CONNELL'S CARD.

That Famous Damage Suit Again Discussed

The Manner of Discussion Not Being at all Mollifying.

To the Editor of THE BEE.

In the Republican of this morning ing the truth of certain statements made by me concerning the bringing of the $50,000 conspiracy suit, which I charged, and still assert, was instigated by himself and son-in-law, Pritchett, out of pure malice, and for personal revenge.

Mr. Hanscom having failed to obtain atisfaction on the Wabash corner by used it or get a free sample bottle of Schroter & Becht, the Druggists, Regular size 50 cents and $1.00. satisfaction on the Wabash corner by howling his foul mouth billingsate, as is his custom, whenever any one happens to incur his displeasure. has rushed into print to obtain a vindication.

He makes the admission, which, o all who know him was unnec essary, that he has been guilty of using language "more forcible than elegant," but he seeks to sustain himself by the wholesale charge that every statement made by me, as previously published, is false. Now, I recognize the fact that no one can handle pitch without getting besmeared, and while I dislike to have any controversy with a character so abandoned to every sense of decency and honor, as is Mr. Hanscom, and who, realizing the estimate put upon him by his fellow citizens, continues to maintain his reputation as a loud-mouthed bulldozer and bruiser yet; in view of the public manner in which he has made his attack upon me, I feel called upon to say a few words in reply. In the first place, after denying his connection with the "conspiracy case," he says: "The statement as to the difficulty between Mr. Connell and myself at the bank is false as any one there can testi-Mr. Hanscom should have confined himself to general denials, for in making this specific denial he allows his malice to get away with his discretion, for the very opposite of what he says is true. The bank officials and others present at the time, instead of testifying as Mr. Hanscom claims, will, on the contrary, verify the published statement which I made concerning the matter. Mr. Hanscom knows very well that the statements I made concerning Hanscom park and his purpose to bring suit against the city to recover the park are true, and that his only purpose in calling himself a citi-zen of New York is to enable him to bring such suit in the U. S. Courts.

It will not do for Mr. Hanscom to say that the employment of counsel in the "conspiracy case," was during his absence from the city. He knows very well that the matter was talked up and worked up some time previous to his leaving for the east, to-wit: at about the time of his assuming the Cathn mortgage, thereby put ting Catlin in his control and under his

The facts relied upon to sustain the conspiracy case occurred away back in January, 1880. It never occurred to the Omaha Book Co., or to any of its officers credit and on the verge of bankrupcy for months before I was consulted by Mr. Abbott. My connections with the matter was simply that of an attorney, representing as best I could the interest of my clients. I then was, and still am, the attorney for Mrs. McLean, of Bloomington, Ill., who was the only responsible stockholder in the concern, and her interests demanded that some action should be taken to protect herself and the general creditors. Such action was taken as seemed for the best interest of all concerned, and the Book company was enabled, through my assistance, to make an amicable adjustment with its creditors, who received about seventy-five cents on the been allowed to run three months at sheriff's sale it would net have brought twenty cents on the Mr. and Mrs. E. C. La Montague, New York; dollar. Such are the facts upon which Mr. Hanscom and his "distinguished son-in-law" rely to make a case of conspiracy against me.

I do not fear the result, and so for as the Hanscom park case, or the tax cases now pending, wherein Mr. Hanscom and Harriet E. Pritchett, wife of the aforesaid sen-in law, are trying to beat the city of Omaha out of taxes justly due, I will take care of those as soon as reached. Respectfully, W. J. CONNELL. MR. DOANE'S STATEMENT. To the editor of THE BEE.

I will say further that I never heard of any connec ion whatever of Mr. Harsco a with the bringing of the suit, or is instigation, and am satisfied that he had nothing to do with it, as he has been absent from Omaha until within a short time, and the consultations which resulted in the bringing of the suit had been had before his return.
