The Western Fireman, in discussing the situation in Council Bluffs, says the city will be very foolish if, even after the water works are started, it does away with the other steamer or reduces the paid department or changes it into a volunteer department. It claims that the history of other cities which have made such change shows it is a bad mistake.

Young Hearts, 1778 The Thanksgiving day was one of special interest to the girls' sewing school. This school has been for some time in operatien under the management of some kind hearted ladies, who meet with these girls every Saturday afternoon, and besides instructing them in manners and morals, give them practical instruction in sewing, so that they are made "not only good, but good for something." On Thanksgiving day the ladies provided for the girls a big dinner and a happy time in the parlors of the Congregational church, About 40 of the litspread tables. ### FORGOTTEN MERCIES.

Rev. A. K. Bates Reminds the People of Some of Them.

The Broadway Methodist church was illed almost to an overflow on Thanksgiving day at the union service held The opening services were con ducted by Rev. Mr. Mackay, rector of St. Paul's church; Rev. J. G. Lemen, of strong, of the Methodist church. Many were glad to see the latter once more in public, though he has not sufficiently reovered from his late injuries to be able o take any very active part, and still has to wear a sling for his arm. The sermon of the day was preached by Rev. A. K. Bates, whose text was, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits." The sermon had the merit, so unusual on such a day and occasion, of being brief, and those to whom the day was one of feasting rather than of preaching, could not complain of being kept long horse in front of the office, Loring took ad- from the fat things awaiting them. The sermon was excellent as well as brief, and it was a gratification to many, who had not before had the privilege of hearing this gentleman, to find that the Presbyterians had secured for their paster so eloquent and scholarly a young man. His theme was "The For gotten Mercies," He began with th delights furmshed by nature, the rare beauty which surrounded all, and which was yet deemed so common that many forget to even thank God for it. The there were the delights of the physical senses, the blessing of a reasonably sound body, even the satisfaction of cating, sleeping, breathing, thinking. The bles-sings of intellectual ability, the happiness of social intercourse, and above all the blessings for man's spiritual nature. In closing he spoke feelingly of the gift of all gifts, Christ He confessed that some of the mercies mentioned by him seemed old and perhaps stale truths, and yet the very fact that these mercies had been given so long as to be common, made man's ingratitude all the more apparent, for few there were who ever thought of giving God specific thanks for any of

The entertainment given at the Baptist church last evening by Prof. Clyde and his stercopticon, was so enjoyable, in- S. S WAGNER, structive and entertaining that there will be a still greater rush this evening. Views are given showing the beauties of every land. Scenery which it would JACOB KOCH cost much money to visit is brought before ones eyes at a merely nominal expense, and so lite-like that one can hard- W. W SHERMAN, surroundings and absence of stage setting, the scenes themselves. The great cities of the world are to be seen, temples, ruins, master paintings, statuary of lifesize, humorous and comic scenes, in fact a wonderful variety is presented, and all this for only twenty-five cents, while children can enjoy it for fifteen cents. Every view covers seventy square feet of canvass and is brilliantly illuminated. Besides the merit of the entertainment, all who attend will have the satisfaction of feeling that they are helping the Baptist church make needed improvements in their place of worship, the proceeds going for that purpose. Every citizen, of whatever faith, is materially inter-ested in having the churches of the city furnished in an attractive and comfortable manner, and the enterprise of the Baptist church should meet with hearty support, especially when an entertain-ment is offered which more than repays
