Mass Meeting to Discuss the Civil Rights Decision.

Treasurer Rush, Edward Rosewater and Others.

The Decision Pronounced by Resolutions to be an Alarming Omen.

The colored people of this city assembled at the court house to hold a discussion upon the late decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in relation to the civil rights bill. Mr. E. R. Overall was made chairman of the meeting, and W. R. Gamble, secretary.

Mr. Edward Rosewater, the editor of THE BEE, was first called upon for an address. He said:

"I came to-night at the invitation of your chairman to listen to General ago a decision came from out the dark Thayer, but I do not fear to express my recesses of the supreme court declaring convictions upon this matter. I will al. that colored men had no rights which ways remember that my ancestors were men were bound to respect. It came slaves in the land of Egypt, and further-that bench for twenty years after he was more, that this slavery did not cease dead. Certain men, clothed in black, when they crossed the Red sea, but continued during the middle ages and even up to this day in many communities looked upon as civilized. Indeed, I remember that my father told me that in this land and no man's rights queswhen he was a young man people of his taith were compelled to pay toll whenever they passed the gates of Prague, just as if they were horses or cattle. These distinctions, whether they are against creed or race, are crimes against The fourteenth amendment declares that humanity. I lived in the South before the war, and many times I was compelled to sit in first-class cars with negro women who were there as servants to take care of the children of Southern families, but if a free negro dared to thrust his face into a passenger car he was booted out and ordered to go into the 'nigger car'-which was about as

A CATTLE CAR.

It was all right for a negro woman or man to travel with gentlemen or ladies, as a slave, but a free negro was offensive and could not ride with white folks. I hold that when a man pays his fare occupy a seat in any car no matter what his color. 'The other day, while travelling, I found the porter of the Pullman car early in the morning lying undressed in one of the berths. That was all right. Nobody objected. But if John M. Langston or Fred Douglas should ask to ride in a him in these rights, it pronounces a sleeper he could not be accommodated, people are willing to have their children frink from the same fountain with a colored man, they can also take lessons from the same teacher in the same school. Twelve years ago there was a public school kept up in the Third ward exclusively for colored children, but in fram-ing the act creating the board of educa-

"But," somebody will ask, "do you expect your daughter to marry a nigger? This is all bosh. My daughter will probably marry somebody according to her station and social condition. Civil rights doesn't mean

SOCIAL EQUALITY.

There are many white folks with whom would not associated. But I insist that in public conveyances and public places and public schools there should be no distinc-

Dwelling upon the decision of the Supreme Court, Mr. Rosewater referred to the fact that in his memory Salmon P. Chase, the Republican Governor of Ohio. was compelled to execute the fugitive slave law enacted by Congress. The Supreme Court sustained that act then, and yet now they decree that Congress cannot enforce the rights of colored citizens in the States. The Supreme Court, to say the least, is very ungenerous. Its judges are indebted to the colored race for their publican party of to-day is not what it was in early days one of universal freedom. The colored man must act for himself in enforcing his rights.

MR. JOHN RUSH, the county treasurer, was the next speaker. He made a very eloquent speech, and was frequently interrupted by enthuastic applause. He expressed his wonder and astonishment at the Supreme Court de-cision. He was not prepared for it. He thought that the last cobweb of prejudice and ignorance against the colored people had been wiped out in the best blood of our citizens. He had labored under the impression that he could take his black brother by the hand on perfect terms of equality, but this decision had set him hinking, and he could come to but one conclusion in regard to the matter—that there was a slight tinge of prejudice in that decision. Whenever doubt existed in the law, it seemed to be against the colored man. He failed to see how this discrimination by the Supreme Court could be sustained.

He advised the colored people not to act hestily, but with precision and determination, to speak their sentiments on this question of civil rights, and show the supreme court that public opinion is against the decision, and that the intent of the law was to give to the colored people all the rights and privileges enjoyed by the whites. Let the colored people meet in every city and every town, and let them have the sympathy of the best white citizens, until at last they shall be heard so loud that Congress will be forced to pass a law giving to all, white or black, equal rights and privileges in this Republic.

GENERAL THAVER'S SPEECH. General J. M. Thayer, ex-United States Senator, who came from Grand Island upon invitation to address the colored people of this city, was introduced by Mr. Overall. He spoke substantially as fol-

ME. CHAIRMAN AND FRIENDS: I say friends, for I will not address you with words of hypocrisy by calling you fellowcitizens, for when men, guiltless of crime, are denied any right or privilege guaran-teed to others, the title of fellow-citizens cannot be applied to them.

I have but few words to utter to night. I came from Grand Island to express my sympathy with you in this hour of trial, to join with you in denouncing that decision to the Supreme Court, which has the judges who promulgated that decision to the Supreme Court, which has you meet in this temple of justice? How dare you walk and move along the sidewalks without fear of being ordered in from the streets, for the Supreme Court says, in certain respects, that you have no rights which the white man is bound to respect. The circumstances and facts for such a decision call ion of human rights. It is an insult to the moral sentiment of the American people, and I sourn and trample the decision under foot. Ever since that decision was pronounced I have been mad, and I have been getting madder all the time, the more I reflect upon it. * * For seventeen years I have lived in the sublime conviction that this was indeed a Republican Government. We have proclaimed to the people of the world that this is a Republican Government, and that beneath the protecting folds of its glorious flag the rich and the poor, the white and the black, are equal in the presence and majesty of the law. The Sureme Court, however, says nay! That

A CHEAT AND A LIE! It is not the first time that a decision of the supreme court court has shocked the world. Twenty-five or thirty years from Chief Justice Taney, who sat on That decision planted seed from which germinated this last decision. To-day, in this enlightened age of the world, when universal liberty prevailed tioned so long as he obeyed the law, we are told that the colored race has no rights, in certain respects, which the white man is bound to respect. The decision of the Supreme Court on this ques tion should have been in accordance with the universal sentiment of the people. no right, civil or political, shall be denied to any man on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude. It was passed to protect the colored man from nvasion of their rights in any respect. Charl s Sumner and Thaddeus Steven helped to frame that law and pass it, and they believed their object had been achieved.

I now come to the question as a prac tical one-the right to travel in a public conveyance, to stop at a public inn, or visit a public place of amusement. I say that is a civil right. A public inn is for the accommodation of those who travel or those who want a temporary home. It is open to all, and any man, white or black, who enters a hotel, who is decent on a public highway he has the right to in behavior and appearance, conforms to the rules of the house, and pays his bill, has a right there, and when he enters a place of amusement, a theatre or a church, he has the same rights there as any other man. When the Supreme court says there is no power to protect on the colored race. The veriest b'ack guard and pimp can enter hotels and travel on the cars and none can moles him, but because a man has a darker skip than himself, a landlord or conductor can exclude him. If a colored man enters a church where devout people worship, if don't exclude him, they will bu him in one corner, where he can look on. I say out upon this atrosious doctrine We had come to believe that we had achieved the grand purpose of this free and equal republic according to the declaration of independence. This nation went through strife and civil war to save the Union and establish a Republican government, which we never had unil the war came. There can be no Republican government where slavery is tolerated. It required the awful visite tion of war to bring this nation to a sense of its duty to the colored race. The war came as a punishment upon this nation or the great crime of tolerating human slavery. We declared that you should be free? The sublime proclamation was issued to all the world that never more should sun shine on a slave on American soil? We spoke the words to your race in bondage to come forth into the bright sunlight of

to be men and woman with us; that the crime of slavery should be tolerated no longer; that you and your race should re-joice; that the day of jubilee had come; hat God's people were free! Now, to hear this assertion! For seventeen years we have been hugging the delusion that this is a free nation and that all men are equal before the law. Now we are told that certain rights are with held from the colored race. I denouce that decision as unworthy of the Supreme Court and an insult to the American peo ole. * * * I will respect no decision that tramples on human rights. * *

Iowa made a true republican amid the scenes of blood and carnage. I had nine regiments in my command, three were colored troops, and three were Indians. The Indians were not worth a continental brass teapot. The colored troops were equal to the whites in every respect. They were not long in learning the tactics, and they went into battle fighting like There and then I said to myself devils. that the man who fights by my side shall yote by my side.

In conclusion, General Thayer again denounced the decision as an outrage, and he said that another amendment must be demanded and secured—an amendment that would put the matter beyond the power of even the judges clothed in black. He praised Justice Harlan for his dissension from the rest of the bench. and he thought Harlan would make a Republican candidate for Presigood

Resolved, That we believe there exists n every state in the nation law sufficient o protect white men against whom there is no prejudice, in the enjoyment of every right, but in view of the strong prejudic now existing between the white and black races in this country, we do not regard a law on general principles strong enough to supply our needs.

Resolved, That we regard social and as to the colored citizen, which had its civil rights as distinct from each other as light is from darkness; one is governed by common consent and the egislation. Social rights will regulate itself, and civil political rights must be regulated by legislation, and we do not ask the association of any who do not desire our association.
