THE WEEK IN CHICAGO.

Special Dispatch to THE BEE.
CHICAGO, October 12.—Speculation in the leading grain markets throughout the week has been active among local traders, and a brisk demand was manifest on certain days by eastern and country dealers. The tendency of speculation is undoubtedly toward the bear side. The amount of grain in sight, and the absence of any foreign demand, influence the heavier traders toward a belief in lower prices. The exports show a decrease of 100 per cent from last year's figures and the amount of grain in store is correspondingly large. There is a small shipping demand which is anxiously observed by farmers and many local dealers, who believe wheat is very cheap at the present prices.

A FLURRY WAS CREATED ON Wednesday by the chartering of several vessels and the report that a foreign demand had appeared, at least dealers and speculators on the seaboard appear to be stronger buyers in higher prices than Chicagoans, as the former were on the buying side. The feeling has generally ruled rather unsettled. A disposition was observable among the more timid shippers to cover at each day's opening of prices. The market, though day spent, was still the talk of transactions either then or at the close. The range of prices for wheat was comparatively narrow, though within 1½@2½. The amount of wheat in store is steadily increasing, 340,000 bushels having been added to the already overflowing bins the past week.

CORN WAS ACTIVE and a favorite mark for speculation. Fluctuations were frequent, price going through the day, a decided number of days, and generally displayed a higher tendency. Hog products were neither dull nor active. A fair business was transacted in meat pork, principally on speculative account. The shipping demand is not heavy, and average price favored it. Hogs were in some activity. There is a speculative movement in No. 2, and other grades are slightly affected by it's activity. In the jobbing market there are few features of interest to note. Dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes continue to be active, and for the staples is firm. Groceries are weak and off rapidly.

THERE IS A CORNER IN COFFEE, a clique having secured control of this entire State crop. Yesterday the price was advanced 1½@2½ per pound, which is an extraordinary rise for coffee. Shipments to the country continue about averages. Rail-road receipts from the west exhibit a growing increase.
