

Scrofula results from a diseased condition of the blood, and as the blood derives its sustenance from the stomach and depends for its purity almost wholly upon the action of that organ, we claim that what we call a good medicine for the stomach is equally good for the blood and consequently adapted to scrofula.

Of every description salt rheum, ringworm, tetter, scaldhead, pimple, erysipelas and every species of skin disease, are not merely temporarily but permanently cured by Burdock Blood Bitters.

No one thing so quickly determines the beauty or ugliness of a person as the surface of the face—the skin. A bright clear skin will make almost any face handsome and without such no one features, no matter how finely moulded, can be regarded as attractive.

THE SLAYER OF CAREY.

The Inevitable Avenger on Trial for the Murder of the Irish Informer.

Great Interest Manifested in the Outcome in England and America.

The Testimony of Carey's Wife and Son not as Positive as Expected.

The Attorneys of O'Donnell Exort Contradictions from Both.

LONDON, November 30.—The trial of O'Donnell for the murder of James Carey began this morning before Judge George Denman in the old Bailey police court. Two sheriffs and several aldermen occupied seats upon the bench. The small court room was crowded, and several ladies were present. No one was admitted without a ticket. The approaches were thronged. Chas. Russell, A. M. Sullivan, solicitors, Guy and Roger A. Pryor were present as counsel for O'Donnell.

Henry James attorney general, and Poland and R. S. Wright appeared for the government. O'Donnell entered the dock from the adjoining prison surrounded by officers, and he seemed unconcerned, standing very erect at first, then bowed his head, clasped his hands, quietly cast glances at counsel and closely watched the jurors as called. After reading of the charge O'Donnell took a seat, leaned over and whispered to counsel for a few minutes. The jury is a very intelligent one, composed of men of middle and mature age. No excitement exists outside of the court house. But few people are there, and mostly respectable ones. A large number of police are guarding the court. Russell, O'Donnell's counsel, demanded that witnesses be excluded from the court room, which was granted. The jury having been called, the clerk asked O'Donnell if he had any objections to any of them. O'Donnell replied, "I trust to my accuser for that." While the jury was being completed O'Donnell seemed amused and exchanged greetings with Mr. Pryor. None of the jurymen were challenged.

Henry James opened the case for the government. He described Carey's evidence from England and voyage to Capetown, and said there was no evidence to prove that the prisoner embarked on the steamer Kinfauns Castle to kill Carey, but the witness, Cubitt, would testify at Capetown that he gave the prisoner, at his urgent request, a rough sketch of Carey, and the prisoner remarked upon receiving it, "It is about him." The attorney general repeated the details of the murder of Carey, and pressed upon the jury that the act was not committed in self-defense, but was a willful and pre-meditated murder. He enjoined the jury not to allow a feeling against Carey to prejudice them in their consideration of the case. O'Donnell listened closely to the address of the attorney general. He has been allowed to use tobacco, which he chews freely in the dock.

James Parish, steward of the steamer Melrose Castle, repeated the evidence received from England and preliminary plans of the cabin of the Melrose Castle were shown, one prepared by the prosecution, the other by the defense. Witness declared the one offered by the defense incorrect and the judge rejected it. He insisted that O'Donnell was sitting down when he fired the shot at Carey who was standing in the corner of the cabin two yards away. Carey might easily have reached O'Donnell but he made no gesture to seize him. Witness saw no pistol other than O'Donnell's; did not see young Carey go to his father's berth, and only knew by hearsay that the father's pistol was found upon the boy.

Much discussion concerning the correctness of the plans of the cabin, all of which the judge declared faulty. The judge went into the witness box and asked Parish to explain the position of the tables and seats, and witness said all the plans were incorrect, and O'Donnell appeared to be greatly interested in this episode, watching the judge narrowly. The judge cautioned Parish to be careful in giving replies to inquiries, especially regarding his position when the shots were fired.

Charles Jones, boatwain of the Melrose Castle, testified as at the former examination that he was almost sure but refused to swear that O'Donnell's words were, "I did not do it." The judge examined O'Donnell's revolver and placed it on the dock. There was a dead silence when Thomas Carey, as of James Carey, stepped into the witness box. He gave his evidence promptly and coolly, but was sometimes told to speak more distinctly. Occasionally he would consider a question well before replying, and when he failed to understand the inquiry would shake his head. The judge questioned him in regard to his father's position when he was shot and was assiduous in making notes of young Carey's evidence. When the bag and revolver of James Carey were placed in the hands of witness to identify he weighed the weapon and looked down the barrel. O'Donnell scrutinized young Carey narrowly when he said he was not positive whether O'Donnell after the shooting said: "Shake hands, Mrs. Carey. I was sent to do it," or "I had to do it." He further testified: "I went for father's revolver and kept it in my pocket, because father was unable to use it."

During the afternoon young Carey's examination developed many inconsistencies. The frequency with which the witness contradicted himself, caused much amusement in court and the spectators appeared to be amazed at his unabashed demeanor and effrontery. Mrs. Carey, widow of the murdered man, appeared as a witness. She was dressed in deep mourning, and spoke in a subdued voice. She repeated the testimony she gave at the preliminary examination, and reiterated that O'Donnell exclaimed "he was sent to do it." The cross examined when he said he was not very brief, and developed nothing new. Marcus, in his testimony, said there

THE SCALP DANCE.

Robert Thomas Corbett testified to recognizing the man Power as Carey from the portrait given in argument of the Dublin Freeman. He showed the portrait to O'Donnell, who remarked, "I'll shoot him." Witness attached no importance to the remark.

Other witnesses testified mainly as at the previous examination. A legal discussion arose over the admission of a newspaper cutting, headed, "Irish Revolutionists in America," which was found in O'Donnell's trunk.

Sullivan said its introduction would import political element into the trial. The judge thought it would be dangerous.

Attorney General James would not press the matter. Police Superintendent Mallin, of Dublin, identified Carey's pistol as the one he gave him for protection when he left Dublin. He said Carey was very excited, desperate, and utterly regardless of human life.

The prosecution closed, and the court adjourned. O'Donnell was calm and composed throughout the day's proceedings. Roger A. Pryor was frequently consulted, and made several suggestions to the prisoner's counsel. The entire proceedings were free from excitement.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

TO SATISFY HER HONOR. PARIS, November 30.—It is reported that the Washington, French ambassador to London, has informed the British foreign secretary that France intends to occupy Bacunh and Sontag to satisfy her honor, but not engaged in war with China, and after the surrender of the two places France proposes an armistice and will ask for English mediation.

LONDON, November 30.—It is reported that Sontag and Bacunh have been evacuated.

CRIMINAL RECORD.

A TERRIBLE AND EXCITING FIGHT WITH BURGLARS. ST. LOUIS, November 30.—Four burglars cracked a safe at New Washington last night and escaped on a hand car to Vernon Junction, where they threw the hand car into a creek to avoid being tracked and went to Shelby. Workmen from the Junction carried the hand car to the creek and reported to the authorities who telegraphed to Shelby and the gang was arrested. Marshal Sutter found the burglars near a hotel and ordered them to go with him, whereupon they fired five shots, two hitting Sutter, one in the leg and one in the side. Sutter then ran through the woods, killing him instantly. The others fled towards the woods, followed by citizens who were witnesses of the shooting. Two miles north one of the gang turned and fatally shot John Longaker, baggage-master. By this time 300 men were in pursuit. Two miles further M. A. Cunningham captured Longaker's murderer and took him to town. Pretty much the entire population turned out, greatly excited and armed with all manner of weapons. One of the burglars found a horse and buggy of a member of the pursuing party and started away with it, but finding the buggy an incumbrance he cut the harness and escaped on horseback. Encountering Will May, who was in pursuit, the burglar, at the point of a revolver, compelled May to give up his own pistol and exchange horses. May's horse, fatigued from fast driving, proved unable to stand the pace, and the burglar met two ladies in a buggy, and with drawn revolver he ordered them to give up the rig. One of the ladies struck him with a whip, when he fired, but with only the effect of frightening the horse, which ran away. The burglar presently met a man on a bicycle, whom he frightened them out, too the team, and started the horse in a run, collided with another wagon, and was thrown out, the wagon falling on him. The pursuers shortly came up, when the burglar pitilessly exclaimed, "Boys I have a nice motor." Instantly he was added with bullets. This occurred thirteen miles from Shelby. The body was borne triumphantly to town. The corpses of both the dead burglars were exhibited in an undertaker's window, which increased the excitement, and the one lodged in jail would have been lynched but for the intervention of the sheriff. Rumor says the last of the four was captured at Plymouth. One burglar killed was about 22 years of age, good looking, smooth face and had $2,700. The other was middle aged. A satchel was found containing a full burglar's outfit and a quantity of chloroform and dynamite. Marshal Sutter will probably recover.

A SURE JEWELL. SAN JOSE, Cal., November 30.—Joseph Jewell, one of the three men who last March murdered M. P. Remondin who got possession of his earnings amounting to $24,000, was hanged this morning.

A BAD JOE. MACON, Ga., November 30.—Ambrose West, a negro 18 years of age, convicted of murdering James Munroe, of Worth county, on the 19th of September, 1883, was hung to-day in the presence of 2,000 people. He was carried from the Albany jail to Isabella, the county seat. The first attempt at hanging was a horrible failure, the rope breaking, but after the lapse of an hour the noose was adjusted again, death speedily following the fall.

A STREET CAR MURDER. CINCINNATI, November 30.—At one o'clock this morning Frank Atkins, livid in the northeastern portion of the city, known as Walnut Hills, was awakened by firing, and found a street car standing still. As he approached it a man stepped off the car, fired at him and ran. Entering the car he found John Congrove, the driver, and Wm. Smith, conductor, bleeding and unconscious on the floor. He drove the car to the stable and called a surgeon. The men remained unconscious, their wounds being in the abdomen and supposed to be necessarily fatal. There are no witnesses to the shooting, but parties who got off the car before the shooting fell of a quarrel between the conductor and a passenger. This passenger is supposed to be the man who did the shooting.

OF COURSE HE WAS. SIOUX FALLS, N. Y., November 30.—Lawrence Feeney, aged 70 years, starved himself to death. He did not eat nor drink for over a week. He was out of his mind for a month.

RAILROAD MATTERS. A RECEIVER HAS THE ST. JOE AND WESTERN.

TOPICKA, Kan., November 30.—Judge McCrery in the United States circuit court yesterday delivered a decision in St. Joe & Western railroad case granting the petition of plaintiffs by ordering the appointment of a receiver. He held that under the laws of Kansas an order of foreclosure of a mortgage could not be made because by stay of execution a sale of the property would be stayed off six months and thus prevent report of the bill being made until the next November term of court, therefore in order to close up the business without delay he was compelled to appoint receiver.

THEY ALL DO IT. ST. LOUIS, November 30.—An adjourned meeting of passenger agents was held to-day to give the representative of the Lake Erie & Western an opportunity to defend that road against a charge of high mediation. The other five defendants in the indiscriminate charging that all the other roads were guilty of the same offense, which was not successfully denied, and the meeting adjourned.

A LIVELY WAR OF RATES. ST. PAUL, November 30.—It is feared the war on Chicago rates will be precipitated by the refusal of the Omaha road to live up to the local agreement, and recent tickets sold by scalpers at out rates. Omaha officials say other roads exchange their own tickets for those purchased via Omaha, giving a bonus, and then present the tickets for redemption. The general manager's agreement is to maintain rates which will prevent open cutting by the roads, but a lively war is anticipated through scalpers, and in the event of a break in the Iowa pool, may have open war.

THE CUT ON SALT LAKE FREIGHT. SALT LAKE, November 30.—The Union Pacific gives a twenty-five cent rate on freight unclassified from the Miss river to Salt Lake. The Denver & Rio Grande stick to the figures of their former cut, 50 cents.

FOR THE GAVEL.

A Little Indication of Cox's Strength. WASHINGTON, November 30.—It was expected that 20 democratic members of the New York delegation would attend a conference to-night, but only 16 put in an appearance. On a proposition to vote for Cox until released by him from any obligation to do so, only 11 votes were cast in the affirmative. The other five members would not vote for Cox throughout, although they expressed a willingness to go into the caucus as his supporters. The second choice of the five is understood to be Randall.

Swallowed Up by the Waves. CHICAGO, November 30.—A special from Toronto to The Daily News, says, The crew of the lumber barge, Hamilton, was rescued by the life saving crew at Sturgeon Point, Georgian Bay, this morning, after being exposed to the elements two days. The barge was in tow of a propeller, but was cut loose because she was water logged and drifted helplessly. The men on the barge were nearly dead from exposure when rescued. Telegrams received here state the Salt Ste. Marie is frozen over, blocking navigation into Lake Superior. All regular line propellers got through both ways, but one or two large steam barges got caught and will go into winter quarters. As the marine insurance expired, soon adjacent ports is practically closed for the winter season. The bark, Hungerford, whose probable loss was reported this morning from Toronto, has not yet been heard from, though she broke away from the steamer Niagara, four days ago. She had a crew of 35 men. The large Sweepstakes arrived at East Tawas.

A BRAND NEW PLANET. BOSTON, November 30.—A cable dispatch has been received at Harvard college observatory announcing the discovery of a small planet by Baliza, at Vienna. Its position, November 28, 13 hours 20 minutes, Greenwich time, was right ascension 3 hours 19 minutes 14 seconds, declination north 15 degrees 52 minutes 19 seconds, daily motion: right ascension 48 seconds, declination nothing. It is of the twelfth magnitude. The planet is readily identified at Harvard college observatory, and observed by Wendell as follows on November 30: Nine hours 39 minutes Cambridge time, right ascension 3 hours 17 minutes 27 seconds, declination north 15 degrees 51 1/10 minutes.

SCRATCHED ON NAILS. PITTSBURGH, Pa., November 30.—The Iron Age publishes this week a number of letters from nail manufacturers, giving views of the present condition and future prospects of the trade. A member of the Western Nail association says: Manufacturers will control the product by suspensions. If a stoppage of five weeks will not effect the object another stop will follow. Another member considers the outlook for 1884 decidedly gloomy, while the eastern manufacturers expression of opinion is that the great increase of factories was caused by the Pittsburgh strike two years ago, as during that time a bonum was created which resulted in the organization of many new plants. They, therefore, fear the trade cannot be controlled. The president of the Cuba Iron and Nail company, of A St. Louis Amateur Makes the Biggest Run on Record.

PARIS, November 30.—The concluding game between Schaefer and Vignaux for the billiard championship was witnessed by a large crowd. Many persons were unable to gain entrance to the hall. Before the game Schaefer announced that, whatever the issue, he would challenge Vignaux to play a new game with cushions only, the points and the stake to be the same as in the present match. Rudolphe challenged the winner of the present game to play a similar game with him. Vignaux accepted Schaefer's challenge. Schaefer did not answer Rudolphe's challenge. Vignaux began to play with runs of 62. Schaefer began to make up the ground lost yesterday, and made runs of 164 and 156, reaching a total of 615, Vignaux having made 237.

At this point there was an intermission. When the game was resumed, Schaefer made runs of 69, 47, 72 and 81. Vignaux made runs of 110 and 78. Vignaux finally won, leaving Schaefer 124 behind. Vignaux played 28 times; Schaefer 27 times. At the conclusion of the match Vignaux was loudly cheered.

WILLIAM COTTON'S MARVELLOUS RUN. ST. LOUIS, November 30.—William Cotton, a well known local billiardist, in a practice game of three-ball billiards, to-day, made a run of 219, the highest ever made, beating Schaefer's best run by 24 points.

AR UNEXPLAINED DISASTER. WORCESTER, Mass., November 30.—The persons injured in the accident last Wednesday on the Boston, Barre & Gardner railroad were all living this morning. The recovery of Mrs. A. G. Davis, of Hubbardston, and Mrs. Hildland Marble, of Holden, is very doubtful. There is no explanation of the accident. The track was recently laid with steel rails and the car was new. It went down the embankment 25 feet, and rolled over once or twice, but the running gear was not displaced. Railroad men say it is inconceivable that a car could have gone over in such a manner without tearing off the trucks.

Catarrh.

At this season of the year everybody has a cold and some very bad ones. By frequent exposure the membranes of the nose become very sensitive, and catarrh and influenza are epidemic. Relief may be obtained by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

For many years in sea season, beginning as far back as I can remember when I had the catarrh in my head. It consisted of a continual flow from my nose.

Ringing and Bursting Noises in my head. Sometimes the hearing in my left ear was affected. Five years ago, about this season of the year, I began to use Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was helped right away, but I continued to use it until I felt my myself cured.—Mrs. Elias H. Guilford, Lowell, Mass.

Jerome Downell merchant and extensive miller at Victoria, Ontario county, N. Y., writes: "I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for my Catarrh, and it has helped me. I consider Hood's Sarsaparilla one of the best remedies for blood disease to be obtained."

100 Doses One Dollar. "I have been troubled with that distressing complaint, catarrh, and have been using Hood's Sarsaparilla, and find it the best remedy I have ever taken. My Catarrh lasted ten years and never could get any relief until I was cured by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla."—Martin Skidell, Chicago, Ill.

Dange, from Catarrh. Depends upon the amount and extent of the Seroitis infection. Unquestionably many deaths from Catarrh are caused by neglecting the disease. There is a violent distress, protracted and disgusting spells, the eye weeps, the nose discharges copiously, and the head aches to split.

In such cases Hood's Sarsaparilla corrects the catarrh by its direct action in discharging the poison from the blood through nature's great outlet, so that healthy, sound blood reaches the membranes of the sinuses.
