BARBER'S BREAK.

He Threatens to Expose the True Inwardness of the Albany Lobby.

And the Threat Causes the Democrats and Small-warts to Squirm.

Some Very Rich Developments Expected.

THE BALLOTING TO-DAY. ALBANY, N. Y., June 30.—The joint convention resumed its session at noon. The first ballot for a successor to Conkling resulted: Conkling 32, Wheeler 43, Lapham 17, Rogers 4, Cornell 2, Folger 1, Hoskens 1, Potter (dem) 54. Total 153.

The ballot for a successor to Platt resulted as follows: Platt 28, Depew 51, Wheeler 1, Tremaine 1, Kernan (dem) 53. Total 144.

The convention adjourned, on motion of a democrat, until to-morrow noon.

MORE INDICTMENTS PRESENTED. The grand jury were discharged this morning. Before being discharged they presented indictments under the act of 1869, against Charles Edwards, Edward Phelps and A. D. Barber, for giving and using money for the purpose of corruptly influencing legislation.

It is said that a determined effort will be made to convict Edwards. The latter says that if he is pushed he will make things hot for the democrats and stalwarts, and will reveal all he knows about the Albany lobby.

It is not believed that the indictments against Barber and Phelps will be pressed. Barber is the legal representative of the New York Central railroad at Albany, and Phelps is his assistant. The grand jury say that while they believe the evidence against Barber and Phelps is insufficient to convict, that they considered it sufficient to warrant indictments and a legal investigation.

There was great excitement to-day over the revelation of the alleged proposed action by the grand jury, and the efforts to secure other indictments which it is asserted, are under consideration. It will be remembered that Tillingham testified before the investigating committee to having cashed in Albany checks for $20,000 just previous to the day upon which Bradley charges that the attempt was made to bribe him.

Tillingham swore that he took it to Buffalo on the same night, left it in a safe for a week and finally loaned it to a local bank which was short of currency. Smythe, it is alleged, urged upon the grand jury that Tillingham was working in Depew's interests, as Depew was the attorney for the Central road, and that the loaning of the money to the bank was arranged in order that Tillingham could account before the committee for his disposition; that it was probable that if Tillingham intended to use the money Depew had knowledge of it, hence it was urged that both Depew and Tillingham should be indicted.

It is alleged that a vote was taken on the same day and lacked but two of a majority in favor of the indictment. But the news got out and various threats were made that there would be an exposure that would be very serious for the democrats and stalwarts, and many of the democrats notified their leaders that if an indictment was presented against Depew they would vote solidly for his election to the senate.

The stalwarts brought a hard pressure to bear upon Smythe and the proceedings were stopped. The stalwarts showed that there was no evidence against Depew worthy of consideration, and it would be fatal to the stalwarts to be connected with any attempt to injure Depew's chances by appearing to support the indictment founded on theory only, and the matter was dropped. The halfbreeds openly defied Smythe to allow the indictment to be presented. Edwards, Phelps and Barber gave bail in $5,000 each to appear for trial.

Bursting of a Water Works Reservoir. CINCINNATI, June 30.—The scene at Price's Hill, near this city, where the water works tank broke at midnight, is one of the most deplorable. The tank held between two and three million gallons of water and was only finished fifteen days ago for the purpose of supplying the western hills with water. The first notice was several loud explosions like artillery, and then the water came rushing down the hill, sweeping everything before it. The tank was of half inch steel and remains a twisted mass near where it stood. Had it been swept down the hill the damage would have been much greater. Fine residences on the hill side were badly damaged and one swept entirely away.

The tank cost $50,000, and is a total loss. The damage to property is over $25,000. No lives were lost, though there were many narrow escapes. Ex-Police Commissioner Patrick Hogan, was swept into a vault and rescued with difficulty. The water, in sweeping down the hill, took a course where there were few houses.

Further Particulars of Yesterday's Storm. HARRISBURG, June 30.—A special says: A baggage truck was carried fifty yards and dashed to pieces by a storm near Lewistown yesterday. A number of buildings were injured near Chambersburg, a paper mill partially destroyed, and lightning struck a house four miles from town, killing four children of Mr. Mish.

AT WABASH, INDIANA. WABASH, Ind., June 30.—The storm of yesterday was the most severe that ever visited this part of the state. At Keller station, on the Wash road, a train of fourteen freight cars were blown from the track and down an embankment. The cars were lifted so neatly that not a link was broken. Twenty other cars of the train were left on the track, but as the brakeman could not venture back with a signal, they were run into by the second section of the same train, and the engine and three cars were totally demolished. No loss of life is reported, but the damage to all kinds of property in this and surrounding towns is incalculable.

STOCK CITY AND VICINITY. STOUT CITY, Iowa, June 30.—The particulars of the ravages by the terrific storm of the two days past are just beginning to come in. At Cherokee, this state, the house of Mr. Stevens was completely demolished and two of his children instantly killed and his wife fatally injured. An old lady named O'Berch was also killed by the house being blown over. At Mill Creek two grist mills and several residences were demolished. At Meridian the daughter of the station agent, Pierce, was killed by lightning. Two churches at Manson were destroyed. At Merrill a passenger train standing on a side track was overturned but no one killed.

PACIFIC COAST NOTES. National Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—It is rumored that Mayor Kallach will withdraw as a candidate for re-election on the promise of a nomination for governor one year hence. The working-men and democrats are not so harmonious as they were a few days ago, and there is a possibility of two tickets in the field at the election.

The report of the powder explosion at Tucson was heard at Camp Grant, one hundred and fifty miles distant.

The steamer Empire caught fire early this morning at the wharf at Oakland. All the woodwork amidships about the engines and officer's quarters will be replaced. The engines and machinery is badly damaged. The 1,500 tons of coal on board did not catch fire. The estimated damage to the steamer is $2,500; insured for $57,500.

Clarkson N. Potter, of New York, reached this city Tuesday. In response to inquiries by a reporter he said that he was on a sight-seeing tour on the Pacific coast, and he also avowed ignorance on the political situation at Albany on the plea that he had been absent for some time, being nominated for United States senator by the democrats while on his way to San Francisco.

Samuel Williams, editor of the Evening Bulletin, died yesterday from apoplexy.

Ma. Kallach announces to his congregation, in a letter, that he will not be a candidate in the pending municipal election.

Five Persons Lost by the Wreck of a Yacht. National Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 30.—Two survivors of the wreck of the yacht lost in the sound near Bridgeport, Conn., on Thursday, have just arrived here. The yacht contained a pleasure party of seven persons, who left Brooklyn on Monday, intending to go to Newport. The boat capsized during a storm, and five of the following named occupants were drowned: H. M. Johnson, aged twenty, Wm. Edmonson, eighteen; Edward Herman, twenty; Wm. S. Ealy, fourteen; and Miss Fannie Campbell, the survivors. Wm. Palmer and Michael Tompkins, the sailing master, were picked up when nearly dead by the schooner Senator, Capt. Bonzery, from Maine. Tompkins resides in Brooklyn, and the rest of the party in this city.

Collector Merritt Interviewed. National Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 30.—Collector Merritt was interviewed to-day, and says that although Robertson's commission has been signed by the president, Robertson may take charge of the office when he pleases, even if several months hence. He must first file a bond, which Merritt will receive, and then if satisfactory Merritt will turn the office over to him. He says that the receipts are $300,000 to $500,000 per day, and he does not propose to leave the office until the legal formalities are observed. It is stated that Robertson says he will remain in Albany until the senatorial fight is finished.

Two Stock Men Killed by a Railroad Accident. CHICAGO, June 30.—Suppressed particulars of a fatal accident on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road early yesterday morning were learned this morning. A stock train broke in two near Hensdale. Owing to the blinding glare of lightning the danger signal could not be seen, and the second section dashed into the caboose of the stock train, instantly killing J. G. Smith, of Chariton, Iowa, and A. J. Evans, of Pleasantville, Iowa, both stock men. A man named Schram, of Chariton, Iowa, was also injured.

Griscom Begins His Thirty-Fourth Day. National Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 30.—Griscom started in on the thirty-fourth day of his fast at noon feeling stronger than during the extremely hot weather of a few days past. He has lost nothing in weight during the past twenty-four hours. His pulse is now 50, respiration 12, temperature 97.9-10.

THE HENLEY REGATTA.

The Weather Splendid, a Big Crowd Present and Everybody in Good Spirits.

The Cornell Crew Beaten by the Thames Rowing Club.

The Prizes Mostly Carried Off by the English Crews.

THE RACES. LONDON, June 30.—The weather on the first day of the Henley regatta was all that could be desired, although the breeze which blew down stream somewhat interfered with good time by the contestants. Crafts of all sizes and styles were moored along the shore almost the entire length of the course.

The first race was an eight-oared boat race on the challenge cup. The following rowing clubs were entered: The Hertford college boat club, of Oxford, the Eaton college boat club, the Thames rowing club, the Kingston rowing club, and the Dublin university boat club, and the Leander boat club had entered. It was rowed in three heats. In the first heat the Hertford got the lead and kept it to the end. The Dublin was second, and near the finish was about two lengths behind, when it undertook to cross over from one side to the other, thereby losing two more lengths, which made the Hertfords winner by four lengths.

In the second heat London came in first, the Thames second and Kingston third. The Thames crew began with a stroke of 30 to the minute, while that of the Londoners was 40. London quickly forged ahead and at the end of the course was clear of the Thames boat, and kept just length ahead to the finish. Kingston was three lengths behind. In the third heat the Leander crew beat the Eaton college crew by two lengths. The Eaton started from the Buck side, which was a disadvantage.

The Eaton crew was the most applauded of all when they appeared at the landing. This being the last trial heat it left the London, Hertford and Leander crews in possession of the race. The race for the visitor's challenge cup was participated in by the first Trinity boat club, of Cambridge; the third Trinity boat club, the Lady Margaret boat club, of Cambridge; Jesus College boat club, of Cambridge, and the Hertford College boat club, of Oxford. It was a four-oared race.

The first heat was won by the first Trinity boat club, of Cambridge, beating the third Trinity club two lengths.

The entries for the eight-oared Thames challenge cup, were the Twickenham rowing club, the Leander rowing club and the West London rowing club. The first heat was even between the London and the West London clubs, and was won by the former, after a close struggle, by half a length.

In the sculling contest for the diamond challenge sculls, S. Sarback, of the Leander club, W. S. Chesture, of the Worcester college, Oxford, and G. W. Powers, of the London rowing club, were the competitors. In the first heat Chesture led at the start, but soon after gave out and suddenly rowed ashore. Powers then forged ahead. Sarback, however, contested every inch of the water and for a long distance it was doubtful who would win. Sarback got pumped out when he reached the end of the course, and Powers won by two lengths.

In the second heat of the scull contest for the diamond cup, the contestants were J. Lewndes, of Oxford, W. A. D. Evanson and W. R. Grove, of London. Lewndes took the lead and won easily by fifteen lengths.

In the pair-oared race for the silver goblet the first heat was won by J. L. Playford and F. Adcock, of the London rowing club, by nearly nine lengths, H. Lambert and A. Bean, who came over as the representatives of the Paris Circle Nautique, came in second. D. Brown and E. Buck, of Hertford college, Oxford, the other contestants, stopped rowing before reaching the bend.

In the first heat of the Wyford challenge cup four-oared race, the Twickenham rowing club beat the Kingston rowing club crew by four lengths. In the second heat the London rowing club beat the Thames rowing club crew by twelve lengths, and in the third heat the Dublin University boat club crew came in first, and the third Trinity boat club, of Cambridge, and the Reading rowing club crew second and third respectively. The third trial heat for the Wyford challenge cup was a very exciting affair. The Dublin University crew had the inside course and made a grand race with the third Trinity, who also pulled for all they were worth. The Dublin finally won by two lengths, having probably worked harder than any other participants in the day's contests. The Reading crew, who also rowed in this heat, lost their head and ran ashore and finally ended by swashing the water. The spectators did not know what to make out of their behavior and their course was laughable.

There was great excitement during the rowing of the first heat for the Steward's cup. The Cornell crew were lustily cheered when they appeared on the water. The signal to start was given very late in the afternoon, 5:30 being the official time. The Thames club crew had the Berkshire side of the stream, which was a certain advantage, the London rowing club crew were in the center, and the Cornell crew had the Buck side, the most unfavorable position of the three. The crews fouled soon after starting, and were recalled and started out afresh at 5:50. Cornell went off with a spurt, rowing much quicker than either of the others. The London crew, however, soon overtook them and by simply rowing well within its strength got the lead when opposite Remenham. Cornell then steered for the middle of the river and gained slightly by the change. They had not stamina enough to continue to keep up the race which they were trying to hold. It was but for a moment that they contested the course with the Thames club crew, which rowed ahead in excellent style. It was pronounced a good and beautiful race by all who saw it, and the cheering at the finish was most enthusiastic.

During the day, in the third heat for the diamond challenge cup, for single sculls, A. Wild, of the Frankfurt, Germany, rowing society, came in first, H. L. Raltison, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, second, and Lieen, of the Paris Circle nautique, third. Wild, although severely distressed, rowed desperately, and as he afterwards expressed himself, "Would have died sooner than give up the contest." He came in four lengths ahead. Raltison, who was nearly a length ahead of him, had not sufficient rowing strength to keep him to keep up with either the German or the Englishman.

The first heat for the Thames college cup for eight-oared boats, was rowed late in the day and resulted in a victory for the Twickenham boat club, the Thames rowing club coming in second in the first heat.

For the steward's challenge cup the Thames crew won by one length and a half, they coming to the winning post that distance in advance of the London crew. The day's sport has passed off in excellent order and to the great delight of the vast crowd of spectators who witnessed the successive races. The defeat of the Cornell crew was more of a mortification than a surprise to the Americans present. They rowed well, but were matched against two of the best crews on the river, and it was believed from the start that they would fail to get the place.

The second heat for the steward's challenge cup was rowed late this afternoon. It was contested by the Hertford and Leander crews, and was a very spirited conflict. The Hertford came in first three lengths ahead of the Leanders. The rowing of the crews was admirable. The weather continued to be splendid.

In the second heat for the silver goblets, the Thames rowing club came off victorious. The Woolsey rowing club and Hertford college were scratched for visitors' cup, and the Lady Margaret club rowed over the course at their ease and took the prize.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS. Pleiades. As Helen Potter's Pleiades are announced to appear in this city on the Fourth of July, queries are often heard with regard to the origin and meaning of the term Pleiades. Pleiades in Grecian and Roman mythology, were the seven daughters of Atlas, King of Mauritania and Pleione, thus called from their mother. They were Maia, Electra, Taygete, Asterope, Merope, Halcyone and Celeoene. These princesses were carried off by Buziris, king of Egypt; but Hercules, having conquered him, delivered them to their father; yet they afterwards suffered a new persecution from Orion, who pursued them five years, till Jupiter being prevailed on by their prayers, changed them into doves, and took them up into the heavens, where they formed the assemblage of the seven stars in the neck of the constellation Taurus.

The commencement exercises of St. Catharine's Academy, in charge of the Sisters of Mercy, took place in the large parlors, converted into a temporary hall, Wednesday, opening at 2:30 and closing at 6 p. m. Several Catholic priests took seats on a dais, which afforded an excellent view of pupils and their performances. In the absence of the Right Rev. bishop, the Very Rev. M. Riordan, pastor of the cathedral and vicar general of the diocese, presided and distributed a large number of valuable prizes. The Rev. Mother, superioress of the academy, having requested the Very Rev. Vicar, to address a few closing words, he made a short complimentary speech: "I am really proud of your demonstration this evening. Your Right Rev. Bishop, your ecclesiastical patron, I am sure shares in our joy, though absent in person. I will communicate the glorious results of St. Catharine's Academy during the past year, at my earliest convenience to our worthy Bishop. I have known the Sisters of Mercy to do what the world calls 'wondrous things' in the old world, and in the eastern states, of our new world, but I was absolutely unprepared to find your community extending the sphere of Mercy Sister's operations in this remote western part of our great country. A Sister of Mercy, Mrs. Croke, Sister of the brilliant and patriotic Arch-bishop Croke—when on her Crimean war mission, exposed to the fire of the enemy, and fevers of her hospital, was noticed by an eminent British commander, as incapable of fear from red hot shells as from the fluttering of butterflies. I know in part what the learning, zeal, fortitude and perseverance of the sisters of mercy can achieve in the old and new world. Here we have a specimen of their usual singular success, in every good undertaking. We find about one hundred and twenty of the young ladies of this city, some of whom belong to various religious denominations, receiving a thorough academic education, which any community might be proud of. The varied pieces of your programme, were acted with almost masterly self-possession from beginning to end.

Sisters! you have good reason to be proud of your pupils; and pupils, you, your parents, guardians and friends have good reason to be proud of the work of the sisters, and of your own diligent application. I wish you all a very happy vacation. I hope you will return to your work sound in body and pure in heart, and that next year's academic course will give fresh evidence of what a devoted community and well disposed pupils can do, in advancing the religious, moral and social interests of our prosperous city, the commercial capital of broad and fertile Nebraska.

Measrs. Boyer & Campbell, of Waterloo, Ind., write: Mr. J. Walker, of this town, suffered with rheumatism for fifteen years. After trying a great many remedies without experiencing even relief, he was induced to use St. Jacobs Oil, which completely cured him. He states that he feels like a new man.

Satisfactory. Mrs. Wallace, Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "I have used BUNDOCK BLOOD BITTERS for nervous and bilious headaches, and have recommended them to my friends; I believe them superior to any other medicine I have used, and can recommend them to anyone requiring a cure for biliousness." Price $1.00, trial size 10 cents.

DISINFECTANTS.

Where a Great Quantity of Them May be Used to Advantage.

County Treasurer Heins got around to his office yesterday wearing a No. 14 slipper, which just comfortably accommodated his foot. Mr. Heins has had an attack of rheumatism which settled in his left foot and he is kept rather busy in nursing it. The treasurer blames it upon the building and no doubt he is correct for the offices of the old building resemble an infirmary as much as anything else. There is no office however watched and tended, but one rheumatic man is there. Mr. Rush, the assistant treasurer, is suffering severely from the same disease, while County Commissioner Corliss has the same thing to complain of. There can be no doubt whatever that the indisposition prevailing among people employed about the court house is superinduced to a great extent by the miasmatic atmosphere coming from below stairs. The air is highly impure and offensive. As there is no possibility of getting out of it, the building should be thoroughly cleansed and disinfected. It would stand a good deal of that sort of thing.

From Chicago they will go to Virginia.

A Wayward Son. A prominent young man of this city has got himself into considerable of a snarl. He was arrested early yesterday for obtaining money under false pretenses. It seems that after banking hours a few days ago he presented a check for $50 to a business man of the city, signed by his father per himself. The check was drawn upon Caldwell, Hamilton & Co., and the gentleman thinking it all right paid the money. When the check was presented at the bank it was returned with the endorsement that the institution had no "authority to pay under that signature." The arrest for false pretense followed. The young man was bailed out by his father. His trial will take place before Judge Beneke.
