LOCAL BREVITIES.

Additional Details of the Arrest

The "Pioneer Press" Disputes the Honor of the Capture.

Since publishing the first news of the capture of the murderer Shears, alias Shitto, in Saturday's paper the following additional particulars have been learned:

Sheriff Miller has been on a still hunt after Shears ever since the morning of the murder, now twenty-three days ago and has spared neither exertion, time nor money to secure the murderer. And Pat Power's Captures One of the Number.

About 1 o'clock yesterday morning as Block Watchman Powers was passing down the alley between Farnam and Harney, 10th and 11th, he saw that the gate leading into the yard back of Councilman McGuckin's saloon was standing open, a very unusual thing.

Hardly had he noted this when he heard voices on the inside of the yard and heard one fellow say to another "Don't make so much noise or somebody will hear us!"

"What the h-l are you doing in there?" shouted the officer. Upon this two men ran hastily out of the gate and declined a peremptory invarranted.

The man on the inside had forced the door of the store room where the cigars are kept and had handed out six boxes of these, which were dropped by his pals as they fled, and recovered. He had next gone into the bar room and passed out a bottle > of whiskey, as a passing refreshment for the outsiders. With a chisel, which was apparently all the tools the thieves had, one of the drawers in the side board was forced partly open, and it must have been at this juncture that, the officer arrived and interrupted further proceedings. A few dollars in change, left in a box on the counter, was the sum total gotten away with. A $12 bill was lying in a wine glases above the money drawer, that escaped notice as no light was used, and ih the money drawer was over $100 in a pocketbook.

Next morning Mr. McGuckin went up to the jail to see his midnight caller and was dumbfounded to recognize in him a young man who had been working for him a short time before and was discharged for worthlessness. The man's name was John Rooney, and it appears that he was suspected of not being over honest while he was employed at the place. He stayed just long enough to get the lay of the land thoroughly and hence worked intelligently, knowing just where to lay his hands on every article. He was rather bold and saucy in his talk to Mr. McGuckin yesterday, and did not give his companions away, although it is supposed they can be

It is a curious fact that a burglary cannot be committed on a saloen or Rooney would go over the road sure. The stat-utes in chapter 8, page 730, old edition, specifies what houses can be burglarized. but singularly omits to name saloons, and it has been held by the courts that breaking into a saloon does not constitute a burglary. Neither can a burglary be committed by day time, and the only punishment in such instances is when grand larceny is proven. It is doubtful, therefore, if anything more can be given to Rooney than a term for petit larceny.

Hall was very comfortably filled with ladie and gentlemen who had assembled together to do honor to the entertainment gotten up under the auspices of prominent members of the Danish Lutheran church, the object being to raise funds necessary for the improvement of the general financial condition of the church. As was previously announced it was to be an ice cream festival but several new and pleasing features were introduced which added immeasurably to the pleasure of all who were fortunate enough to be present. At the moment when the reporter put in an appearance the guests were sitting around the room whiling away the time in social chit-chat; the older members recalling incidents and accidents that had occurred in the land of their birth across the sea, while the young men entertained the young ladies with whispering sweet nothings, evidently doing their best to captivate the hearts of their fair listeners. A DAMP DAY.

A Heavy Fall of Rain Sunday After-

Yesterday was a bad day for pleasure seekers and spoiled several projected picnics, the attendance at the park and the corner stone laying in the evening.

The morning opened up pleasant enough, but a little after noon a mist be gan to fall, then drops, which increased in size as the day wore on, until they seemed as big as omnibusses. People were driven in off the streets and a perfect flood of water poured down Farnam and Douglas, washing out some in places and probably flooding cellars along the route. It was one of the steadiest and heaviest rains of the season and contrary to custom came from the east. It is reported as extending south as far as Atchison and probably will go right across the state. It was still raining at midnight, but was growing colder and a stiff breeze blowing.
