UNWRITTEN HISTORY.

As Given to the District Attorney by Herrick.

A Story Told with the Grain of Salt Condition.

"If I were to be shot the next minute," said Herrick, who has just been sentenced to the penitentiary, in a chat with a Bee reporter last evening, "I would still say that I had nothing to do with the burning of De Groat's store."

Herrick does not seem to be the least bit worried over his penitentiary prospects although he acknowledges that he expected more leniency after his confession had been made. He was rather reticent concerning what he had sworn to in his statement. He however said that in September before the building had been burned Charley DeGroat had had a conversation with him. The matter took a business turn and DeGroat spoke of his entangled affairs and the difficulty he was experiencing in meeting his loads of debt. Then he spoke of misunderstandings existing between himself and partner and the difficulty they had in agreeing at all. Finally DeGroat said, according to Herrick's story, that lots of building were being continually burned down in the east, and although they were heavily insured the money was collected, without any difficulty. He figured how nicely he could settle up his accounts provided such a calamity should befall his store and ended by intimating that there was some money in it for any one who would attempt the deed. Herrick claims that he had another conversation of similar import with DeGroat.

Herrick maintained the defensive during the whole talk and would not permit himself to make a positive statement except in regard to the store key which, he said, he had received from Charley DeGroat after the fire. Herrick says he found the broken lock after the fire and as he was somewhat of a locksmith started to fix it. It was then that he received the key. Herrick's statement is given for what it is worth.

From another source it is learned that the exact contents of Herrick's confession as made to District Attorney Burnham are as given below. The facts have been secured from such a source that they may be deemed perfectly reliable. Herrick's story runs about as follows:

Between two and three weeks before the fire occurred the DeGroat's approached him with the proposition to burn down the stock and secure the insurance upon the stock. They figured up the different amounts of the risks upon the building held by the different insurance companies, and calculated the amount necessary to be paid to their most pressing creditors with the most minute exactness. They then offered to pay Herrick two hundred and fifty dollars out of the insurance they would recover should he undertake the job, which proposition he, after considerable hesitation, accepted. When the night agreed upon between the three men arrived, Herrick collected a lot of old rags and placed them in one of the back corners of the store, and then saturated the rags thoroughly with kerosene. When the moment came to set the pile thus prepared on fire, Herrick's courage failed him and he refused to touch the match despite the entreaties of the DeGroat's. A night or two subsequently his courage was again brought up to the sticking point as he supposed by the two men, but when the time came he absolutely refused to do it unless they paid him the two hundred and fifty dollars at that time. The DeGroat's went to their safe and counted its contents which amounted to just sixty-five dollars, and offered it to him. He absolutely refused any amount less than the two hundred and fifty dollars. After a conference between the two brothers they told him that if he would keep the matter to himself and walk about the block to make certain that no block watchman was hovering around they would give him the $250 in any event. Charley DeGroat then went into the building and lighted a match and threw it into the mass of rags, and they started away to await the result. After a little while when it was seen that the fire had not caught the two brothers went back to the store, and Charley again started the fire and put the mass into several different piles lighting each one, and covering each pile with a stove-pipe hat so that the flame could not be seen. Herrick's shop was on the alley in the rear of the store, and from an open window facing the store he saw the whole proceeding. After the fire was successfully started the DeGroat's lit out, one running up the alley towards 14th street and the other down toward 13th street.

When the alarm was given about 20 minutes later, the DeGroat's were safely ensconced in their own beds. Herrick says that but for the fact that when he was arrested the boys ignored him, and refused to get bail for him, he would not now make this confession.

To the Temperance People.

The following circular has just been issued by the committee selected by the various temperance societies and explains itself: The undersigned having been requested by the different temperance organizations and friends of temperance in Omaha, to act as a committee for the purpose of securing, by the use of all honorable means, the enforcement of the state and municipal laws regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors in this city, have accepted said important trust and in so doing expect the hearty support of, not alone temperance men, but all who desire to see the enforcement of law and observance of good order. Our first duty will be to secure decisions from our courts as to the constitutionality of the "Slocumb law." To do that, money will be needed to defray expenses of counsel to Lincoln and for other purposes. One or more of the cases now in the district court, it is expected, will go to the supreme court at an early day, and will, no doubt, secure a speedy hearing before that tribunal. Oscar F. Davis has been selected to act as treasurer of the committee, and you are hereby requested to hand or remit to him such an amount as you may feel willing to contribute for the purpose named. Let us urge an immediate remittance. The committee have not the time to spare from their business in canvassing for money, and they trust that the friends of temperance and lovers of good order will respond promptly and liberally and without further solicitation. Very respectfully, WATSON B. SMITH, OSCAR F. DAVIS, WILLIAM FLEMING, ROSWELL SMITH, J. W. ROGERS, Committee.

BLUFF BREVITIES.

The News of the Day Conventionally Boiled Down.

SHOT TOWER. THE NEWEST ENTERPRISE UNDERTAKEN AT THE BLUFFS. Articles of incorporation of the National Shot company, located at Council Bluffs, have been filed with the secretary of state. The capital stock is $90,000, which may be increased to $90,000. Its officers are A. B. Walker, president; Geo. R. Beard, secretary; Thos. J. Beard, treasurer. The secretary, Geo. R. Beard, The Bee has been put in possession of the following important and interesting facts concerning this enterprise: The shot manufactured by this company will be of iron. The machine, process and product are all duly protected by letters patent. All sizes of shot will be made. This shot has been thoroughly tested by experts at some of the leading shot manufactories in the United States. It is claimed that it is superior to lead shot in all or nearly all important particulars. It is estimated to cost only one-third or one-half as much as lead shot. Its superiority alone will doubtless lead to its rapid introduction. Mr. Beard is enthusiastic over the final and complete success of the enterprise. As soon as the president, who has now gone west on business, returns active operations will be commenced and it is expected the factory here will soon be established.

DOUSE THE DUST.

The Universal Cry of the People Yesterday.

Why the Work is not Begun at Once.

Mr. Swift Claims that too Much is Expected of Him.

If there were any people in Omaha last evening who are not in favor of having the streets sprinkled they must have very peculiar ideas as to personal comfort. While the heat was not so intense yesterday as Thursday owing to the breeze prevailing from the northwest, yet it was decidedly more uncomfortable owing to the dust. At times throughout the day when a stiff breeze prevailed it was absolutely terrible. Every store floor in the city was covered with a coating of dust, and much clothing and dry goods must have been damaged. It was a day which no well regulated citizen will be willing to stand again without investigating the sprinkling business. It will be remembered that at the last meeting of the council the contract for sprinkling Farnham street from Ninth to Sixteenth and Douglas from Twelfth to Sixteenth was let to Thomas Swift at the rate of $220 a week. Everybody was enquiring of every other body why the work was not resumed at once. Very few people could give any satisfactory answer.

A reporter for The Bee called upon Mayor Boyd, who is always a last resort in an emergency of this kind. The mayor was found ensconced in his new office on Harney street busily engaged in getting things into shape.

"What is the hitch in the sprinkling business?" was asked him. "You see," replied the mayor, "the citizens living along Farnham street petitioned the council that that thoroughfare be sprinkled to the parallel alleys north and south. The petition of the Douglas street property holders simply referred to the street itself. The city clerk in advertising of course invited proposals for the work just as it was mentioned. Mr. Swift got this contract and the consequence is that he refuses to sprinkle Douglas street to the alleys. We want him to do this and there's where the hitch comes in. We had a meeting this morning. The committee on streets and grades, myself and Mr. Swift will have another conference at 2 o'clock in order to adjust matters if possible."

"The dust is terrible, isn't it?" "Yes, something should be done to lay it at once."

Mr. Swift was hunted up to see what he had to say. His story was this: "When the city council advertised for bids for sprinkling streets, they specified the territory to be sprinkled. I was the successful bidder, and the council by resolution awarded me the contract. I set to work buying teams, getting tanks made, securing workmen and putting sprinkling carts in thorough working order at an outlay of between two hundred and three hundred dollars. When I applied to the city office for the contract ready to get to work, after some delay and red-tape, I found the contract presented for my signature and bond included one-third more territory than the original contract embraced. My apparatus, property and securities stand idle, and I am eager to do faithful work if the city officials were not disposed to impose more on me than originally agreed. It is the fault of the city officials, and not mine, that the dust is flying."

"Wasn't it through a mistake that the Douglas street alleys were not mentioned as boundaries?" "No, sir. At the meeting of council two weeks ago this very matter was discussed and it was decided that Douglas street strictly would only be sprinkled. Action in regard to sprinkling should have been taken a month ago. It is pretty hard to expect a man to be ready at a moment's notice to do this work. You see it is necessary to make a great many preparations."

It is to be hoped that the matter will be adjusted in some satisfactory shape at once, so that people will not be compelled to swallow more than one peck of dust a day.

THE BLUFFS IN BRIEF. M. G. Griffin, the enterprising Main street grocer, is having a good substantial brick sidewalk put down at the side of his store building on Willow avenue.

Col. W. F. Sapp and family are guests of Mr. Phelps, at the Ogden. An unusually large number of people from all parts of the country were booked at the Pacific house on the 7th inst.

There was quite a large gathering at Mrs. N. C. Cory's last evening in response to invitations extended to her friends.

C. E. Dix, assistant cashier at the savings bank will soon go to Olive Lake for a season of rest.

J. W. Mackey, father-in-law of Whitehall Reid, editor of the New York Tribune, came in from the east yesterday.

Geo. J. Wright, Des Moines; H. H. Trimble, Bloomfield; McPherson, attorney-general, of Red Oak, and several other well known citizens of Iowa put up at the Ogden house yesterday.

L. S. Russell has fitted up a fine billiard hall at the Metropolitan hotel on Lower Broadway.

Hon. C. R. Scott left yesterday, to pay a visit to his extensive corn plantations east of the city.

A ballroom ascension will take place from the square in front of the First National bank building at eight o'clock this evening.

Mrs. Maria Mynster, at no distant date, will commence the erection of a fine three story brick building on her lot on Broadway near the Ogden house.

Mrs. McKenzie's new residence on the corner of Scott street and First avenue, is about ready for occupancy.

Oakland avenue is to be treated to a new brick sidewalk on the east side, an improvement very much needed.

The water barrels should be protected with a covers.

Miss Edith Swanson is lying dangerously ill at the residence of Mrs. Maria Mynster.

Haines & Hammond will soon have a large quantity of brick at their yard ready for use.

A shepherd dog passed down Main street yesterday with a drove of about 100 sheep in charge. He evidently understood his business, too.

Yesterday was a delightful day here. There was a strong, cool breeze, and old Sol had to abate, somewhat, his order.

Xinx says "what Council Bluffs and Omaha want is a tunnel under the Missouri. It can be built and maintained at less cost than a bridge, and will be forever free from treacherous quakes, floods and floating ice."

Who is not Xinx's suggestion practical? Who says tunnel? Mrs. Adams, wife of Attorney C. F. Adams, is reported seriously ill.

The musical talent of Council Bluffs is bound to assert itself sooner or later. Prof. Perry is now organizing a first-class brass band. It will be composed of young men of the city and the very best musicians that can be secured. The Bee is assured that it will be made one of the very best bands of the kind in the west.

Today is announced a fine brass band and a shot factory. The Bluffs is bound to have manufactures.

high. It is difficult to get laborers, especially carpenters and masons. The canine population of this town might be reduced one-half and still not be missed.

A. B. Walker has gone to Utah to visit mines in which he is interested. He will be absent two or three weeks. John Healy was the name of the man who stole the watch at the Northwestern depot. It was at the Coy house and not the Northwestern depot the watch was stolen. The arrest was made at the depot. His case came up yesterday at the police court. The watch was found at the pawn shop of Mrs. Davis, where it had been pawned for $2. It was identified by the owner. The prisoner made no defense and was given a $50 fine or seventeen days' confinement, hard labor. Having no money, he was committed.

The police were yesterday discussing the prospective dog harvest, which will commence in about three weeks. Never was there finer prospects of a good crop was the general opinion.

The wash-out spoken of in yesterday's Bee as demanding attention was at the head of Oakland avenue.

Concerning those barrels of water the Globe says: We humbly suggest that the barrels of water that have been gratuitously placed on the street corners by our Christian ladies (at the expense of the city) should be mounted each on a goods box and supplied with a faucet. The barrels should also have a cover, to keep out the dirt and also the filthy drippings from the barrels of two-legged hogs. The barrels of water are without doubt a good thing, but would be very much better with a little more protection. A faucet would be better than a hole in the lid.

Hon. Jesso T. Davis, of Blair, Nebraska, was in the city yesterday. Watermelons made their appearance in this city yesterday. They were selling at 15 and 25 cents each.

New hay has made its appearance in the hay market here, and commands a high price. Prospects of a good crop are reported.

Prof. Clarendon has recently returned from a trip in Nebraska. The Shugart Implement company talk of covering their new warehouse on Main street with iron. This is a sensible thing and ought to be encouraged. It will afford great protection to the property and a large reduction in the cost of insurance. Harris, the lumber dealer, will also protect his buildings in the same way.

H. H. Judson, the Broadway dry goods merchant, expects his eldest son soon from California to engage in business. He is now setting up some mining interests in California preparatory to his return.

Officer Brooks arrested Joe Burke yesterday for drunkenness and disturbing the peace on Upper Broadway. The man refused to submit quietly to an introduction to Esquire Burke, and the officer was compelled to dump him into a wagon. Before they arrived at the city building, however, Burke kicked out the dash board and also succeeded in getting in one on the officer, landing him into the street in a twinkling. Brooks recovered himself and finally managed to get in his wagon. Burke was immediately thrown into the lock-up, where he will remain until his temperature is sufficiently reduced to listen to the verdict.

Constable Rosecrantz arrested a man and his wife on a warrant from Judge Abbott, for obtaining goods under false pretenses. They were taken before the court where the case is now pending.

One other arrest, for drunkenness, was made by Tim Toner. Later a man was arrested for stealing a double barreled shot gun from Epeneter.

COMPARING YESTERAY'S INDICATIONS WITH THURSDAY. Thursday was without doubt the hottest day of the season thus far. During the whole day citizens who ventured upon the streets at all were panting, perspiring and altogether decidedly uncomfortable to say the least. It was only those who had very urgent matters on hand that left their several places of business at all. At 5:45 a. m. the thermometer at the signal service office indicated 81° in the shade; at 1:45 p. m. it stood 96°, and at 5:45 p. m., the hottest period of the day, it reached 98° which is the highest figure indicated this summer. Yesterday was a great deal pleasanter, and were the dust laid by proper sprinkling it would be a very enjoyable summer day, indeed. The signal service thermometer has, at the following hours, marked as follows: At 5:45 a. m. 82.5°, at 9:45 a. m. 89.1°, and at 1:30 p. m. 79°. It is trusted that the last named figure may continue to stand the temperature for an indefinite period.

DR. JAMESON'S REMARKS.

Before the Temperance Bee-Hive Last Evening.

Last night the Temperance Bee-Hive society held a meeting, but owing to the threatening appearance of the weather it was poorly attended. After some hymns were sung, Rev. E. H. E. Jameson read some passages of scripture bearing on the temperance question. Being called upon to say a few words, he rose and said he always took a great interest in the temperance cause. He was glad to find that there were some who worked in this cause, and while leading lives of temperance themselves, did all in their power to urge others to do the same. Here in Omaha, as elsewhere, the women were the ones who took the lead in this movement. He urged them to persevere in the good work and success would crown their efforts. It seemed to him that the leading newspapers and business men of this city allowed the law on the temperance question to be broken with impunity. It was strange to him that people's minds were so blinded as not to recognize the alarming evils of drunkenness. If a law is to be set aside simply because it is unpleasant to a small portion of the community, where was the use of making a law at all? He thought it a serious matter that lawyers and others should allow a law which had been passed to be treated in the contemptuous manner this Slocumb law was being treated. He felt confident if the ladies would go on agitating, so as to keep the public alive to the facts of the case, the law would ultimately be carried out.

Master Charles Henderson and Miss Sylvester, read short recitations. Mr. Jardine made a few pertinent remarks on this question, and the meeting terminated with the Doxology.

"WINE OF CARDUI" four times a day makes a happy household. At C. F. Goodman's.
