The Danish society gave a picnic on Sunday, at South Omaha park. Prof. Steinhilber furnished the music and there was some lively dancing. About 250 ladies and gentlemen were present and all enjoyed themselves immensely. A stray dog, sent by some one practicing target at the driving park Monday, led in the arm of John H. Butler, one of the marshals of the day. It was extracted in the evening from near the shoulder. No bad results will follow. The High School Alumni, at a meeting held at the Misses Wilsons', corner of Nineteenth and Farnham streets, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, C. L. McCague; vice-president, Miss Maggie Truand; second title, Miss Fanny Wilson; secretary, Charles S. Elgutter; treasurer, Miss Ida Dagdan. Saturday evening last a son of J. Vassallo, of the Pokrok Zapadu office, was sent to Morse's dry goods store by his mother to get some things that she wanted. Upon his way home he was stopped by another boy, somewhat larger than himself, who took the bundle of goods and lit out with them. The goods have not been recovered and no trace of the boy can be found. Monday evening a U. P. freight train was going out it struck a man who was attempting to cross the track on the face and sent him on his back. He got up and walked away and was but little damaged. He was accompanied by two ladies and another gentleman, who remarked: "If it hadn't been for your nose, I should have been run over." They all seemed to regard it as quite a joke. An incident which might have terminated fatally, happened in a Fifteenth street store Sunday morning. A countryman called in to buy a pen knife, and was shown one by a clerk. In the same case were some pistols, one of which the clerk picked up and commenced fooling with it. He cocked the pistol and bang it went, the bullet whizzing in close proximity to persons standing in the store. This pistol had been taken out by one of the persons connected with the store, and he had forgotten to unload it. PERSONALS. R. L. Page and son, of Shelbyville, Indiana, are in the city. B. THE AMERICAN DAY.

Its Public Celebration in the City of Omaha.

Events at The Park Less Interesting Than Expected.

How The Time was Passed at Other Places.

Even the most enthusiastic is free to confess that the exercises at the Omaha Driving Park Monday were by no means successful. The attendance was really fine, and was worthy of one of the best exhibitions of the kind Omaha has ever seen. There was a large number of visitors from the surrounding country, and many well known ladies present to add interest to the occasion. It is an unpleasant fact to acknowledge that all of these experienced different degrees of disappointment but a regard for truth compels a statement to that effect. The non-appearance of the general savages was a great disappointment as it had been confidently expected that they would be present. It is now thought that the agent in charge of them concluded that there would be no celebration owing to President Garfield's condition and therefore did not allow them to come. Pierce's balloon unfortunately met with an accident that rendered it totally unfit for use. Owing to the high wind it is doubtful whether a successful ascension could have been made. Most of the remaining portion of the programme was comparatively unexciting and people generally were dissatisfied. The first event of importance was the base ball match games between the B. & M. boys and the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Gulf boys. The match began at half past eleven. It was soon apparent that the B. & M. nine would gain an easy victory. The playing was excellent especially Durkee's pitching which was too much for the Kansas City boys. The Kansas City boys, however, played well considering this was their first match game. Twitchell the pitcher did some admirable work. The value of the prize gained by the B. & M. was $75. The following are the names of the B. & M. nine: Durkee, Saxe, Austin, Brandt, Foreman, Scott, McLean, Evers and Hall. The Kansas City boys were: Rings, Twitchell, Divesly, Dickenson, Hill, Thomas, Winchell, Emmett and Spears. Mr. C. J. Snythe made an efficient umpire. The B. & M. boys won by a score of thirteen to one. The first race was called at two o'clock and by this time the concourse of spectators had vastly increased. This race, known as the 2:45 race, had three horses entered, the Baker mare, owned by J. M. Patrick and driven by Chris Nevins, Mollie Patchen, owned by John A. Creighton and driven by Boardley, Oddfellow, owned by John I. Redick, and driven by Dufford. At the word "go," Mollie Patchen was the pole, the Baker mare second, and Oddfellow in the rear. The half was done in 1:24, the Baker mare being considerably in the lead. Mollie Patchen was exerting her utmost to outstrip her rival. Baker mare, however, won the heat by two lengths. Time 2:42. The entertainment was then diversified by a bicycle race. There were only three competitors, Samuel Bowley, an Englishman staying at Council Bluffs, Emmet Solomon and Thomas McCague. Bowley won. Time 2:26. The bicycle racing evidently created a great deal of amusement among the spectators, and there was much applause bestowed upon the winner. Next on the programme was the second heat of the 2:45 race. At the start the Baker mare was leading, with Odd Fellow following her closely and Mollie Patchen in the rear. Odd Fellow made a desperate effort to gain on the Baker mare, but she came in first, Odd Fellow following and Mollie Patchen third. Time 2:41 1/2. There was considerable excitement manifested in this contest, and the winner of the heat was greeted with enthusiastic and uproarious cheering. Following this race was another bicycle contest, with the same competitors engaged. Samuel Bowley won it and got the medal. Time 2:29 1/2. The finishing heat of the 2:45 race resulted in a victory for the Baker mare. Odd Fellow again did its utmost, and Mollie Patchen was again third. The heat and race were given to the Baker mare. The last heat was done in 2:42. There were only two horses entered for the free-for-all race, Will Her and Odd Fellow. The latter took the lead and came in nearly a length ahead. Time 2:47. The second and final heat was a very interesting contest. It was a sharp race and at the first half mile Will Her was somewhat in the lead. But Oddfellow pulled up and amid some excitement came in first and was awarded the heat and race. Time 2:47. The judges were J. R. Hunter, Judge Dundy, and Richard Kitchen. Col. Snythe was very busy as chief marshal. He was assisted by Mr. J. H. Butler. Financially the affair was a success. At the conclusion of the last race the people began trooping homeward and the street cars and other conveyances were crowded almost to suffocation. During the day there was some capital music and dancing in which numbers present took part. THE FIREWORKS. The pyrotechnic display at night was quite extensive and varied. Rockets went up from all parts of the city and illuminated the sky with their colored lights. The sight was best viewed from the High school yard. A large gathering of people appreciated this fact and stayed there until a late hour. The private displays upon Capitol Hill were very nice. No doubt the display would have been much greater but for the president's precarious condition. MAENNERCHOR PICNIC. The Omaha Maennerchor society had a picnic in Bauman's gar-

COUNCIL BLUFFS.

A SAD DAY. PEOPLE OF SYMPATHETIC BLUFFS PEOPLE OF THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION.

At an early hour on Monday morning the people thronged the streets and gathered in groups here and there discussing with grave and solemn faces the great national calamity. The BEE, the only morning paper, was eagerly bought and read with the greatest avidity. It soon became evident that the people were in no mood to celebrate in the usual manner, and public sentiment began to manifest itself openly. About 9 o'clock a telegram was received at the Non-Parole office contradicting the published reports, saying that the president had rested well all night, etc. It was received by the people with great eagerness and open manifestations of joy. In about an hour, however, a telegram came announcing the true and extremely critical condition of the president, and a deeper gloom took the place of the transient joy. The conviction now took hold of the people that the president could not recover and all the events of the day were marked and solemnized by this sad and gloomy foreboding. Early in the morning Abe Lincoln post, G. A. R., issued the following circular: COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., July 4, 1881. HEADQUARTERS AT ABERNETHY, 9 a. m. Owing to the national affliction that has befallen the country by reason of the attempted assassination of President Garfield, and the uncertainty as to whether he will recover or not, and in view of the high esteem in which he is held as a man and as the chief magistrate of the nation, I hereby order that the Council Bluffs Light Guards take no part in any street parade or other public demonstration on the 4th day of July, 1881. D. B. DAILEY, Captain. NOTICE, G. A. R. The members of Abe Lincoln post, No. 29, have decided, owing to the sad calamity of the president, not to celebrate or participate in their picnic to-day. By order of the commander, C. H. HARRISON, P. C. This was promptly followed by action on the part of Father McMenemy and M. Keating withdrawing the street parade and the celebration at Glendale. The following notice was published: "In consequence of the sad event at Washington and the critical condition of the president the celebration in Glendale, and the festival to be held at Dohany's hall this evening will not be held. M. KEATING, President. About noon Mayor Vaughan issued the following PROCLAMATION. We are all aware that a cowardly assassin has struck a blow of terror to the heart of every true American, by the attempted assassination of the president of the United States, and as his death may be expected at any moment. I, W. R. VAUGHAN, mayor of Council Bluffs, do earnestly request and urge the celebration and public national demonstrations to cease from this hour, and that all firing of crackers, cannon, etc., be discontinued, and that the citizens meet at the court house at 2 p. m., where appropriate resolutions of sympathy for our afflicted or dying president may be adopted, and that each church bell be tolled for one hour, commencing at 1 p. m., as an expression of our grief. W. R. VAUGHAN, mayor. In accordance with the mayor's proclamation the bells began to toll at 10 o'clock and all hearts were mourning for the stricken President. By two o'clock a large number of people had gathered at the court house. It was a sad and solemn meeting. E. E. Aylesworth called the meeting to order. Mayor Vaughan was appointed Chairman, and C. S. Clark Secretary. The following resolutions were adopted: MORE THAN A HUNDRED TIMES has the sun risen upon this day, made glorious with display of bunting, the roar of artillery, the chiming of bells and the hurrying of flags, all testifying in union with rejoicing loyalty. To-day its advent is marked by pall, and shroud, and muffled drum and measured step that tell of a nation bereaved. To the annals of its memory we add to-day the hallowed memory of the martyred brave. Our president is dying, and a bowed nation passes under the rod. In view of these exigencies Mayor Vaughan has fittingly ordered the suspension of all festivities usual to the day: The closing of all marts of commerce, and the a semblage of the people to give expression of sympathy and grief. We, the citizens of Council Bluffs, have therefore, in mass meeting assembled. Resolved, That with full hearts of love, we tender our kindest, warmest sympathy for the sorrowing family of our revered president; for we, as a nation, as well as a family, have lost a father and a husband, and we mourn from the heart. Resolved, That, standing here in the full strength of our manhood, that knows no weakness, we blend our unrestrained tears of grief with a blighted and stricken heart, and recognize in this affliction the most damaging blow to the peace and prosperity of a nation, that it was possible for any human being to inflict. Yesterday saw us a nation, full with rich prosperity, and radiant in future hope. To-day dawns upon a country cast down in sorrow for the suffering of its beloved ruler, a man who in honor had carved his way from the lowliest walks of life to the greatest nation on the earth, and by their own consent cannot die unmourned, and in mourning to-day we acknowledge

HIS EXPERIENCE.

How One Young Man Spent Fourth of July.

His Own Account of It so far as He Can Recall.

A young man, who, not many months ago, left his home to seek his fortune in the glowing west, awoke from a late slumber Monday morning with a consciousness that it was Fourth of July. The thought aroused an interesting train of recollections, but on looking around the bare interior of his bachelor quarters the young man felt lonesome. However, he was soon wide awake, thinking over the matter and scratching his tousled head, he dumped himself out upon the floor. Dressing is by no means a pleasant task with the mercury near the summit of the tube. One of the first principles of the Fourth of July is undoubtedly a clean shirt. Now a clean shirt meant a transfer of collar buttons, studs and cuff buttons. Of course the laundress had put in an extra supply of starch on account of the day, and therefore the task was proportionately difficult of accomplishment. Perseverance will, however, accomplish wonders, and after a desperate ten-minutes' struggle, in which every muscle of the body was kept at a high tension and beads of sweat resembling acorns rolled down the young man's face, the shirt was finally donned and the collar adjusted. The rest of the task was easy enough, but the young man finally reached the street in a state of dissatisfaction and ill-humor. The playing of the bands and discharge of fire-crackers had an unpleasant effect upon him. In such cases nature craves a relief. He sought it in probably the most sensible way available to wit, a mint julep. This gave him a little courage and he soon had mastered breakfast. A cigar and a copy of THE BEE furnished him pleasant employment for an hour and then the problem of how to spend the day became a serious one. A public picnic, or even the programme of the driving park had no attraction for him. His desire was to pass the day quietly. After an early dinner another cigar and newspaper furnished considerable satisfaction. Then a jaunt was taken to a neighboring billiard hall. Nature continued to crave and the young man continued to gratify. At last the sun sunk beneath the western hills and the young man saluted forth. He went to several other places. At the theater he felt a disposition to go out between the acts. He finally yielded to the impulse and remained out. He went every place he knew of. It kept growing more gloomy out of doors. Undoubtedly night was coming on. He could see the lights starting up suddenly in the windows. He imagined he was looking for somebody and kept going in wherever he saw a light. At every place a pleasing fragrance of mint julep, gin sling, gin-cock tail, etc., assailed his nostrils. It began to look at last as though Fourth of July wasn't such a bad day after all. The playing of bands and the report of fire-crackers no longer seemed so harsh to him. He readily imagined the street lamps were stars overhead and that the heavens were brightening up. He continued his search for somebody he couldn't find and the longer he searched the more hopeful he became. At last he met a policeman with whom he was acquainted and after a short conversation ascertained that it was time to go to bed. The officer was very particular to impress the fact with considerable emphasis. So he went to his room. In going there he thought it the queerest thing in the world that he had never before discovered how much easier it was to go upstairs than down. He entered his room singing pleasantly a song he had learned when he was a boy. It was rather hot but he didn't feel uncomfortable a bit. He threw up the window and looked out. The street lamps stringing out in lines seemed to dance and wheel about like a torchlight procession, in honor of the day. He was perfectly satisfied. Satisfied was the only word to express it. He did not know of anything he wanted. The whole universe seemed full of fullness and all around was roundness. As he leaned out he heard a faint plashing sound far below on the pavement. He concluded that he must have fallen into a reverie, but anyhow he felt better. He drew back into the room and walked over to the big chair and sat down. Evidently the lady who cared for the room had moved the chair, for the young man in the darkness had sat down in the spittoon instead of the seat. That was a small matter, however. He got out of his boots after considerable scuffling. It seemed save time in the morning if he slept in his shirt. The rest of the clothing he distributed carefully around just where it happened to drop, and climbed over into bed. The mattress never seemed so springy nor the pillow so soft. The spirit of Fourth of July was all over him, and the young man slumbered. No troubled dreams came to him, but he slept long and soundly like a tired child. And he awoke so refreshed that he concluded he didn't need any breakfast. The only thing that troubles him is that so few of the events of the day made a lasting impression upon him. He is simply conscious that he had a good time but all details are wanting. He couldn't go over the ground again to save his life.

AGRICULTURAL BOARD.

What Was Done at Its Meeting Here.

The state board of agriculture met Monday in the Withnell House. Among those present were Messrs. H. Clarkson, Hartman, Dorsey, Hon. C. W. Walker, Judge Kinney, Prof. Williams, Gov. Furnas, Hon. M. Dunham, Wm. R. Bowen and D. T. Mount. The bills of Phelps Daine, for $21; J. H. Harley, for $1 and Henry Gibson for $5.15 were ordered paid. It was decided that the same premiums will be awarded merino sheep as others of the same class. The secretary was directed to correspond with the several railroads and procure the lowest rates of transportation for cattle intended to be exhibited at the state fair. Quarters will be provided for two companies of troops. The action of the secretary in having 5000 speed programmes printed, was approved. The secretary was directed to have the towns of the state billed with posters. Chaplain English, of the U. S. A., was selected as superintendent of class 12, Bishop Clarkson having resigned owing to other pressing engagements. Prof. Williams offered the following: WHEREAS, We have a state of wondrous probabilities, and notwithstanding they have not been properly exhibited, the state has had an unexampled growth; therefore Resolved, That the board of managers believe that the time is near at hand for enlarging the operations of the State Board of Agriculture, so as to include a series of practical reports to be published in the state papers, or otherwise, if practicable, as immigration documents, so as to secure a closer relation and more co-operation between the state board and the various county and district societies; and, also, to secure, if practicable, a series of farm experiments by advanced practical farmers in different parts of the state; and further to publish and disseminate documents exhibiting the resources of the state. Resolved, That it is the opinion of the state board and we recommend that after the present year the better to carry out this advanced work, the secretary of the board to have an office at the state capital or Omaha and devote his whole time and energies to his office. After remarks by Prof. Clarkson, Prof. Williams and Chairman Dorsey the resolutions were adopted. The board then adjourned. Its Power not Waning. To the Editor of THE BEE. Omaha, July 2.—In your able criticism of the conduct of England toward the Irish nation, published in Saturday evening's issue, you unwillingly make an assertion which you will pardon me if I correct. You say in substance that the Land League has reached the maximum of its power, and that it is now on the decline. Coming from another source, I would not deem this imputation worthy of correction, but because of your able advocacy of the Irish cause since the question of England's tyranny has been discussed, I have considered it fair to you as well as ourselves that THE BEE shall not make a "mistake," even involuntarily. The Land League is stronger now than it ever has been, and it is growing in strength and importance. "England's rod of coercion has been broken," as you truthfully remark, and no matter what brutal acts she may be guilty of the League will continue its passive resistance. There were five hundred thousand dollars in the treasury last January. We have more money than the landlords, and we have an incalculably greater power. "No Surrender" is our motto. Very truly, JOHN REUB. "BLACK-DRAUGHT" cures dyspepsia, indigestion and heartburn. At C. F. Goodman's.
