MILITARY MATTERS.
The Budget for the Department of the Plate.
Latest Orders Issued From the Army Headquarters.
On the recommendation of Captain J. P. Kintall, assistant surgeon, concurred in by the medical director of the department, Commissary - Sergeant John Powers, now at Fort Sidney, Neb., will proceed to Fort Washakie, Wyo., for medical treatment at that post.
A statement of his case will be forwarded by the medical officer at Fort Sidney, Neb., to the medical officer at Fort Washakie, Wyo., through the proper channels.
Being satisfied, by facts that have come to his knowledge since the revision of the court martial proceedings in the case of military convict John R. Meigs, late private, Company D, 7th Infantry, that grave injustice has been done him, the department commander hereby remits the unexpired portion of his sentence. He believes that what he has already suffered, is an adequate punishment for the drunkenness, debauchery, and absence from duty, which he himself confessed.

SARATOGA DOINGS.
The Success of the Union Sunday School Picnic—The School Racket.
SARATOGA, AUG. 23rd, 1883.
At the special school meeting, Tuesday evening, the school board was instructed to hire an assistant teacher for the coming session, for which $300 in bonds was voted. Nothing was done as regards the retention of Principal Bailey, as the contract was signed some time since. It was stated, however, that the reason the school was not a larger attendance at the last session of the school under Bailey's management was that the parents did not think their children would receive the proper attention. The attendance for the last session was shown to average forty-seven, the lowest for years, while the number of children in the school district is larger than ever. It was also stated that persons were induced to sign the petition circulated by Bailey for an assistant on the statement that there were sufficient funds, while Treasurer Elton stated that there were not. There was no bad blood shown except in a characteristic speech by the sage of Saratoga in which he couched on everything but the important one of this school racket.
The Union Sunday school scholars and officers, with their friends, to the number of about one hundred and fifty, passed a splendid day at Pries' Lake on Wednesday. It was a gay throng and an imposing procession with its four-in-hands and gaily decked horses, of which there were nearly fifty put at the service of the children, and created quite a sensation. The balloon ascension was the event of the day and was a grand success, as was the entire picnic.
Nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the occasion, except perhaps the accidental baptism of one of our young men, without serious results however; as he was seen at business this morning. We are indebted to the efficient committee in charge for the pleasure of the occasion. James H. Conrad returned Tuesday from the west, after an absence of more than a year, in which time he has been engaged on the Oregon Short Line. He will enter the senior class of the state university in September.

MADE HAPPY AT ALTAR
Marriage of Miss Juliet Goldberg and Mr. David Wise—An Interesting Ceremony.
Chicago Herald, 22.
Mr. David Wise, of Lincoln, Neb., and Miss Juliet Goldberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Goldberg, of 3415 Wabash avenue, were married at 7 o'clock last evening at Martine's South Side dancing hall. The ceremony was performed according to the Jewish form by Rabbi E. G. Hiral, and consisted simply of a wedding oration followed by the vows and ring. The bridal party was very large, containing seven bridesmaids, seven groomsmen, the father and mother of both bride and groom, two flower girls, and the bride and groom themselves. They all moved down the center of the hall, from the main entrance to the further end, where the men formed a line on one side, and the women on the other, and the bride couple, passing between, took their stand before an arch of flowers bearing their nuptials at the keystone. Beneath it stood the Rabbi. During the ceremony the groom's mother, who had been ill, was taken with a fainting spell, and moved to one side. It did not interfere with the proceedings, and she was soon restored. The ceremony being over, the bride couple and their parents received congratulations.
The bride's dress was of broad white satin, with court train, and trimmed with passanerie on the front and sleeves. She wore diamond ear-rings and the tra-

A PROMISING BUSINESS.
Both Politically and Generally, Which Columbus is Enjoying at Present.
A Few Inside Points on the Methods of the Posts in Platte.
Correspondence of this item.
COLUMBUS, Neb., August 18, 1883.—I note many improvements in this city since my last visit here, notably in the line of new and substantial dwellings which are being built in every part of the city, indicating a prosperous condition of affairs, and inquiry among the business men calls out the fact that business is constantly on the increase, and while no one is claiming any thing like a "boom" yet the merchants interlocked all claim to be doing a more prosperous business than ever before, and as an evidence of this I notice that business houses, vacant when I was here last, are now all occupied, and dwellings "to rent" cannot be found. These things, together with its geographical location and railroad facilities, assure me that Columbus has a promising future before her, and not so far the "dinn distance," either. A new spirit of enterprise seems to have "caught on" to her citizens. I notice a fine driving park and fair grounds, convenient to the city and daily increasing, also a base ball ground, very convenient to the city, purchased and inclosed within the last three weeks at a cost of about $1,000, where I yesterday witnessed a good game of base ball between the Keystones of Columbus, and the Wahooks, in which the latter defeated the former, having nothing to be ashamed of in their playing, as both clubs play an excellent game, and for non-professionals they are both hard to beat. They received good encouragement, as there was a crowded group to witness the game, and everybody seemed satisfied that they had got their money's worth of fun.
I am of the opinion that within a very short time there will be a furniture factory in operation, backed by men who have the means to make it a success. The building is now ready for occupation and part of the machinery here. Give her a little time and I notice that Columbus gets to the front.
I don't need to introduce you to the Columbus Journal, as it is an old timer, with the staunch and true M. K. Turner at the helm, a man that occupies the first place in the estimation of the people, but I will make you acquainted with the Democrat, under its new management, Higgins & Hensley. Mr. Hensley, I believe, was the founder of the paper, starting it some years ago as the Columbus "Era," but retired from the business about two years ago and formed a new partnership with Judge Higgins, but they say, has always regretted the separation, and he has been further convinced, finally induced his law partner, Judge Higgins, to go in with him and buy her back. Mr. Hensley is said to be a man of considerable talent in the editorial chair, being always spoken of in a very creditable manner; and Judge Higgins is spoken of as a gentleman and a scholar. About the only objection to them, so far as that they belong to a bad family, but I don't care, which in this county will probably operate in their favor, as I am told it is strictly democratic.
Talking on subjects political with a gentleman who resides here, I remarked that the appointment of Mr. Cowdry, of this city, to the deputy collectorship under G. W. Post seemed to give very general satisfaction, and very fittingly mentioned by the local papers as a selection of merit. My companion smiled a significant smile and said that it might look that way to a man up a tree, but when he gets down close to the ground and watches the thing a little, you will see that instead of going north, as it seems to be, it is actually moving south. As usual with men seeking information, I professed profound ignorance as to my companion's meaning, and intimated that a little light upon the subject would be "haikfully received and be kept a voluntary secret." "Oh," he said, "there is no secret about it, and the thing is very transparent. While I am not suggesting," said he, "that Mr. Cowdry will not do a very good thing for us, so we just need internal revenue is concerned, yet his merits had nothing to do with the appointment, and it clearly appears that it was a forced loan, and not a voluntary contribution, and my informant G. W. Post is too shrewd a politician to select a man for that position who was the head and front of the Valentine party in a county where we just got out one hundred votes out of nine hundred, unless there was something back of it, that kind of popularity don't get popular favors, you know."
As that looked like "straight goods," I concluded that my informant was on the inside, and asked him how the thing came about. Why, you know, said he, B. C. M. and his assistants, J. W. Daves, appointed its deputy collector, and now the judge of this district, and now the said A. M. Post is very anxious to get the republican nomination for the same position. He thinks he has downed the formerly very popular and able prosecuting attorney of this district, M. B. Bates, and is a candidate for a judge of the supreme court, but I don't think Reeve "catches on" to that worth a cent; and then you see, continued my well informed friend, this deputy collectorship has been seeking an investment all along the line, Dodge, Colfax, and Merrick, to help A. M. out with his nomination. You have probably seen a good deal of mention of the collectorship in the newspapers of the counties mentioned." I said I guessed it had escaped my attention, as I was not a very close observer of passing events. "Well," he continued, "it was finally discovered by A. M. that the coast was not so allured clear at home as it might be; for while the republican nomination of the collectorship was doing work in the other counties, John M. MacFarland, a popular young attorney of this city, was quietly working up a delegation in the district convention to support him for prosecuting attorney, and when MacFarland starts out for anything in that line, he will come as near 'getting there' as any of the boys. Mr. Cowdry and Mr. MacFarland," continued he, "are partners in the law and collection business, and the intention is to reconcile Mac by promoting his partner, but he continued, I am not so sure that Mac is going to submit to a proposition that don't promise him $4 a day while it lasts; and perhaps throw away a golden opportunity that may never return. I infer, then, I said, that your present judge isn't very popular at home, if he is to

WON BY A POUL.
Abrupt Settlement of the Davis-Williams Racket.
San Francisco Chronicle, Aug. 18th.
Some 1100 or 1200 people gathered at Union hall last night to see Bill Davis exclamation of America, knock out Bill Williams, the colored heavy-weight champion of this coast, in four rounds, Marquis of Queensberry rules. The arrangements for the exhibition were unusually good. In place of having the bouts on the small stage, a raised platform fifteen feet square was erected in the middle of the arena, the seats being circled round in such a way that every one could easily see every movement of the contestants.
OPENING THE SHOW.
Jack Maynard and Ed Holman, a pupil of Maynard's, engaged in the first round. Holman was by far the heavier man of the two, but the science which Harry's brother possesses more than made up for the weight. The initial round was over the heavier man's look gleamed ruddy, while Maynard's looked black and white. Jack got rather a shaking tumble in the second round, and until time was called acted cautiously. In the wind-up, however, both men woke up and rattled each other bravely.
Next were introduced the plucky middle-weight Ed Hall and Joe Martell. The story of the match is richly containing. Hall indulging in a variety of monkey-shines, kept the audience in a roar and Martell clawing the air like a wild cat. But both men made a spirited show, giving and taking with energy. In the wind-up Hall had it pretty nearly his own way, belting Martell in the face at every other blow. Wind and temper were both admirable.
By way of an interlude Bill Davis' two half-Japanese sons gave a creditable exhibition of club-swinging, the younger— a boy of about six—showing himself the more dexterous of the two.
The brothers Cottle, Tom and Hugh, two long-limbed and limber young men, next amused the audience and themselves with a little fraternal stirring, with a nod in the wind-up, they were both using something lively when the two took hands. There was an intermission of a few minutes, and then came the event of the evening. A buzz arose from the audience as the two men mounted the stage. Davis coming first, and showing up as a rugged veteran, with a heavy chest, but too much under the belt; Williams following and displaying a remarkably muscled torso, a head like a bullet, and clean-shaven, snaky limbs. The preliminaries having been settled, the two men advanced to the center of the ring. Davis looking determined, and Williams hiding a nervousness under a jaunty air.
CLUMSY FIGHTING.
The fight opened with Davis making a rush upon his ebullient antagonist, Williams meeting it firmly. To the surprise of every one, however, he soon showed a remarkable lack of science, Williams throwing his arms about like a windmill and the champion bearing his age heavily and striking feebly and clumsily. Williams however, managed to keep his wind which Davis did not, but tired himself out with wild work, both going to their seats in a very groggy condition when the referee called a halt for the second round and was given the two men a still in a decidedly shaky condition, the few blows given falling anywhere. Finally Williams in one of his windmill slashes struck Davis clumsily and he fell like a lump between the ropes. Striding over him the colored slogger struck his man as he was in the very act of getting over the stage. Instantly beneath was let loose, everybody in the hall jumping to his feet and yelling "Foul!" at the top of his voice. Jordan succeeded at last in yelling louder than all the others, when he announced that it was a deliberate foul, but that he believed Williams erred through ignorance.
He cautioned the dusky bruiser that it could not be repeated, and time was called for what was supposed to be the third round.
The old man went at his work a little more sprightly than before, but the first round died out and the two began gently flubbing each other in a half-dazed condition. Williams managed to throw his arm out in some sort of a jab, and Davis went down, as much through weakness as anything else. Forgetting his dictatorial caution, Williams leaned over the fallen man and struck him. The fou was too obvious and deliberate, and though Davis lay exhausted on the floor, the fight was given him, a mid the tumultuous cheers and groans of the excited audience.

MARRIAGES WITH CHINESE.
A Bill Making Them Unlawful to be Passed in Georgia.
Special to the Commercial Gazette.
ATLANTA, Ga., August 22.—A discussion of the Chinese question has again precipitated by the marriage of one of Willie Loo Chong's friends to one of the first flowers of Caucasian womanhood. After the marriage of Willie Loo Chong, an outcast of the Wayside, distinguished himself as a legislator, chief of whom was Mr. Jordan, of Hancock, determined to break up the mixture of races, by making such marriages unlawful. A bill on the subject has already undergone preliminary readings, and will in a few days be called for final action. This made a slight commotion in the Chinese colony in Augusta, who found that immediate action was necessary. A well known legislator was called upon to perform the marriage ceremony, and upon arriving at the location, found Jim Chong, a Chinaman, and Miss Mary E. Jones, a well developed shapely-looking white woman, surrounded by many friends, among them the mother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Chong and others. After the nuptial knot was tied, congratulations were given. The bride received handsome presents, among them a $50 Chinese fan. A big dinner was spread. The groom runs a grocery store, does a good business and is making money. The courting was all done in two weeks. Mr. Jordan now expresses a determination to call up his bill and push it vigorously ere other yellow mannikins secure white-faced wives.

RUNNING THE WILD RAPIDS.
An American Schoolmaster's Adventurous Trip Down the St. Lawrence.
Lawrence.
Montreal Star.
W. J. Ballard, principal of the public school in Jamaica, Long Island, arrived in the city on Saturday evening, having run all the rapids of the St. Lawrence in a skill 17 feet long, 30 to 40 feet wide, in a conversation with a Star reporter he said: "I left Cape Vincent a week ago last Thursday with three friends. The Gallops didn't amount to anything; a child could run them, but when we struck the Long Sault we had our hands full. I can assure you, we took the south side, where the current flows in a way to make the narrowest heart quake. But we got into our boat and had an exciting time for a few minutes. We had first to dodge a whirlpool and then keep clear of the 'corkerew waves,' but we did it and came into Cornwall safe and sound.
When we struck the cedars I saw my companion looking a little anxious. Every few seconds he would say, 'Hi, hi' or 'Oh, oh,' which I interpreted 'Full your best,' and I bent to my oar, while he threw all his strength into his paddle strokes, and we swept with lightning-like rapidity through the foaming, roaring, boiling swells. My boat is one of the best of the kind and went over the awells in a beautiful manner. One moment I was on the brink of a wave looking down perpendicularly on the white face of my pilot, next moment our positions were reversed and I was in the trough of the boiling waves. We had some pretty close shavers, but muscle and skill triumphed and we came out of the rapids safely. We then ran the Cascades, swept through St. Lawrence in the most beautiful manner. But the rapids don't amount to much, however, and I would undertake to run them with a boat load of people without any pilot. Well, here I am, safe and sound at Montreal, and can look back with pleasure upon my adventurous trip down the rapids.
Last year I ran the entire length of the St. Lawrence, 630 miles, and came down the Chesapeake bay, ascended the Delaware river and thence home by Cayuga, having traveled about 1,800 miles. A pretty good way to spend a vacation, I think."
In response to a call by Judge Blatchford of the United States supreme court, and other residents of Newport, a large meeting was held at the Court's hotel, last night, to take measures for the reception of Lord Chief Justice Colclough, of England. Judge Blatchford presided. A committee was appointed to carry out the purposes of the meeting.

THE NECESSITY FOR THE SPECIALIST.
DR. H. WAGNER,
Has long been acknowledged and more so at this day than any other. The vast field of medical science is ever increasing, and the numerous branches are brought nearer and nearer to perfection, and no one man can any longer grasp them all. Hence the necessity for dividing the medical profession into specialties, and for the physician who devotes himself to the study of one specialty, to save them from worse than death, is no less a philanthropic and beneficent to his race than the surgeon or physician who by close study of his specialty, as any other branch of his profession. And the future of humanity, the way is drawing near. And the future of humanity, the way is drawing near. And the future of humanity, the way is drawing near.
DR. H. WAGNER is fully aware that there are many physicians, and some entitled to the name, who content themselves with making a class of diseases a specialty, but he has gone to know that with most persons the necessity for dividing the medical profession into specialties, and for the physician who devotes himself to the study of one specialty, to save them from worse than death, is no less a philanthropic and beneficent to his race than the surgeon or physician who by close study of his specialty, as any other branch of his profession. And the future of humanity, the way is drawing near. And the future of humanity, the way is drawing near. And the future of humanity, the way is drawing near.

A Few Reasons
Why you should try the celebrated Dr. H. Wagner's methods of cure:
1. "Dr. H. Wagner is a natural physician."
2. "The Greatest Living Physiologist."
3. "You are wonderfully benefited by your knowledge of disease and medicine."
4. "The afflicted find ready relief in your presence."
5. "Dr. H. Wagner is a regular graduate from Bellevue Hospital, New York city; has had a very extensive hospital practice, and is thoroughly posted on all branches of his beloved science, especially on chronic diseases."
6. "Dr. H. Wagner has invented a new and wonderful discovery of a specific remedy for private and sexual diseases. Virginia City, California. 'Thousands of invalids look to see Dr. H. Wagner's name on their medicine bottles.'"
7. "The long experience of a specialist should render him very successful."—Rocky Mountain News.
Plain Facts Plainly Spoken.
At one time a discussion of the secret vice was entirely avoided by the profession, and medical works but a few years ago were silent on the subject. It is now the duty of a different order, and he is aware that it is his duty—disagreeable though it may be—to handle this matter with the same frankness and plainness as he would handle any other. Young Men.
Who may be suffering from the effects of youthful follies or indiscretions will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest ever offered at the sale of suffering humanity. Dr. Wagner will guarantee to forfeit $100 for every case of seminal weakness or private disease of any kind and character which he undertakes to cure and fails to cure.
Middle Aged Men.
There are many at the age of 30 to 50 who are troubled with too frequent evacuations of the bladder, often attended by a slight stinging or burning sensation, and a weakness of the back, and in many cases the patient cannot account for it. On examining the urinary deposits a few sediment will often be found, sometimes small quantities of mucus, or a color, or the color will be of this milky hue, again changing to a dark and torpid yellow. There are many more men who die of chronic inflammation of the prostate gland, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. W. will guarantee to induce a healthy condition of the genito-urinary organs.

Let Your Light Shine.
Dr. Wagner, the celebrated specialist, of Denver, Colo., 348 Larimer street, believes in letting the world know what he can do, and is doing for thousands of suffering humanity. He will guarantee to forfeit $100 for every case of seminal weakness or private disease of any kind and character which he undertakes to cure and fails to cure.
Relief to the Afflicted.
In medicine, as in science, the specialist is the one who always comes to the front and a con, the great results. This is the case with Dr. Wagner, who is the specialist of this city. He stands at the top of his profession, and the cures he performs for the unfortunate who seem hopeless, are truly worthy of the light of scientific acquirements. He is endorsed by the most eminent of the medical faculty. His office is at 348 Larimer street, where he will receive every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind and character, as we will cure you, or we will refund your money. Chronic Complaints Require Time for a Cure.
Persons at a distance who wish to be treated by Dr. Wagner need not feel backward because of inability to visit him. If they write their doctor, he will send a list of questions which enables him to send medicines, consult and advise, and they direct, they never see him. He has patients in every city, town and station in Colorado, as well as all over the United States. He has his office in his advertisement.—Denver Tribune.
Shall We Reform?
Specific remedies for all diseases is the theory and practice of the present of educated and enlightened physicians, and in all large communities they have their medical colleges, and also their hospitals, and their dispensaries. History has shown that the way to wisdom, and the wise physician believes in his having his light shine for the glory of the afflicted man. It is not upon a hill to guide suffering humanity to 348 Larimer street, Denver, Colorado, it will answer the purpose for which it was written. Dr. H. Wagner, 348 Larimer street, Denver, Colo.
