Mr. Oglesby is one of the most accommodating waiters in the Paxton hotel dining room, and Col. Simms rises to remark that another good man has gone wrong and joined the army of martyrs.

A Pleasant Gathering.

On Christmas eve Messrs. Stevens & Son, bullders and contractors, corner of Twenty-fifth and Davenport streets, entertained their employes, as is their custom each year. It was a very pleasant affair and one long to be remembered. The music was furnished by Misses Brown and Stevens and Mr. Brown, Dr. Collins and Mr. W. Stevens. His resignation will take place January 1. feetly at home by a pleasing address of welcome by Mr. W. Stevens, at the close of which a beautiful supper was served.

BLACKMAIL OR NO?

Further Developments in the Shaw-Betts Case.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Jennie E. Shaw made her advent into the police court and filed a complaint of essault and battery against Louis Betis. Mrs. failed to pay her bills, as he had agreed to do.

On the other hand Betts claims that Mrs. Shaw's course has been a blackmailing scheme from beginning to end. Furthermore, it is alleged that the lady has been in the habit of writing similar letters to prominent business men of this city with reference to the same girl. One man, it is claimed, was called upon to respond with a $100 note for the girl's board-bill. He replied with an emphatic note, slightly tinged with profanity. Others have been called upen in the same manner.

The girl, Lillie Brown, is only abou 16 years of age, and until about three month's ago when she went to Mrs. Shaw's had been a waiter at restaurants and hotels, and borne a character gene rally supposed to be good.

some trace. The ponds were dragged, all my men were included in the searchers, and I hired detectives and offered large rewards. A reward of $1,000 is still standing, and I would gladly pay it for his recovery. I did this simply because he was in my employ at the time and because of his widowed mother, who is almost frantic at the loss of her sor.
