sardinian army fairly defeated Radetzky's veterans. They were bitterly disappointed in the last war by their defeats at Custoza and Lissa, but those battles were not by any want of bravery and steadfastness on the part of Italian soldiers and sailors. When Lamarmora thrust his army between the fortresses of the Quadrilateral, in detachments so far apart that it was inevitable that they should be crushed in detail, his defeat was a foregone conclusion; but disastrous as the battle of Custoza was it left no stain on the heroism of the Italian soldiers who though most of them were under no fire for the first time showed no signs of panic, but fought so steadily as to compel the respect of their adversaries. At Lissa the fleet was surprised in circumstances in which, had the Admiral been fit for his position, a surprise would have been impossible, and when the combat began, that his presence of mind that he left each vessel to fight alone and unsupported. The defeat of the fleet was total, and so far as Persano was concerned, shameful, but the gallantry of the gallantry of the crew of the Re d'Italia who stood to the guns of the sinking ship; and went down crying "Viva l'Italia" can never be forgotten, and will save the Italians the trouble of inventing a story to parallel the French myth of the Vengeur.

If France does not go to war with Italy she will find that, though by force of numbers she may overwhelm the Italians, she will have no easy
