THE PRESIDENT.

HOURLY GETTING BETTER.

WASHINGTON, August 3.—Nothing new in the president's case this evening beyond the fact that the afternoon febrile rise has been less than usual and that the usual administration of morphia has been reduced to 1-16 of a grain.

WEDNESDAY'S BULLETINS.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, August 3, 8:30 a. m.—The president slept fairly the greater part of the night. This morning his temperature is normal and his general condition satisfactory.

WHITE HOUSE, August 3.—11:45 a. m.—President Garfield is passing a good day. His shoulders have been raised in bed and he has been allowed to eat a small amount of fruit.

August 3, 2:30 p. m.—The president enjoyed a nap this afternoon in a raised position. He has taken a good amount of nourishment since awakening.

OFFICIAL.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, August 3, 7 p. m.—The president has passed a very satisfactory day. The wound continues to do well.

WASHINGTON, August 3.—9 p. m.—At this hour the president is resting very quietly and comfortably.

There is no change in his condition since the official bulletin was issued.

GUITEAU.

STILL CLOSELY GUARDED.

WASHINGTON, August 3.—All requests made at the jail for permission to see Guiteau or even to enter the rotunda are refused.

The fact that a military guard is maintained indicates that the authorities apprehend some danger of an attempt being made to capture the prisoner or of his escaping.

It is stated that there are organizations in this city as well as Baltimore and Philadelphia, whose members are ready to take the law into their own hands if they can get hold of him.

Anonymous communications were received by the district attorney shortly after the attempted assassination which notified him that a large number of young men of Baltimore had banded together for punishing Guiteau.

Col. Corkhill was asked if Guiteau had bondsmen.

"No," was the answer.

It is inferred from the fact that Guiteau wants to be released on bail that he knows the president is recovering was further said.

"He does not know it. There are, I suppose, many ways he could learn. He knows it is thirty days since the president was shot and he can hardly help but reason from that that the president is probably recovering as he must know he is alive."

MISCELLANEOUS.

TARDY POSTMASTERS COME TO TRIAL.

WASHINGTON, August 3.—A score of delinquent postmasters, notified by the postoffice department a few days ago, have all come to the scratch.

The mistake was not in neglect to transmit the report but negligence in the transmitting. The rules of the department require that the envelopes enclosing the same be characterized by a green slip that they may have immediate attention.

The postmasters referred to sent in their reports in ordinary postoffice envelopes and they went in with routine business and were not reached until to-day.

These postmasters will not be fined but warned to comply more closely to requirements in future.

SECRETARIES LINCOLN AND KIRKWOOD.

Secretary Lincoln telegraphs from Rye Beach that he will be at the war department to-morrow morning.

Secretary Kirkwood has sufficiently recovered to resume work to-morrow.

STEAMBOAT CASUALTIES.

From General Dumont's record of steamboat casualties during the year it appears that, omitting the Vera Cruz and Alpena disasters, there were fewer casualties from July 1, 1880, to June 30, 1881, than for any twelve months preceding since the introduction of steam navigation.

GRAND THANKSGIVING JUBILEE.

The musical people are again enthusiastic over the proposition to have a grand thanksgiving jubilee by Sunday school children in the White House grounds.

The plan is to have the children assemble in proper organization in the grounds, the white schools on one side and the colored school children on the other, with the marine band between them.

The schools could sing separately and in a grand chorus together.

WASHINGTON WAIFS.

Senator Conkling left Washington for New York to-day.

Senator Ben Hill, of Georgia, passed through here on his way to Alum Springs to-day. He looks emaciated, but talks without impediment. He said the cancer in his mouth was caused by smoking, but he thinks it permanently cured.

The free-for-all pacing race, for a purse of $2,000, divided, was very exciting. Little Brown Jug, who sold for $50 to $20 on the field, won the first heat, was fifth in the second, and was distanced in the third heat. BRADLAUGH'S BREAK.

LONDON, August 3.—Charles Bradlaugh, armed with a stout hickory stick, attempted to force an entrance into the house of commons to-day, and was arrested by the police and ushers after a hot struggle. He says he will renew the attempt with force enough to gain an entrance.

LONDON, August 3.—There was an extraordinary scene about the house of parliament this morning, when Charles Bradlaugh, twice elected a member from Northampton, and twice refused his seat, carried out his threat to attempt to gain an entrance by physical force, intending to demand that the speaker should administer the oath to him. His cab drove to the entrance of the new palace yard and he descended, his tall and powerful form towering above the crowd. He was plainly dressed and carried a stout oak staff. He was cheered by the crowd and was met at the entrance of Westminster Hall by Henry LaBouchere, his fellow member from Northampton. They passed arm in arm through the hall and up the grand stair case where they waited for a messenger to announce the house in session. Bradlaugh then passed through Stephens' gallery and attempted to enter the lobby. Right Hon. Dr. Lyon Playfair, deputy speaker, met him with a full line of police and ushers, and the police closed behind him. As Playfair forbade him to enter he hesitated an instant, then suddenly sprang forward, seized the nearest usher, threw him aside, and, using all his enormous strength, tried to force an entrance. For a moment it seemed as if he would succeed and enter the house, but the police fell upon him in a body, and after a violent struggle succeeded in pushing him step by step through the gallery and out upon the stone platform of Westminster hall, from which he was still further thrust into the yard below. Bradlaugh, ghastly pale but full of fight, contested every inch of ground. At times he seemed animated with ungovernable fury and rushed furiously upon his antagonists. The crowd cheered every fresh struggle and enjoyed the scene immensely. At the close Bradlaugh, nearly fainting, his clothing torn, his face livid, his face livid, presented a terrible spectacle. He drank a glass of water, which somewhat revived him and then, addressing the crowd, declared that he would return to the house with sufficient force to either effect an entrance or compel the government to arrest him. He then left the hall and entered his carriage, where the door he received with enthusiastic cheers. It is said that Bradlaugh will apply to-morrow for a summons against the deputy speaker, police and others for assault in resisting his entrance. During this violent scene Bradlaugh's two daughters and his friend, Mrs. Besant, were in Westminster hall reading petitions signed by thousands of Bradlaugh's adherents, praying for his admission.

After this strange scene was over, or while it was approaching its close, Henry LaBouchere, in the house of commons moved, and Ashton Dilke (brother of Sir Charles Dilke, member for Newcastle-on-Tyne and editor of The Dispatch) seconded the resolution, declaring that the speaker had exceeded his legitimate power in excluding Bradlaugh from the lobby. Gladstone, Sir Stafford Northcote and others opposed the resolution. John Bright supported it. An amendment approving the speaker's action was carried by 191 to 7. Upon hearing this Bradlaugh drove away in a cab.

GOOD WINE EXPORTED.

MADRID, August 3.—After providing for her protective tariff and monopoly market in the West Indies Spain will have little left this year for the export of cereals. If the fine weather continues wine growers expect a good quality more than quantity.

Reinforce me at Round mountain. The Apaches are fully seventy strong. This morning fifty Mexicans while pursuing their trail were ambushed in camp at Canon, Colorado, and six were killed. The rest fled, losing their horses. Another party fired into government Indian scouts thinking them hostile. The scouts returned the fire killing two. There is much excitement.

$5 From Chicago to Boston.

National Associated Press.

CHICAGO, August 3.—As predicted in these dispatches last Saturday the Grand Trunk road has cut its passenger rate between Chicago and Boston to $5, selling the ticket at $15 with a $10 rebate at Boston within sixty-four hours after passengers leave this city. This precaution has been taken to prevent local rates from going to pieces. So far no steps have been taken by competing lines to meet the rates given by the Grand Trunk, but indications are that the Vanderbilt roads will take a hand in the fight within a day or two.

THE PEORIA INFERNALS.

Crowe, the Alleged Inventor,

Given Considerable Cheap

Advertising.

And Using His Best Endeavors to Secure More

Notoriety.

Himself and a Fellow Conspirator

Try to Get Away With the Peorian Fund.

PEORIA, Ill., August 3.—There has been considerable misrepresentation in regard to the standing character and acts of Patrick W. Crowe, the Peorian of this city. Crowe has been employed as a lamp-lighter by the gas company here for the past three or four years. He is a shallow-pated Irishman who inherits the lingual characteristics of his race, without common sense fortified, with an intolerable itch for notoriety. He will go to unwarrantable lengths in order to bring his name into prominence. The secret of the infernal machine was disclosed by Crowe himself, who took advantage of the alleged discovery of some of the machines in English ports to air his own importance. Since the publication of the discovery of the machines in this city, Crowe has seized every opportunity to advertise himself and has succeeded admirably. It is true that there are infernal machines now here that were made here. One of them was taken to The Journal office of this city in order to compare them with the description of those discovered in Liverpool. A few hours after it
