

THE DAILY BEE. COUNCIL BLUFFS.

Friday Morning, August 10. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: By Carrier 30 cents per week...

MINOR MENTION.

See Joseph Reiter's fall goods. Cheap Railroad Tickets at Bushnell's. More poll tax cases are to be started to-day.

A man named McComb was yesterday in court on a charge of disturbing the peace, but was discharged. Col. Abbott has instituted another post of the G. A. R., this being at Henderson, it starting out with twenty-three members.

Nugent & Smith come before the public in a new advertisement of their fashionable tailoring establishment. See it in another column. Married, August 7, by the missionary, Peter Belzer, at his residence No. 110 Glen avenue, Mr. August Dannitz and Miss Maggie Lewis, both of Imogene, Fremont county, Iowa.

The case brought against William Andrews, by one Rummels, who charged him with assaulting him, has been dropped, the difficulty having been adjusted between themselves some way. Elsewhere in this issue will be noticed the new advertisement of the Siloam springs. Those who want to get health or to keep it should pay particular attention to the inducements there offered.

The Blackett case was called up again yesterday and of course continued until 4 o'clock this afternoon. This makes twelve continuances, besides other sorts of changes and delays. How long, oh law, how long!

Mary Hecker was yesterday brought before the bar on a charge of assault. It appears that some little girls had been bothering her until she lost all patience, and taking a lath she proceeded to chastise them. She was fined $5 and costs.

The long prolonged powder house cases are now dropped, the company having got other ground, and the new location being far enough away from those who have been afraid them, so that they will not grumble. Judge Looftbourrow is to be on hand promptly at the opening of the circuit court Monday morning. The cases for the east end of the county are to be set for trial first, so as to convenience the parties from that vicinity and the attorneys.

There was a pleasant social reception last evening at the home of A. B. Walker, tendered by H. S. De Forest and wife, which gave their many old friends a chance to meet them and greet them. The evening was a very enjoyable one in all respects. A Dayton, O., man was here yesterday showing up to the fire department men harness devices for quick hitching. Those now in use by the hook and ladder made him open his eyes, however, a trial hitch being had for his benefit. He had a good thing himself, but he frankly admitted that theirs was almost as good.

Work is progressing well on the cutting down of Pierce street from Glen avenue to Bluff street. The lots, too, are being cut down on the north side of the street preparatory to the building of Epeneter's cornice factory. S. S. Keller, too, is cutting down preparatory to some more building, but it may not be done, though, until another season. In another column appears a cut of the Empkie hardware company's building on Main street. Council Bluffs may well feel proud of having so extensive an establishment in that line, its trade reaching out over a wide extent of territory, east, west, north and south, and it taking acknowledged rank as one of the largest and best wholesale houses in the west.

A large number of people visited the residence of Mr. G. B. Taylor at 706 Lindsey street last evening to view the night blooming cerasus plant which was in bloom last night, and it was well worth the trouble of a visit. The plant is five years old and blooms once a year, always at night. Last year it blossomed on the 17th of August. This is supposed to be the only plant of the kind in this vicinity.

The picnic to be given to-morrow by the Royal Arcanum promises to be an unusually happy event. The Royals of Omaha are to be over, and a general reunion of members, invited friends and ladies, of course, will take place. The site chosen for the festivities is Glendale, a beautiful spot, not far from Broadway, and if the hickie weather has a naughty freak, the company will adjourn to the Royal Arcanum hall and have a happy time anyway.

Officer Morse is out of patience because so much attention has been paid to the stories told about him by the man Church. He cites Chief Field and Deputy U. S. Marshal McCrory to substantiate his innocence in the matter, and to confirm his statement to the effect that the envelope which Church claimed to contain the money, was properly turned over with other effects at police headquarters, and in the presence of witnesses, before Morse started with Church for the jail, so that the latter could not have been robbed of it on the way there.

The normal institute closed yesterday. The attendance reached 214, the highest ever reached, and the institution has in all respects been an unprecedented success. The examination of teachers for certificates will continue through to-day, and then the teachers will all scatter for home. This institute has been provided with experienced instructors, and if the teachers put in practical use half the information and suggestions gained, the schools of Pottawattamie county will be greatly improved the coming year.

Special Deputy E. Rosecrans was at Omaha Wednesday night to institute a grove there of the Ancient Order of Druids. He says the grove starts up with thirty members, and big prospects for growth. Personally, he says, he had an immense time, and will never forget the kindly treatment and beautiful hospitality shown him. J. D. Nicholson, who accompanied him and assisted him in the like treatment shown him. Mr. Rosecrans was clothed with special authority from the Grand Grove, though the Noble Grand Arch, Charles Weber, of Albany, N. Y., and the Grand Secretary, H. Freudenthal, to plant this new grove over the river. The order is not only going westward, but is growing thicker all along the line. The new grove in Omaha is a German one, and the ritual was carried out in that language. Already the charter members have applications from about twenty-five more who desire to join the order there.

Homer, the China-man, 23 Main st. ANOTHER LYNCHER.

He Gives Expression to Altogether Different Feelings About Hanging Hardy.

Since the hanging of Hardy, the Polk City murderer, there has been an alleged confession from one of the crowd concerned in the hanging. In that letter, besides the details given, there was the expression of satisfaction at the work done. Now comes another one of the men concerned in the affair, and gives another shade of feeling entirely. He says:

Believing from the letter published and other matter leaking out that the names of our whole company will soon come to the surface, I desire to correct that letter which should never have been written. At Chaburn's mill, where we left three men in charge of the horses, two of us tried to persuade the company that we had better go back and let the law take its course, but the most of us being half drunk we were not in a condition to reason, and the argument used was that no evidence could be produced to prove ever shot any one. I then determined that if I could stop the murder of Hardy at any time I would do so. As to the resistance of the jailer and his wife I shall say nothing and wait for future developments. Suffice it to say it was not necessary to point a revolver at him or any of his family, and Mr. Hardy was obtained without the least trouble. He tried to reason with the ruffians but was slapped in the mouth and a handkerchief tied so tight over his mouth I thought he would choke before we reached the bridge. Removing the handkerchief at the bridge, he said: "Gentlemen, I am willing to die, but never attempted to kill any one, nor never could." Again he was slapped in the mouth, which made him show anger for the first time, and will account for his teeth being set so firmly together. He was quickly hung from the bridge with a three-eighths halter rope, which held him while suffering all humanity could suffer, about two minutes, then fell to the water and became a target for all who enjoyed the sport. I turned away sick at heart and troubled in conscience, and I fully believe that the majority of the lynchers were as heartless, and far more so, than the man whom they murdered. Signed, ONE WHO WAS IN THE LINE WITH MADDY WHEN SHOT.

J. W. Rodefer having been elected secretary and treasurer of the Mercantile Loan, Trust and Improvement company of Council Bluffs, has accepted the position and assumed the management of the company's business. The following named persons are on the board of directors: T. A. Kirkland, C. S. Lefferts, J. W. Rodefer, I. A. Miller, E. L. Shugart, T. A. Kirkland, President.

LET LOOSE.

Young Eakman Released by a Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Yesterday afternoon the young man, or rather boy, Eakman, who was held to the grand jury for breaking open a car on the Rock Island road, was brought before Judge Aylesworth on a writ of habeas corpus. Mr. Earhart and County Attorney Hight appeared for the state and John Baird assisted by Charles Harle for the prisoner. There was a close struggle over legal points, the question finally turning on the point as to whether there was any evidence to show that it was Eakman's intention to commit larceny, when he broke into the car. The defendant claimed that he was in the car for the purpose of stealing a ride home to his mother, and denied breaking the car open. The car was filled with big sacks of wool, which he could not steal very easy. The court held that while the evidence showed probably that he did break the car open there was no evidence showing the intent of the prisoner to be that of larceny. He also held that the breaking into a car even, for the purpose of stealing a ride, was not a crime under that statute, and the lawyers were unable to show any statute that made it a felony. He therefore discharged Eakman and Attorney Baird, who has stuck to the boy's case through thick and thin, and who made an extra strong argument in his behalf, was of course duly joyous at the result.

THE DAYS OF OUR YOUTH.

Blue Springs (Neb.) Motor. And now the small boy holds up two fingers to his chum and they seek the river for a swim. As only two garments and a single suspender compose his wardrobe he is unrolled and adrift in less time than a man can possibly untie his necktie. We sigh for the days of our youth when we think of it. When he scrambles back to shore he finds one suspender done up in a hopeless complication of hard knots, which he tries to untie with his teeth, while the other urchin yells "chaw beef" at him from a safe distance. Then he feels his ears full of water and tries to drain them by jumping up and coming down stiff-legged with his head awry. After doing this till he jars out half his teeth and loosens his hair at the roots, he desists and renews his attack upon the knotted suspender; the knots remaining intact, he scornfully throws it away and navigates homeward via the back alley, whistling bravely, with his hands in his pockets to keep up his pants. The next chapter of our tale is entitled: "The Woodshed Matinee; or, The Cruel Parent and the Trunk-strap."

A Grand Excursion.

The Sioux City route has arranged for an excursion from Council Bluffs and Omaha to Spirit Lake, Friday, August 17, the fare to be only $8 for the round trip, and tickets good for ten days. Spirit Lake is a wonderful summer resort, and those who want to camp out can find a better place, while hotel accommodations are excellent for those desiring. Those here who desire information in detail can get it of H. C.

Cheyney, the Southwestern passenger agent, whose office is in Shugart's block.

Let Them Investigate.

There are some rather serious reports about the conduct of some of the police officers, and if half of what is currently told up and down the streets be true there is an excellent opportunity for a reformation of the force. In any event, there should be some sort of action taken to either "down" those statements, or sift out whatever truth there may be to them. The Bee does not believe in throwing the blame upon all officers for the conduct of any one, but there should be names and facts. Just now there are some statements being made current about a little pair of Officer Warner's the other evening, parties claiming to know to the facts, asserting that he had been carrying a little too long at the cup, or was under some other undue influence, and that he had a queer difficulty with another colored man named Johnson. It is stated that officer Warner tried to arrest Johnson, and a woman who was with him, as they were walking on the streets, and that Johnson was too much for him and got him down and took his revolver away from him, and afterwards turned it over to officer Brooks. If any such affair took place as described, and there was any occasion to arrest Johnson, officer Warner, though defeated, in the first attempt, should have not let the matter drop there. If the officer was to blame then there should be some action taken as regards him. Officer Warner should in view of the statements made call for an investigation, if he is wrongly accused. If not wrongly accused he should lay aside his star and quietly step off the force. The city cannot afford to have officers who get into drunken scrapes, and officers who do not get into such scrapes cannot afford to have such charges openly made.
