

THE DAILY BEE.

COUNCIL BLUFFS.

Tuesday Morning, November 6.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: By Carrier... By Mail...

OFFICE: No. 7 Pearl Street, Near Broadway.

MINOR MENTION.

See Joseph Reiter's fall goods. Additional locals on seventh page.

Cheap Railroad Tickets at Bushnell's. The Chautauque club had another interesting and instructive session last night.

Andrew Sharp, for disturbing the peace, was yesterday fined $5 and costs by Judge Aylesworth.

Fred Lamb celebrated his birthday yesterday, and an essay chair was among the gifts received.

The joists for the floor are being laid on the new completed foundations of the new Catholic church.

The ladies of the Broadway Methodist church give a New England supper at the church parlors this evening.

Among the plain drunks disposed of in the police court yesterday were Charley Fuller and J. D. Zolmer.

The board of trade has passed a resolution urging the city council to give Durant street to the Union Pacific railway.

Smith & Toller, the Main street mercantile firm, have put a large and handsome sign in position over their front. It catches the eye.

Permit to wed was yesterday granted Frank E. Seibert and Lizzie A. Lacy, both of this city. Last evening Justice Schurz tied the knot for them.

Marshall Jackson is beginning to run cows into the pound again, but the bobbies, like the two-legged prisoners, seem to get away. The city pound is as weak as the calaboose.

A bakery wagon, bearing in big letters the name of John Kramer, was snatched through Broadway at a lively gait yesterday by a runaway horse. Though no great smash up occurred, yet the bakery wagon took the cake among runaways yesterday.

Judge James succeeded pretty well, while in Chicago, in being interviewed by the newspaper men, and aired up several local matters, one to the effect that all the saloon men working with the Republicans for prohibition. He failed to say anything about the "back pay" resolution of the council, and his drawing $100 extra for services as alderman.

Some small boys played the role of burglars practically and successfully at Mrs. Pfeiffer's millinery store. They gained entrance by raising a window and tapped the till, getting a small amount. The boys will probably not be prosecuted, the affairs being left for their parents to handle. The boys ought to be checked pretty summarily in their fast speed towards the penitentiary.

There is a gang of young hoodlums who gather frequently on Upper Broadway, in the vicinity of the Methodist church, and indulge in all sorts of rowdiness. The police have cleared them away several times but still they gather occasionally. Sunday night a young man named Fred Dill was passing along there when some insulting remark was made, at which Dill proceeded to slap their mouths. There was a street commotion as the result and the unfortunate Dill was of course the victim arrested while the others got away. He was discharged yesterday morning when the facts were brought out. It is time now that the gang was broken up, even if some pretty rough handling should be necessary.

Among the ladies of purchasable virtue who were yesterday brought before Judge Aylesworth was one who only a few weeks ago left the path of rectitude for one of shame, voluntarily and deliberately. She had been married, but had some trouble with her husband, and had some-what of a reputation. Ladies are cordially invited to examine the handsome stock.

THE NEW DYE WORKS. F. R. Hurlburt has opened, at No. 34 Pearl street, a steam dyeing and French dry cleaning works. Phases and tips, velvets, silks, satins, gent's clothing, merchant's shelf worn goods, all made as good as new.

JACK IN THE BOX. Shields is Arrested for Assault, and an Old Sentence Brought to Bear on Him.

Jack Shields, who has gained some notoriety as a thumper, was arrested yesterday for assault and battery, the complaint being made by James W. Kingley, who claimed that Shields hit him in the mouth in Job Nelson's saloon, causing the claret to fly and inflicting quite an injury. He also wanted Shields brought over to keep the peace, claiming that he had made threats to kill him. Justice Abbott continued the case until Wednesday, and in the meantime Shields was committed to jail. An old sentence of six months in jail is hanging over Shields' head there, for an assault made upon old Mr. Jennings some time ago. Shields had given bonds, and was going to appeal that case, but never did, and now that he is in the jail again he will probably be called on to serve out this sentence. It may take some of the thumping ambition out of Shields if he is compelled to remain under lock and key for six months, as he has so far got out of his scrapes so easily as to encourage him rather than teach him a lesson of forbearance.

FIGHTING THE FILL.

One of Broadway's Property Owners Gets an Injunction.

The Change of Grade One of the Reasons Urged.

There has been much trouble attending the work of filling up Broadway and Main streets to grade, and various vexatious questions have been brought to the front, and are still unsettled. A petition has been filed in the court stating that Sarah C. Keyes is the owner of fifty feet on Broadway, east of Seventh street, it being the property known as the Herd barn. The petition states that in 1869 the city council established the grade of Broadway and at that point it was fixed at thirty-three feet above the plane of reference. A building was put up on the property and a brick sidewalk and stone curbing laid in conformity with that grade. In April, 1880, the council changed the grade again, and now the council has contracted with M. A. Moore to fill up the street and sidewalk, which at this particular point causes a raise of two feet or more. The petition further states that the property will be damaged by this raise, and the city council has made no offer of settling for the damage, or given the usual notice of appointment of appraisers to fix the damage. The petitioner desires to take away the brick sidewalk and curbing, and filling in dirt, and a temporary injunction is asked for. Judge Loufbourrow has granted the prayer and fixed the bonds at $300. This of course only affects immediately the fill at that place, about fifty feet, but yet it has indirectly a further and more important effect, as other property is in the same condition and other injunctions may be asked for and got. If so the work will be still further interrupted and a serious delay made. The plans for city improvements have been hastily formed, contracts have been easily tangled up, bad weather has added its share of perplexity and delay, and the city council will have to show greater firmness and wisdom than it has yet manifested if it gets the streets in any sort of shape before the winter sets in with a freeze up.

MUSICAL GHOSTS. A Fourth Ward House Seems to be Troubled by Them.

Mrs. Berringer, an old lady, who lives in a little house on Seventh street in the Fourth ward, seems to be bothered with ghosts. She went to the neighbors about 12 o'clock Sunday night and aroused them with the report that the boys were bothering her at her house, tapping at her windows, etc., and young Mr. Dye went over to drive the boys off. He could see nothing of the boys complained of, and going inside the house, waited there a little while to see if they returned. There was soon tapping heard on the windows, and he glided out to catch the boys, but there were no boys, and still the tapping continued, evidently done by unseen hands. After the tapping stopped, and while he was inside the house, he heard distinctly the beating of tin-pans under the floor. He investigated but could not get any satisfactory explanation. Then there was the ringing of bells in the ceiling, and this too he could not account for. It became so exorcised about the matter that he searched and searched for some clue to the mysterious sounds, and not being able to find any yesterday reported to the police and wanted a special put on duty there. He says he is no spiritualist, but he could not get at any explanation of the mysterious sounds, of the hearing of which he says he is convinced, and that he could not have been deceived. Mrs. Berringer has often complained of the boys of the neighborhood bothering her, but this last night's experience is such as to make it seem more reasonable in her to charge it up to the spirits.

WANTED IN INDIANA. A Young Man Arrested for too Great Intimacy with His Sister-in-Law.

A young man named W. E. Styles is lying in jail here now awaiting the arrival of an officer from Indiana to take him back to that State on a charge of adultery. The complaint is made by his father-in-law, Mr. Harris, living at Plymouth, Ind., who charges that Styles, not satisfied with marrying one of his daughters, has ruined the other one, a young girl. Styles has been out in Nebraska and the officers have been searching for him there, but he gave them the slip somehow, and has eluded arrest until he reached this city. He has been traveling under the alias of W. E. Ellinburn, and there was some mail directed to that name, which was awaiting him here. Constable Clatterback and G. E. Beavick, who have been doing some detective work here, were on the look out for him, and when he got his mail they promptly arrested him. He denies the charge emphatically, and claims that it is "a put up job," and that when he gets back to Indiana he can clear himself of the charge. His wife arrived here yesterday, and seems to cling to the belief that her husband is innocent. A dispatch was received from Sheriff Kyle, of Plymouth, Indiana, telling the officers here to hold

Styles, and that he would start yesterday to get him.
