In the police court yesterday, one party paid a fine for disturbing the peace. Five or six bootblacks were found sleeping in a barn and were run in. They were discharged by Judge Anderson. One old separatist of Judge Anderson was arrested for drunkenness. He was before the same official four days ago. On Saturday evening the family friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Donohoe gave them a surprise party, it being their fifth anniversary. Under the superintendence of Charles Koster the Grand Union ticket office of the Missouri Pacific and Washburn road is being beautifully papered. The handsome panel is of olive and crimson velvet, on which is depicted a fine hand-painted picture of the St. Louis bridge. On the right side is the hand of providence grasping the sprig of acacia, representing F. K. Moore, the city ticket agent, and on the left is a cannon discharging a big load of hos and marked Joe Teahon. The ingenuity of the artist and the appropriateness of the inscriptions are unexcelled.

THE STATE FAIR. What is Douglas County Doing to Hold Her Place.

An Effort to Give her an Equal Showing With the Rest of the State. A committee has been appointed to visit our citizens to solicit funds for the erection of a suitable building for the display of the agricultural products of Douglas county at the coming state fair. What success the committee has had we do not know. Of one thing we must never rest content, and that is to see Washington, Burt and other counties excel ours in their display of the products of the soil. In this connection we think that not only the citizens of Omaha but every farmer in Douglas county ought to take hold and encourage the committee with liberal and immediate subscriptions. In this, the farmers more than all others have a vital interest; as the cultivation of the untilled lands of the country will benefit them, fully as much, if not more, than it will the business men of Omaha, in the increased value of their lands. But our business men have also a great interest in the rapid development of the country. With settlers coming in, opening new farms and improving old ones, towns and villages will spring up all around us, and our wholesale and retail dealers will feel a corresponding benefit. As the coming fair promises to be the largest ever held in the state, reason, judgment and prudence alike dictate to our business men and farmers that the display of the products of Douglas county should be among the very best on the grounds.

GOOD WORK. Report of the Relief Department of the Omaha City Mission for the Quarter Ending June 30, 1883.

During the quarter we have received from Mr. Kuntz, six barrels of vegetables; Mrs. Dewey, flour and clothing; Mrs. Merrill, book and clothing; Miss Pundt, clothing; Mrs. Frost, shoes and clothing; Mrs. Gibson, clothing; Mrs. Jardine, clothing; Mrs. Doan, washing machine; Mrs. Hill, clothing and Mrs. James, shoes. During the last three months twenty-five children have been supplied with clothing, thus enabling them to attend the Sunday school. Two sick women, strangers in the city, were cared for over night. One family was given three dollars and forty cents ($3.40), also a lunch, to enable them to go to Lincoln. Mr. Houck was paid two dollars ($2.00) to take a man to Florence to bury him. In a small sum we have given out two dollars and fifty cents. Money is given only in cases of necessity. The County Commissioners kindly aided in sending two families to distant points east. There have been over forty families visited during the quarter. The expenditures of "the relief" department amount to twenty-nine ($29.20) dollars and twenty cents. It is the hope of those most interested in the department, that during the coming three months, a "home" may be established where the poor helpless women and children may have the assurance that there is one place at least in this growing city whose doors always stand open to receive them. Some generous friends of the mission will procure us a suitable lot, we are quite sure of the building. Mrs. J. B. JARDINE, Superintendent. MARY B. GOODMAN, Secretary.

A GAME OF BULLDOZE.

The Sandstone Nine and Injury to Insult. By Pigeonholing the Paving Contracts for Harney and Sixteenth Streets.

It is well known that the council, some weeks ago, ordered the Mayor and Board of Public Works to enter into contracts for paving Sixteenth and Harney streets, with the Barber Asphalt Company. This was done in compliance with the petitions filed by a majority of the property owners abutting on those two streets. The contracts were duly signed by the Mayor, forwarded to Barber & Co., and returned with a $300,000 bond given by sureties who each qualified to the amount for which they obligate themselves. The contract and accompanying bond reached the city last week, on the day or day previous to the injunction proceedings, for the paving of Eleventh and Fifteenth streets. Mr. Grant, agent of the Barber Asphalt company, desiring to push his work in order to complete it before the opening of the state fair, had a power of attorney signed by all of the councilmen except Mr. Kaufmann, giving their approval to the contract as executed. This was regarded by Mr. Grant as a guarantee that the formal acceptance of the bond was assured. Tuesday night after the journal had been received by the council, a communication was received by the council, signed by James Creighton chairman of the Board of Public Works, returning the contract for the paving of 16th and Harney streets, as executed by both the contracting parties. Mr. Hascall jumped up and moved that the communication and the contracts be referred to the committee on Public Property and Improvements. Mr. Frank Austin to inquire what was meant and intended by such an extraordinary procedure. The council had let the contract, it was executed in due form and there was no excuse for further delaying the needed work. Hascall, in support of the motion, said that a suit was now pending, asking an injunction to prohibit the paving of the Fifteenth street. One of the main points made by the attorneys for the petitioners is that there is an overlap in the appropriation and the contract should not be let in excess of the appropriation. He proposed to hold these contracts for Sixteenth and Harney until this matter was disposed of by the courts, so that the charge of overlap could not be sustained. Mr. Behm moved that the contracts be referred to the committee on streets and grades, who had charge of the paving question. Mr. Dunham favored the immediate approval of the contract, because it was important that Sixteenth street should be paved before the state fair. Mr. Redfield thought that this movement exhibited fractious opposition on the part of certain councilmen, and looked as if they wanted to bluff and bulldoze the property owners. He thought the talk of overlap sounded rather strange now, when it was remembered that councilman a few days ago hooted at his protest against overlap, there was no danger of overlap, why not pave 16th street at once, to accommodate the state fair travel, and let Harney go for a week or two. Hascall said there was no fractious opposition. He had as much interest in the state fair as the member from the third. He wanted 16th street paved in due time but an overlap is charged by the parties in the suit and therefore he favored that no contract be let until that suit is finally disposed of. The charge that he acted in defiance of petitions is untrue. The fact was 16th street did not have a majority in their petition for asphalt, according to the decision of the city attorney, but they knew that asphalt was a good pavement for light traffic streets and they awarded the contract to the Barber Co. Other streets were not so well suited to asphalt and they had given the contract for sandstone and granite. Mr. Leeder favored Behm's motion to refer to the committee on streets and grades. Mr. McGuckin said Harney street should have preference over 16th, but he was in favor of Hascall's motion to defer the whole matter. Behm favored paving Sixteenth street immediately. There are 300 idle working men in town who might as well be set to work. Beside that the improvement would set thousands of dollars in currency among the business men of Omaha. McGuckin interrupted by saying that asphalt didn't employ anybody except a few dorkies from Washington. Hascall declared there would be work for every idle man in the city in a few days, when the contracts for grading are let. He rejoiced that these injunction suits were brought. It was the duty of the command of a division of the Thirtieth of the Rappahannock river. The following June he was placed in command of Corinth. During the months of August and September he participated in the operations of General Grant as commander of the left wing of the army. For gallant and meritorious services in the battle of Fort Fisher, Mississippi, he was made brevet colonel on the 19th of September, 1862, and was placed in command of the district of Jackson, Tenn. He retained the command during the month of September. On October 3d he was engaged in the battle of the Hatchie river, in which he was severely wounded. A sick leave of absence was granted him until November 24th, when he returned to his command and was made a member of the commission to investigate Gen. Buell's campaign in Kentucky and Tennessee. At the expiration of the service of the commission he was given the command of West Point, Va. He was transferred on June 18th to the command of the Thirtieth army corps and was engaged in the siege of Vicksburg from June 18th to July 4th. On July 16th he took part in the assault which terminated in the capture of Jackson, Miss. Following the capitulation he was with the army of West Louisiana until October 28th, when he was excused for sickness and remained absent until the last of December. On January 8th, 1864, he was made commander of the Thirtieth corps of the army of the Gulf. He was transferred on April 6th to the command of the troops that had assembled at Grafton, Webster and Beverly, Va. From July 21 to Sept. 30 he was in command of the eighteenth corps, and participated in the operations before Richmond. His services ended with a severe wound received in the assault and capture of Fort Harrison. For his gallant services at Fort Harrison he received, on March 13, 1865, the commissions of brevet brigadier general of the United States army and brevet major general of ORD'S OBITUARY.

Death of the Former Commander of This Department. An Interesting Sketch of His Life and Services.

The news of the death of General E. O. C. Ord, formerly commander of the Department of the Platte, was received in this city with profound sorrow, and a brief sketch of his career, furnished us by a former army officer will be read with great interest by all. General Ord was born in Allegheny county, Maryland, in 1818. His military career began 17 years later, when he was appointed to represent the District of Columbia at the United States Military academy at West Point. He graduated from the institution with distinction on July 1, 1835, and was at once promoted to the rank of second lieutenant of the Third artillery. Soon after his appointment his command was sent to Florida, where he was engaged in the war against the Seminole Indians in the battles of the Everglades, and in the capture of the first Seminole chief of his company. After the capitulation of the Indians he was active in the Third artillery. The next year was spent in the garrison of Fort McHenry. He entered the service of the coast survey department November 20, 1845, and remained until May 24 of the succeeding year, when he was transferred to the recruiting service, and soon after was sent on a voyage to California, which was then the cause of universal excitement on account of the discovery of gold. He was inactive until 1847, when the war with Mexico broke out. His command guarded the interests of his country in Southern California. Toward the close of the Mexican war he was in the garrisons of Monterey and Fort Independence, and at the latter place was made captain of his command on September 7, 1850. He was again transferred to the service of the coast survey on December 30, 1852, and remained until March 29, 1855, when he was sent back to the garrison at Fort Cal. He had been at the fort but a short time when he was ordered, with his command, on the Yokohama expedition. He returned to the garrison during the succeeding year, but was soon again in the active service of the frontier, leading his command on the Rogue river expedition, and being the principal officer at the battle of the Macdonoughy village on March 26, and in the assault at Chetcoo creek on the 28th of the following month. On his return from the expedition he entered the garrison at Benicia, and remained for one year, when he returned to active service on the frontier, with his headquarters at Fort Miller, Cal. He participated in the Spokane expedition, and was engaged in the battles of the Four Lakes on September 1, 1858, Spokane plains, September 5, Spokane river, September 8. On his return from the expedition he was transferred to Fort Monroe as a teacher in the school of artillery practice. While stationed at the fort he had the honor to be invited to participate in the part in an expedition to suppress the John Brown insurrection. He then remained a member of the garrison at the fortress until early in 1861, when he returned to frontier duty, with headquarters at Fort Vancouver, Washington territory. Transfers to the garrison at Benicia and San Francisco followed in quick succession, and he was the latter, when the southern states rebelled. He entered the service on September 14, 1861, as brigadier general of volunteers, in command of the brigade of the Army of the Potomac, which formed the entire right and guarded Washington City. He was commissioned major general of volunteers on the 21st of November, 1861, and took part in the battle of Drainesville, West Virginia, on December 20, as commander of the engaged troops. For his gallant and meritorious services he was at once made brevet lieutenant colonel, and on May 2, 1862, he was commissioned major general of volunteers. He was detached to the command of a division of the Thirtieth of the Rappahannock river. The following June he was placed in command of Corinth. During the months of August and September he participated in the operations of General Grant as commander of the left wing of the army.
