-In the District court yesterday the case of J. M. Parker vs. N. A. Kuhn is on trial be fere Judge Neville. This involves the title to about 2,500 acres of land, worth nearly $100,-000, which is claimed by Kuhn, through his father Dr. J. M. Kuhn, who bought it at sheriff's sale in 185). The land lies around Fort Omaha and beyond Florence and was we believe, at the the time of the sale, the property of the old Tribune Co.

-An nice time was had Wednesday even-ing at the residence of Hon. Geo. W. Parker, No. 2022 St. Mary's avenue. Those present tripped the light fantastic, to the charming strains of Irvine's orchestra, up to 11 o'clock when an elegant lunch was spread by Mrs. G. W. Parker and her daughter Carrie, who certainly deserve much credit for their energy and success in pleasing all present. All departed shortly after midnight feeling satisfied that they can always have a splendid time at cory residence of Hon, G. W. Parker.

-Judge Anderson was misquoted by yesterday. He must not be understood as dacing a prohibitory law above high license in the liquor question, because he says he would rather have free whiskey given out on the streets than see prohibition go into effect, as he thinks that much worse. The opinion of a man who has had as much dealing with the results of intemperance, manifested in cases before the court, as the judge has, is worth something.

the Right of Women to Study and Practice Medicine.

Some Sensible Words on the Subject.

Extract from A. S. Von Mansfelde's Lecture Before the Omaha Medical College.

THE BEE regrets that it has not the space to publish in full the lecture of Dr. A. S. V. Mansfield, delivered before the Omaha Medical college on Tuesday evening, but the extracts made will be found particularly interesting.

The speaker said in the course of his remarks: "The profession of medisine forms no exception to this order of the universe, so aptly pur by the sage of old "Tempora muntantur et not multamur in illis." We have ur burning question of which I may mention; the work of the State Medical societies; the duties of the State to precent quackery, and also its obligations to ducate physicians; the right of women to study and practice medicine; our ethical laws and our relations to them and many more. There is a phase in the history of med icine, which very strikingly proves the difference between Western people and those of the East of the Atlantic-nay ven East of the Alleghenies. I refer to the education of women as practitioners of medicine From this faint objection from Eugland, as voiced in the British Medical Association, "May not habit, may rot the performance of duties which enail long watching, much exhaustion of mind and body-may they not, will they not so change that fine organization, that ensitive nature of woman, so as to render her dead to those higher feelings of love and sympathy, which now make our homes so happy, so blessed;" to an absolute ostracism as practiced by the Wassachusetts State Medical Society an excuse for which action is given in this

And as the ages have rolled on upon the sea of time find woman upon the battle fields of Herman and Varus, battle ax in one hand position in the Internal Revenue Depart- and soothing draught in the other, urging man to victory or ministering to his wounds, until in this latter half of this nineteenth century she, still true to her instincts, proves the heroine and the pany with his daughter for San Antonio, Run and Chattanooga. The characteris angel of mery on the battle fields of Bull Texas, to which station General Wilson has tic sign in the history of man has ever been ordered. During his four years residence been progress; from his anthroin Omaha Mr. Boosal has made a host of warm poid kinship to his present civilrelations he has better, greater and woman was his mother always She has not only kept apace with him, but has given the impetus to everything

ing to do to perfection what she has practiced instinctively, since man was wounded and babies took sick. Woman must have a power of resistance truly wonder ul that she still, after ages of such experience, can be spoken of as having "that fine organization, that sensitive nature." To suppose, then, that the noblest, most exalted of callings, the practice of medicine, should do that for her which the degration of thousands of years has not accomplished is asking too much of our credulity. When, there-fore, the secretary of the Nebraska State Medical society was ordered to cast the vote of the society for the first female physician who applied for admittance, not one voice was raised in objection Nay, an exthusias ic member, forseeing the pleasure and the profit of marching toward the outermost rim of our field of medicine in such good company noved the remission of all dues, which privilege was promptly and very wisely I think, declined. Women want but one privilege, equal opportunities. The Ne-braska State Medical society and this institution have by their action admitted he justice of the demand, and as long as I am a member of either I shall guard heir rights with a zeal equaled only by y love for my profession. The physiian and teacher who cannot breathe freely and speak truth becoming dignity and modesty in the presence of woman be she a physician or a student of medicine or neither, is not only not fit to enter the chamber of sickness, but his mouth is not clean enough to utter one word in behalf of medical service. Happily I have not seen one such poison weed spring from the soil of our prairie state; to the contrary, we take good care of the plant, yet young in years, well knowing what Nebraska can do in the lirection of growth.
