Special Hatch to the Bee.

New York, October 21.—The Sun's review of Wall street says: Martial law prevailed in the stock exchange during the past week. The sentence against every delinquent was mercilessly executed—in fact many of the bears, caught in the trap themselves, asked the stock exchange authorities to execute sentence on them on the spot.

THE CENTRAL POINTS OF INTEREST were the squeezes in the New Jersey Central and Northern Pacific preferred. No one seems to know exactly what happened. There was a different story on every one's lips. According to one version the officers of the Northern Pacific and the members of the board of directors are to take up the new loan were buying up all the stock offered, so as to have a two-thirds vote on the day of the meeting.

and it is said that they either bought in too much or too little "under the rule."

of all branches of trade. It is a curious fact that the coal trade is always the last to feel the effect of a general depression, but when it does feel it,

The panic of 1873 barely affected the coal trade. As late as 1875 the gross earnings of the D. L. & W. footed up over $2,700,000.

The general depression in all kinds of business for the last two years has not yet been felt in the coal trade, but when it comes to be felt, it may have a repetition of the crash of 1873 and 1876.

The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western has committed a great mistake in saddling itself with an extra fixed charge of $1,220,000 a year for the new Buffalo extension.

Even under the most favorable circumstances this new line will barely be able to open its earning expenses, not to speak of the fixed charges.

The depressed condition of the market materially affected most severely the young and not yet completed enterprises. Prominent among them is

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC, which has obtained immense privileges from the Government, and passes regularly 5 per cent on its stock and is selling at $50 a share.

The last drop from $50 to $20 can be accounted for by the generally demoralized condition of financial affairs in Canada, but in any case $50 a share is cheap price for a 5 per cent stock and especially if we keep in view the price of the Southern Pacific stock, which don't pay any dividends and are not likely to pay any for years to come.

The two roads are natural competitors, and the Canadian concern has certainly a better backing in the Government of Great Britain than the Northern Pacific has in the slippery members of the famous blind pool.

As to a Wall street report that the Canadian Pacific was to issue some bonds to complete the road, President Stephens and several directors of the company now in the city, say that nothing of the kind has ever been projected by the company.

The treasurer has now on hand all the cash necessary for building purposes and the Government subsidy besides. The managers of the Pacific mail company have succeeded in altering their contract with the Occidental and Oriental steamship company.

By the re-schedule of the Pacific Mail will have two-thirds instead of half the Pacific ocean business. The directors say that this change is another step toward paying dividends on the Pacific Mail stock next spring.

THE IMBECILITY OF THE NAVY DISPLAYED BY THE OFFICIALS.

Correspondence Between Secretary Chandler and Commander Wildes.

WASHINGTON, October 21.—Secretary Chandler has written Commander Wildes, of the sternship Yantic, with respect to the failure of the expedition for the relief of Lieutenant Greeley. He says: "You were instructed to proceed to the northward through Davis Straits with the steamer Porteus, but to go beyond Littleton Island and the repairs continued on this island July 22d, and was crushed in the ice July 23d. The Yantic did not reach there until August 3d.

Between these dates the Garlington party of the Porteus came to Littleton Island and Pandora Harbor, not finding you continued south in open boats, in search of the Yantic. Had the Yantic been at Littleton on the 20th of July, instead of being twelve days behind the Porteus, the Garlington relief party would have remained at that point with ample supplies and waiting for Lieutenant Greeley, whose orders require him to endeavor to reach that vicinity not later than September, 1887, and who would not then have found awaiting him in case he successfully obeyed orders, neither house nor provisions, but only a record of the complete failure of the mission of the Porteus and Yantic. It appears to the department that you disobeyed orders and thereby defeated the object of the expedition. You may make such explanation of the facts as you are able. To this Commander Wildes replies that the boilers of the Yantic were in an unreliable condition when ordered to fit for the Northern cruise. Repairs were pushed night and day to hasten the departure, but not being finished on sailing day material for completing the work was put on board and the repairs continued from time to time until the arrival at God Haven. Knowing that from there northward the main dependence would be on the engines, I determined to get the boilers in fair condition before leaving. This took six days. One day was then taken to get coal from the brig Pact, which had just arrived. Then then stormy weather set in which delayed the departure two days. He arrived at God Haven with but 170 tons of coal and more time was lost, so it was July 26th before he could leave. Six days more were lost by a dense fog. On the 31st he cleared from Upernivik for sea. No time was lost and no unnecessary delay made on any point. Had he sailed from God Haven the same time as the Porteus, he would have been unable to keep up with her, and he would have arrived at Littleton Island with the coal supply reduced to 75 tons, and the boilers in a leaky and precarious condition.

Commander Wildes describes the dangers connected with the passage through Melville Bay. He says he did not delay one moment after he considered the ship prepared, but pushed ahead and only reached Pandora harbor to find the boats had gone south six days before. He considered it his first and paramount duty on learning the loss of the Porteus to push up boats which contained 35 men and having done that it would be time to consider what next. Having made a long and unsuccessful search for the boats, a heavy pack of ice moved down behind the Yantic, preventing her return northward and leaving no alternative but to proceed to Upernivik.

The letter concludes as follows: "The memorandum marked enclosure 4, with no date or signature, which I presume are supplementary instructions so often spoken, was never heard of by me until our arrival in St. Johns nor seen until now. I am prepared to shoulder all responsibility which properly belongs to me, and if this statement is in any way satisfactory and there still remains doubts in the department that I have not done my duty as an officer of the United States navy, I respectfully request a court of inquiry may be ordered on my conduct, as I do not wish to rest under the imputation that I have needlessly and unnecessarily left Lieutenant Greeley and party to the possibility of perishing by starvation. I am sir your obedient servant.

THE EARTHQUAKE EXAGGERATED. CONSTANTINOPLE, October 21.—Later details confirm the statement that the first accounts of the earthquake in Anatolia were greatly exaggerated. At Vourla, near Smyrna, where 200 huts were wrecked, only two persons were killed and seven injured; 1,000 inhabilands were under shelter for long tents outside the ruined village. Altogether 50 were killed and 150 injured. The foregoing number of persons killed represent the total loss of life, although 14,687 persons are homeless, all being fed by the authorities in obedience to the Sultan's orders. The sick re-ceiving places and surgeons.

PRYOR ON O'DONNELL. LONDON, October 21.—General Pryor, O'Donnell's American counsel, in an interview, said he was satisfied O'Donnell killed Carey in self defense. It would be proved beyond question at the trial that O'Donnell went to Africa with no design of killing Carey and was unaware of the latter's presence on the steamer when he embarked and Carey, according to Pryor's theory, finding himself discovered, provoked a quarrel in order to annihilate the Irishman, would strike Manslaughter, in Pryor's opinion was the utmost O'Donnell could be found guilty of. Every effort is being made to bring witnesses from Capetown to England. "I believe," Pryor said, "O'Donnell will have a fair trial. I find there is no prejudice against him. I do not expect to take public part in the trial but simply help other counsel by consultation. I shall remain in London until the trial is finished. I have seen O'Donnell and he impresses me as a simple minded, ingenious Irishman, anything but an assassin. The trial will last two or three days.

DAVIDT AND THE LEAGUE. LONDON, October 21.—The National League demonstration was followed by a banquet held at Wexford, to-day. Michael Davitt, Healy, Sullivan, Teamy and several members of Parliament were present. Davitt denounced landholders and said he regretted to observe the National League did not present the solid front it possessed three years ago. He asked the madhood of the country to push forward the organization until victory should crown, or defeat overcome its effort.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., October 21.—The latest advices from Lincoln report every thing quiet, with no danger of a popular outbreak to-night and a strong feeling that there should be no attempt at lynch- ing Carpenter or violence, while no little is ascertained and so many theories are yet to be invented. There is a strong and growing feeling that Dukes must know something about it and the im- mense exists in Bloomington that Dukes, who has been lingering about this city more or less for months past, disappeared from here on the next day after the murder.

THE POSTAL SERVICE. Some Facts and Figures From the Report of the First Assistant Postmaster-General.

A Very Complimentary Notice for Mr. Hatton Prepared and Printed by Himself.

Remarkable Increase of the Postal Business—The Money Order and Free Delivery System.

CAPITAL NOTES. WASHINGTON, October 21.—The annual report of Frank Hatton, First Assistant Postmaster General, has been laid before the Postmaster General. The report says: "The average amount of work performed in each division office exceeded that of any previous year, and the bureau has endeavored to meet the necessities of an increasing population.

No preceding year have fewer complaints been made concerning incompetency or dishonesty of postmasters or confusion in delivery and dispatch of mail matter in the different post-offices. The whole number of Presidential offices was 2,143; the greatest increase was in Illinois. Number of money order offices, 5,875; increase, 421. Removals and suspensions during the year, 315, less than for the year before. The adjustment of salaries of Presidential postmasters, warrants the statement that the result will be satisfactory, and for the first time in the history of the department the salaries of Presidential postmasters will be equalized and placed on a basis of the gross receipts of their offices. Total expenditures on account of postage supplies, $111,927, leaving a small balance. It is the duty of the Government to furnish roomy well arranged offices for the transaction of postal business. There is no good reason why the Government should not provide for paying office rent at post-offices of the third class as well as at offices of the first and second class. The benefits of the free delivery service should be extended to a class of towns in a densely populated portion of the country which could be served by carriers with benefit to the people and economy to the department. These are towns within a short distance of one another, which have not singly the required qualifications of population or gross revenue. The law should be amended so as to authorize the department extend the system to such by establishing it at the principal or central office of the group and providing for the other offices or substituting for them inexpensive branches of the main office from which carriers could serve the surrounding localities. In view of the large excess of postage on local matter over the cost of the free delivery service and taking into consideration of the fact that local correspondence increases in proportion to the facilities, it should be extended and liberal appropriations made to bring it up to the highest practical standard in cities where it is now in operation. This service meets the general demand of business and social life, but fails to meet the dispatch required in delivery of letters of exceptional importance. The public demands more speedy delivery of certain class of correspondence. To meet this want it is suggested a special stamp be provided which when affixed to a letter, whether mail or local, in addition to the ordinary postage stamp shall be regarded by the office addressed as entitling the letter to immediate delivery up to 10 o'clock p. m. To provide for their delivery it is suggested that boys be employed and required to procure receipts from the party addressed or some authorized person.

In view of the excess of receipts of postage on local matter alone over the cost of its delivery ($1,021,894) it seems the time has arrived, when postage on local letters and other matter where the carrier system is in operation can be reduced from two cents to one cent. Such reduction will surely result in a very large increase of local business. The endeavor to divorce the money order work from other postal business, as contemplated by Congress, is causing much trouble all over the country and is being annulled to this effect. The law should be amended to provide that an annual allowance for clerk hire should cover the entire cost of the labor required at all and all points. In concluding, Mr. Hatton pays a high compliment to the heads of divisions under his charge.

Another Charley Ross. ST. LOUIS, October 21.—Christian Ross, father of the long lost boy, "Charley Ross" accompanied by H. Morgan, a lawyer of Philadelphia, has been at Edwardsville, Ill., and this city the past three days attempting to get at the truth of the story told by a young man named Donnelly, who is under sentence of one year in the penitentiary for some crime, but nothing has come of the investigation so far and it is not likely any thing will be believed, however, by Mr. Ross and the prosecuting attorney of Madison county, Illinois, to whom Donnelly first made a statement.
