THE PRESIDENT.

HIGHER FEVER. WASHINGTON, D. C.,—The president's fever had not entirely disappeared last night, when it seemed to take a fresh start, and at the morning examination, his temperature was higher than it had been for several mornings.

To the surprise of his associates, Dr. Bliss was at the white house as early as usual. His injured hand and arm were still suspended in a sling, and he looked very haggard after his night of pain. He said he felt better to-day, that he piled the medicine in pretty lively yesterday, and he guessed he would be all right now. At any rate he assisted at the morning dressing of the wound. After its conclusion the president was made comfortable and Dr. Bliss came into Mr. Brown's room for his mail.

He greeted the representatives of the National Associated Press and in reply to a question whether the temperature was not higher this morning than they had expected, said: "Yes, it is; but we have discovered the cause."

"What was the cause?" "A corner of the wound was not discharging satisfactorily."

"And you remedied it?" "Oh, yes; it will be better presently."

"You did not have to cut it up?" "Oh, no; the pus had accumulated slightly in a corner that could be easily cleared when the dressings were. We used a tube to cleanse the wound, and now all is going right again."

"Then you say things will look better soon?" "They will, or else I am not a judge."

"Does the pus look well?" "Excellent. It is of the best quality."

McVeagh came to the White House soon after 9 o'clock. He did not know what to think of the high temperature. Dr. Bliss repeated the general explanation, and the attorney above seemed satisfied, but said he longed for the time when explanations would not be necessary. At 10 o'clock the fever had subsided somewhat, the president had eaten breakfast, of which chicken formed a part, and he expressed himself as feeling better than for several days.

DR. HAMILTON. Dr. Hamilton regrets the excessive heat and says that fourteen days of cool weather would do the president much good in his present state. He gives an encouraging view of the case in every way.

DR. KEYBURN. Dr. Keyburn says the president is all right. A dispatch was sent to Dr. Agnew asking him when it would be convenient for him to come. Mrs. Garfield is extremely anxious that one or the other of the consulting physicians should be here all the time.

DR. HAMILTON. Dr. Hamilton said today that there was no need of the attendance of the consulting physicians. The case was in good hands and doing well. The physicians do not deny that the president is exceedingly weak, but say that when he really commences to recover it will be permanent and therefore worthy improvement. The president is said to be in excellent spirits, and insists that he feels generally better. The report that the drainage tube had been inserted in the wound was a mistake. It was only used in cleaning the wound.

DR. BLISS. Dr. Bliss was not averse to conversing on the subject to-night. His hand and arm are much better and he expects no more trouble therefrom. He feels sure his debilitated condition was solely caused from the bad effects of contact with pus. In regard to the condition of the patient to-night he said: "He is better to-night than any night for several days and I consider the outlook better than on any previous time. Of course we don't know what may happen, but barring accidents I think the case will go right along. For instance, pneumonia might set in, but we don't expect any of these things." In regard to the location of the ball Dr. Bliss said: "We are well satisfied it is near the upper border of the iliac fossa. All indications are contradictory of that idea."

A HEARTY REPEAT. The president had some chicken, mashed potatoes and cream toast, a few blackberries, a piece of peach, at least fourteen ounces of milk, a considerable quantity of beef extract, to say nothing of some Bermuda onions sliced up in vinegar. He was very anxious for onions, and asked for them repeatedly. He relished all these things and said they did him good.

DR. BLISS further said the condition of the wound was excellent, that granulation was apparent on all sides, and the pus was of a very good character. The temperature of the room has been kept at 78 to-day, a happy contrast to that outside.

DR. BLISS was asked to give the idea of the president's strength or weakness. "Well, I don't know how I can; he can move his legs about, can pick up his glasses, put them on, and hold up a paper while he reads a letter. We don't let him read much at a time, and he doesn't read many items, but it shows that he is not by any means helpless."

DR. HAMILTON LEAVES FOR NEW YORK. Dr. Hamilton, having received information that Dr. Agnew would be here this evening, started for New York at 10 p. m. last night. Before going he wrote: "The president continues to do well," with the last line underlined.

A cabinet officer said that the increased temperature of the president could have been reduced if the president would have taken the brandy recommended. He was distinctly advised of the fact, but refused to take liquor unless the doctors should say it was absolutely necessary. They would not say that.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INSPECTOR GENERAL'S REPORT. WASHINGTON, August 13.—Inspector General Dumont reports that during the fiscal years of 1880-81 there were lost 268 lives of passengers and crews upon merchant steam vessels in the United States from the following causes: Explosions 5, collisions, snags, shipwrecks, accidental drownings and miscellaneous causes, including in shipwrecks those lost on the City Vera Cruz and City Alpaca, 123 persons. As compared with the previous year there has been an increase of eighty-three lives lost.

THE WHITTAKER CASE. Judge Advocate General Swain said to-day he had received evidence in the Whittaker case, and that his summing up was ready for the action of the president.

At the close of work on Tuesday evening next the Washington monument will have reached the height of 220 feet, the same height as Bunker Hill monument, and nearly half the intended altitude. Work is being pushed forward rapidly.

Assistant Attorney General Freeman to-day rendered a decision that the postmaster general cannot legally expedite mail routes for the reason that it existed at the time of the original contract, and that under any circumstances he can increase no star service except to double it.

PUNCTURED COINS. The treasury department will probably advise the public to refuse the multitude of punctured silver coins whenever offered to them as the most effectual means of putting a stop to this species of vandalism, on the ground that any person may refuse to take coins with a hole punched in them, because their value is not what it was when issued and stated by the government.

SATURDAY'S BULLETINS. WASHINGTON, August 13, 12:30 p. m.—The president has been cheerful and easy during the morning, and his temperature has fallen a little more than a degree and a half since the morning bulletin. His wound is discharging healthy pus. His wound is now at 102, temperature 99.2, respiration 18.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, August 13.—1 p. m.—Dr. Agnew has been telegraphed for.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, August 13.—2:15 p. m.—The report that Dr. Agnew has been telegraphed for is denied. He is expected to arrive to-morrow morning according to arrangement. Dr. Hamilton says the president is doing well.

More About Jennie Creamer's Murder. National Associated Press. NEW YORK, August 13.—Jennie Creamer, the young girl found dead, lying in the water at New Haven, is supposed to have been murdered by persons to conceal criminal intimacy.

Her acquaintance, Blanche Douglas, a fast woman of this city, to-day tells a new story. At first she denied that the two made acquaintances of hers, Walter Malloy and his brother James, sons of one of the most respectable families of New Haven, knew her or Jennie. She now says she told all to shield Walter from the social scandal it would create in New Haven if the people there knew he kept company with her. She says Walter was her lover, and so infatuated that he not only often came to New York and spent Saturday and Sunday night with her, but induced her to go to New Haven on Wednesday of last week during the absence of his folks and spend the night at the Malloy residence. She stayed with Walter in one room and Jennie in another with James. Thursday morning all breakfasted at a restaurant. The party broke up about noon, and Jennie went away on a Saven Rock car and was found in the water at Saven Rock Friday night. She did not see after her she got on the car. Miss Douglas and James and Walter supped at the same restaurant that evening. The restaurant keeper believes that Jennie was also with them, but is not so positive about that as about her presence in the morning. Miss Douglas spent that night also with Walter in the Malloy house. In her original statement before the coroner's jury she said she spent that night at the Elliott house, but said so to shield Walter. Miss Douglas says that Jennie had no idea that she was fast. Miss Douglas says she believes Jennie committed suicide because her mother treated her awfully for being out Wednesday night and ordered her to leave home. Jennie then came to Miss Douglas and begged to be allowed to go to New York with her, but the Douglas woman refused because she did not wish to be blamed for taking her from home and did not wish Jennie to discover that she was fast.

The Illinois Wheat Crop. National Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., August 13.—The department of agriculture has received returns from almost every county in the state, which show that the total yield of the winter wheat crop for 1881 will be about 22,154,300 bushels. Sixty-two counties which produced 32,632,055 bushels last year will this year yield but 13,448,565.

The past severe winter has damaged a large portion of the wheat and the Hessian fly and chinch bug in the same localities destroyed most of the wheat that was not winter-killed, leaving barely enough for bread and seed. The quality is generally inferior and the grain is much shrunken. The crop in all respects is the poorest produced in the state for over twenty years.

Testament Revision. National Associated Press.

NEW YORK, August 13.—Dr. Cronan has been engaged by Ebenezer Morgan, president of the American and foreign Bible Society, Baptist, to make a revision of the King James Version of the old testament.
