A HAUNTED LAKE. Indian Superstitions About One of Their Battle Fields.

How the Cheyennes and Utes Settled a Standing Dispute.
One of the Bloodiest Massacres of a Savage Tribe.

Rocky Mountain News.

Grand Lake, the scene of the recent tragedy, has a number of romantic associations connected with it. It is situated on the bank of the Grand Lake, one of the most beautiful of the Rocky Mountain lakes. It is the site of one of the most bloody battles of the Indian wars, and the scene of a romantic episode in the life of the hero of the West, General Sheridan. The Cheyennes and Utes, who were the principal tribes in the vicinity, were engaged in a long and bitter struggle, and the battle of Grand Lake was the result of a misunderstanding between the two tribes. The Cheyennes were the victors, and the Utes were driven from the lake and the surrounding country.

IN THE SPRING OF 1847. A considerable band of Utes were encamped on the bank of the lake on the exact spot where the town now stands. The snows of the past winter had left the trail sufficiently bare and the stock of the army was surprised in a grove of cottonwood on the bank of the lake, a few miles below Denver now stands, which was the favorite camping and hunting grounds of all the plain Indians. Stealing stealthily upon their foe, the attack was made in the gray of the early dawn. Although aroused from their slumbers thus unexpectedly, a vigorous defense was made, and the battle raged until the sun was high in the heavens, when the attacking party, being repulsed, retreated, not stopping until they had reached their mountain home, on the lake.

IN THEIR FLIGHT, HOWEVER, they carried off, besides several of the coveted ponies, the fair "Star of the Night," the favorite daughter of the Arapahoe chieftain. As soon as the great loss was discovered all of the young warriors burning for revenge clamored for the pursuit. But little time was occupied in the funeral dance over the half a dozen who had been slain in the battle when the pursuit was begun with a vow from each that no halt should be made until their enemies were punished and the maiden rescued. Silently, like an immense serpent crawling through the dell and canon, the faint moonlight casting weird shadows from the cliff above, now wending around some rocky bluff, then stealing through some thick scrub oak the united bands trod their way, now paused in their course following closely on the trail of the despoilers. On the third day just as the dawn was breaking they came upon the camp of the enemy, who, tired with the fatigues of their long march and battle, were sleeping soundly. Like a whirlwind of destruction was poured the arrows of the avengers into the bodies of the sleepers and many of them never awoke to consciousness. A stubborn resistance, however, was made by the Utes and the battle lasted the whole day through. The latter placed all the captured and pappooses in the camp in the caves belonging to the tribe and directed them to proceed to the center of the lake to wait the issue of the fight. As the day wore on, however, the skies became overcast, a furious storm arose, and one by one the frail bark were wrecked, until out of the whole number of frightened women and children not a soul remained. The Utes reined in the six secure warriors, and the lake but few escaped to the distant west. The victors, flushed with their victory, returned to their beloved plains and were never afterward troubled by these dreaded enemies.

Since the day of the battle the place has ever been regarded by the Indians as HAUNTED BY THE SPIRITS of those who reside there, the sloughing of the wind as it moans through the tall pines around the lake being, in a superstitious mind of these sons of the forest, the cries and shrieks of the women and children drowned or that fatal day. Recent events would seem to lend some color to the Indian theory that an uncanny spell covers over the place, and Grand Lake, with all its natural beauties of mountain and lake will ever carry with it the memory of the bloody deeds and scenes of carnage, which will repel for a long time any idea of a rapid settlement of the country.

JUDICIAL OPINIONS. The Latest Decisions of the Supreme Court of Nebraska.

Scates vs. Paine. Motion for rehearing denied.
Kellough vs. Lavender. Submitted.
McNee vs. Sewell. Submitted.
Hawley vs. Robison. Error from Dodge county. Affirmed. Opinion by Cobb.
1. Upon hearing in this court, in a case originating before a justice of the peace and taken to the district court by petition in error, an objection as to the sufficiency of the bill of exceptions taken before the justice of the peace in the district court, but raised for the first time in this court, will not be considered.
2. The statutory notice to leave the premises, required to be given in an action of forcible entry (detention) against a tenant holding over his term, may be served as well before as after the expiration of the term. Lentz vs. Herchel, 20 Ohio S. R. 324.
3. Where a paper is shown to have been destroyed, it is not necessary to prove that it has been searched for, as a foundation for the introduction of parol testimony of its contents.
Wyrnich vs. Hobbins. Error from

Gage county. Reversed. Opinion by Cobb, J.
Promissory note in the following form: "BETTER, N. E., June 27, 1878, On or before the first day of January, 1880, we promise to pay to the order of P. Weyrich & Co., one hundred dollars with interest at ten per cent from date, until maturity, the principal to draw interest at the rate of 24 per cent per annum from maturity, until paid, as compensation and damages for non-payment thereof."

Held in an action thereon that the note was not usurious on its face, the 24 per cent being construed as a penalty and the plaintiff's relief entitled to recover interest at the legal rate. See Conrad vs. Gibben, 29 Iowa R. 120.

Pauko vs. Irwin. Error from One county. Dismissed. Opinion by Lake, Ch. J.
The title to the land in controversy having been obtained by the plaintiff in error through a conveyance from the defendant, in whom it was found to be by the judgment sought to have reversed, to the end that the litigation may cease, and each party left secure in his rights, it is ordered that the petition in error be dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff in error.

Ashton & Smith vs. Jones et al. From Seward county. Affirmed. Opinion by Lake, Ch. J.
1. The assignor of property assigned for the benefit of creditors generally has no such interest in the distribution as will enable him to maintain an action for an injunction to restrain its appropriation by a single creditor through proceedings in attachment.
2. To such an action the assignee has no right on his own motion to come in as a defendant.
3. A defendant in an attachment suit cannot have the aid of equity to prevent a sale of the attached property under an order of the court on the ground that would have been equally available to him in that suit.

RIPENING RICHES.
Crop Reports Rapidly Improving Under Favorable Weather.

Additional Reports From Several Counties in Iowa and Nebraska.

IOWA.
Correspondence of the Bee.

GENEARLY GOOD.
PERSIA, July 11.—The wheat crop shows from 12 to 20 bushels per acre if we have no storms to lodge the rank places on low lands which is feared might damage it to a considerable extent. Corn shows from one to two-thirds crop, and with good weather may do better. Grass is excellent. With good weather some pieces of wheat will be cut next week. Small grain of all kinds is good.

NEVER BETTER.
DOW CITY, July 11.—Wheat prospects never better. Should the weather remain dry in the next three weeks we shall have a heavy crop of spring wheat in this section. Oats, prospect for a full crop. Good grass and pasturage A No. 1. Potatoes, all kinds of root and garden crops A No. 1. Corn, small but of a good healthy color and stout; backward for the time of the year; weeds have got a big start on account of the wet and cold weather in the last two months. We have had warm dry weather in the last week. Farmers are improving every hour, and are greatly encouraged at the favorable change in the weather. Indications now are for a reasonably good crop of corn here.

AN AVERAGE CROP.
EARLEIN, July 11.—Weather very warm and dry now for a few days. Excessive rains during the season and bad seed corn have caused corn to be very backward and small at this time of the season, however, a warm weather of a few days now have given it a good start and it is growing very rapidly now. There is a general dissatisfaction among farmers and an impression that we would have no corn this year. Our opinion is different. During a residence of thirty years in western Iowa we have seen corn crops as late as July 1st and make a yield of 50 bushels of well matured corn. Why can we not have it again? Our opinion is solid yet for a fair average crop of corn, and we base this assertion on the fact that during our thirty years' residence in the west we have seen all kinds of weather, favorable and unfavorable, late and early springs, grasshoppers and other insects, but have not yet seen fail a corn crop. As to small grain, the prospects are never better, and wheat especially promises an abundant harvest. All kinds of crops are perfectly healthy and free from insects; even the dreaded potato bug has not yet made its appearance in these parts, while potatoes are rank and high in bloom.

YALL, Cedar Co., Iowa, July 11.—Grain of all kinds have done very well the week past. Corn has been pretty well cultivated and is growing rapidly. Wheat has been propitious, and with a continuance of the same, the outlook is favorable.

NEBRASKA.
POLK COUNTY.
OSCEOLA, Neb., July 11.—Corn—one-fourth larger average than ever before; condition, a few pieces weedy; crop is "as good as ever known." Oats—fifty per cent greater average than ever before; condition—very, the best, very few fallen. Wheat—one-half of previous average; fine condition. Rye—average crop (never large); condition extra fine; begin harvest soon. Barley—average crop; condition as fine as ever seen. Flax—average acreage (not large); condition very fine. Potatoes—good acreage, no bugs until very late; condition as fine as ever seen. Fruit—good prospect, trees young, cherries ripe. Almost no sign of chinch bugs or grasshoppers. Grass and gardens excellent.

GIBBON, Neb., July 11.—The crop prospect for this county is very promising; never was it any better than now. The rain we had Friday last has made small grains a sure crop and corn is looking well and farmers are happy.

CLAY COUNTY.
CLAY CENTER, July 11.—The finest crops of all kinds are now on exhibition in Clay county. Harvest has commenced in earnest. The farmers are happy. Merchants are overhauling their year's accounts, hoping for a "square up" this fall. The implement men are trying to see which can tell the biggest in regard to the good qualities of their machines. They forget that divine injunction, "Thou shalt not lie," and even for the time being forget their God. Are having fine, dry weather, suitable for harvest, and hope it may continue until the crops are safely garnered.

STOPPING STOCK. England Prohibits the Importation of American Live Cattle.

A Hot Debate in the Commons.

A BLOW AT AMERICA.

LONDON, July 11.—Henry Chaplin, conservative, moved that in view of the prevalence of foot and mouth disease, the importation of live cattle should not in the future be permitted from countries whose preventive laws on the sanitary condition of those cattle did not offer reasonable security against the extension of the disease. He argued that the disease was not prevalent in Scandinavia and British North America, and that these countries offered a large supply. The motion he said would interfere with only four per cent of the total meat supply. The loss of cattle by disease had in a few years amounted to millions. One of the best means of insuring the meat supply was to encourage home production. Great Britain could not long rely on America for meat, as the rapid increase of the latter's population was causing the exportable surplus to become less. Mr. Mundella opposed the motion and said one-sixth of the cattle and meat supplied to Great Britain was foreign. The adoption of the motion would cause an enormous loss to consumers. Mr. Dodge said the motion meant absolute prohibition of the importation of live stock. The government was unable to agree thereto but would assent to the appointment of a select committee to enquire into the question fully of the amount of disease. An amendment in favor of such select committee was however negatived and Mr. Chaplin's motion was subsequently carried by a vote of 200 to 192 members of the government, voting with minority.
