

THE DAILY BEE. COUNCIL BLUFFS. Monday Morning, Jan. 12. SUBSCRIPTION RATES. OFFICE: 67 Pearl Street, West Broadway. MINOR MENTION.

Go the Bliss' and get a nice crazy quilt package for ten cents. Great sale of embroideries and white goods at Cooke & Morgan's.

The Young Men's Shooting Club meets at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Pacific house.

Ladies, you can get a fine dress hat or bonnet at Bliss' now at prices lower than anywhere on earth.

The funeral of Mrs. S. T. Walker will be held from the family residence on Fourth street yesterday.

A grand ball will be given by the Carpenters' Union, Lodge No. 70, at Beno's hall, Wednesday January 14.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Shedy was held Saturday and the remains taken to Clinton, Iowa, for burial there.

Plain and checked Nainsooks, Piques, Cambric, Linen and D'irelands just received at Cooke & Morgan's, 347 Broadway.

Bliss gives the best bargains ever given in the west, one hundred per cent. cheaper than any wholesale house can sell them.

Sheriff Gulttar started last night for Fort Madison with four prisoners, L. C. Taylor, James Doyle, E. Callahan and John Phillips.

The "Great Republic" is to be repeated next Friday and Saturday evenings at the opera house for the benefit of G. A. R. relief fund.

There was no preaching services in Saint's chapel yesterday, Rev. Mr. McDowell having been detained in Boone by duties there.

Mrs. G. W. Clark seeks now to be free from George Clark. She says he has maltreated her and threatened to give her a ride in a box to the cemetery.

The case of T. E. Davidson, charged with hitting a girl with a beer-glass, came up in the superior court on Saturday, but was continued another week.

Rev. Mr. Mackey gave another of his bible talks last evening in St. Paul's church. A great many have become interested in his excellent series of discourses.

The January number of the local time tables of the Burlington route is a neat, convenient guide book for all the patrons of the popular "Q," and is being distributed now.

There are thirty-four who have paid their licenses under the celebrated "pop" ordinance, and the mayor has ordered the police to arrest all others found selling liquors or keeping saloons.

The Walnut Bureau in speaking of the bursting of the cotton-speculation bubble, gets religiously wrathful and quotes: "For it must needs be that offenses come; but we be not to man through whom the offense cometh."

Joe Price and I. W. Duncan are about to open an English kitchen opposite the city building. Mr. Price has already gained a good reputation by his lunch counters, and Mr. Duncan has been head cook at Bechtel's.

J. A. McDonald, who was sentenced to six months in the penitentiary for stealing clothing from E. Keller's residence, has been given the privilege of spending the time in the jail here, instead of the penitentiary at Ft. Madison.

Emma Larne wants a divorce from William Larne to whom she was married four years ago. She charges him with drinking too much, not supporting her properly, and that he has been abusive, one time smashing a stove and trying to hit her with a kerosene lamp.

Mr. Walker, the barkeeper in a saloon on Broadway, was before the court Saturday charged with assaulting Doc Roberts. Walker gave bonds for his appearance for trial to-day, and claims that the cause of the trouble was that Roberts insulted the wife of the proprietor of the saloon.

The Tabor Nonconformist is reported as having suspended. Whether the opening of its columns to the discussion of spiritualism was the last straw does not appear. The Vicinca have worked like heroes in support of their peculiar views and have shown great pluck in meeting opposition.

The term of office of A. S. Burns, city marshal of Walnut, having expired and the treasury being so low that the council does not feel authorized to continue in office, the saloon men have petitioned for him to be retained, the petition being accompanied by a pledge on the part of the "saloon men" to pay the salary themselves, $40 a month.

Now that the investigation of the police force has started, let the job be done thoroughly. There should be no compromise to the charges made by the marshal, but let all charges be sifted. Then let the police force be weeded out and the chief separated from the wheat when this job is well done, the attention should be turned to the marshal's department and a like course followed there.

The county supervisors invite architects to present plans and specifications for a new court house, the cost of the building not to exceed $150,000, the court house to have three fronts, and to be fire-proof throughout. These plans are to be filed before February 2, at which time the board will probably then decide to submit the question to the voters, who can then have something definite by which to make up their judgments.

Rev. Mr. Cowan, of Tabor, supplied the pulpit of the Congregational church here yesterday. In the morning he preached one of the best sermons heard within the church walls for many a Sunday. His subject was an old one, "Faith," but he presented fresh thoughts in so clear and so charming a manner as to delight all his hearers. Miss Crispy sang a very pleasing solo, as part of the opening service, it being a Scotch song of rare sweetness and tenderness.

The man Patton, who was arrested in Omaha, on the supposition that he was one J. C. Pusey, the embroiling and skitting employe of the Kansas penitentiary, was in the city the latter part of last week and had a talk with Chief Skinner. He says that now all is explained he does not blame the officers, but thinks he answers so closely the description of Pusey as to warrant the officers in thinking he was the man. He says that Pusey has been caught in Ohio.

Rev. Mr. Hastings, of Colorado, is to supply the pulpit of the Baptist church for a few Sundays. A dispatch from New York received by Rev. Mr. Proper, the state missionary, indicates that the home mission society will accept the charge of the church property here, and hold it in trust until a new church is organized, the old one having disbanded. The plan now seems to be to hold regular services there, but not to organize as a church until sufficient numbers express their desire for such an organization and their willingness to work in harmony and support it cheerfully.

Ed Ollison, who gained quite a reputation here as a cook, is now connected with a restaurant in Chillicothe, Ohio. The News of that city contains a half column account of an eating contest on a wager, between Ed and a big policeman there. The policeman got away with so much that Ed finally cried out for him to hold up, and the policeman had the cheek to tell him as he arose from the table, "Well, Ed, I'll let you off easy this time as my supper is about ready, and my wife has prepared for me my favorite dish, rabbits, and if I don't eat three or four she will send for the doctor, thinking I'm sick," and out he started leaving Ollison a broken-hearted owner of a badly demoralized cafe.

DEATH OF LOVELESS. The Small Pox Patient Cannot Now Tell the Story of Hunger and Neglect. A Shame to Council Bluffs.

The Bee has very freely and frankly set forth the peculiar manner in which small-pox patients have been handled here, and all investigations thus far seem to corroborate the statement that there has been gross mismanagement and neglect. It seems difficult to locate the blame, but while city authorities have quarreled with county authorities, as to which shall take charge of such cases, while the attorneys have differed as to the law, while the financiers disputed about how the expenses shall be borne, while the city physician and the county physician have been clashing, and different officials excusing themselves by saying the duties belong to others, the result has been the same—patients have been left to suffer, and to die.

But a short time ago a girl was taken to the pest house, was reported as getting along well, but suddenly died. It was claimed that in her feverish restlessness she was not watched sufficiently close by her nurses who were being paid $8 a day and board, and that she got out of doors, the cold naturally causing death to speedily follow. The poor girl's treatment and her death caused a little talk among the officials, but no thorough investigation or action was taken.

Now appears another case, that of Mr. Loveless in Streetville. The facts, as THE BEE gets them are that he was taken ill a little less than two weeks ago, but it was not until a week ago last Friday night that it appeared clear that it was the small pox. The family with whom he was boarding at the time moved out, leaving him alone. The officials were notified the next morning, Saturday, but it was not until Sunday afternoon that a nurse was provided for him. For about thirty-six hours he was left alone without care, without food, specially neglected every way. The quarantine guard told THE BEE man that Sunday morning he took the man some milk and bread, and to use his own words, "It just broke me all up to see the shape things were in there." The officer did not dare enter the house, but putting the food on the doorstep he called out for the man to come to the door and get it. The poor fellow has been dead for the moment he raised his head from the pillow he was so dizzy. As he said himself, "I've got the blind staggers." He urged the officer to come in, but the latter did not dare expose himself, and so suggested to the poor fellow to put a quilt or something over his shoulders, so as not to catch cold, and see if he could not crawl to the door. The officer, standing a little way from the door, finally saw the sick man crawl to the door, but with nothing on him, clutch the food, and crawl in again. Such is the picture as it was drawn by the officer. During the past week there has been some dispute as to what physician shall attend him. Dr. Bellinger is in attendance, but the board of health, which has been scoring him lately, and who has let the contract for such cases to Dr. Seybert, ordered him to desist, and gave orders to the guard not to let him pass into the house. Dr. Bellinger claimed that he was employed by the man himself, and would look to him for his pay, and as to the matter of the man having been treated by him before for other sickness, and that the board of health had no right to prevent a man from employing, at his own expense, whatever physician he chose. Dr. Bellinger stated to the BEE man Thursday night that no food had been supplied the sick man for thirty-six hours, except a little rice. In view of all the facts, as they can now be learned, it seems that there shall be not only an end to all this foolish management, or lack of management, but that the case should be thoroughly investigated, and no negligence on the part of any one concerned shall be overlooked.

Whereas, our deceased brother had been a resident of the city since 1853, and a respected member of the lodge for thirty-one years; had during his long residence in the community maintained the respect and confidence of his fellow-men; had held among other places of trust, those of mayor of the city and sheriff of the county; and had been the loved and respected head of a family, several of whose members had preceded him to the land of spirits; therefore,

Resolved, That we deem it fitting that we should in this public manner record our deep sorrow for his death, and tender, as we now do, to his surviving son and daughter and other relatives, our sincere sympathy in the loss which they have sustained.

Resolved, That in token of respect for Brother Doughty, our lodge room be draped in mourning for thirty days in the usual manner.

"THOU ART THE MAN." So Says the Jury to Cuff Johnson Who is Charged With Murdering McGonigle.

Motion For a New Trial.

The jury in the case of James Johnson, better known as Cuff Johnson, on Saturday afternoon returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, and fixing the penalty at life imprisonment in the penitentiary. The victim of this murder was William McGonigle, a hotel man at Woodbine, who came to this city about the 3th of October, with $300 in his pocket, to buy supplies, etc. He also had a gold watch and chain. On the morning of the 8th of October he was found lying in an outhouse in the rear of the Western hotel on upper Broadway. He was insensible, his clothes were about stripped from him, and he had a severe blow on the head, besides having received blows on his shoulder and arm, the arm being completely paralyzed. His money and valuables were gone, and he was in no condition to give any information about the affair. After being removed to his home in Woodbine he revived enough to say in answer to a query as to how he got hurt: "There were two of them, Saunders and Johnson, arrested them." He grew rapidly worse and within a week died. In the meantime the police at work on the case learned that McGonigle was drinking some the night before he was found, and that he was in company with two colored men, of whom one was said to be Johnson, and who was arrested, they not being able to find the other. It was learned that at a dance Johnson showed a watch and chain, and that he had a $50 bill, and also that in conversation he had boasted of having done up a fellow who had money. The evidence for the state was fully and strongly brought out by Mr. Thorne and Mr. Sims, while the prisoner's attorney, Col. Daily and Col. Lind, made a strong fight in his behalf. The jury were out twenty-four hours, and then brought in the verdict of guilty. The attorneys for the defense at once moved for a new trial, and the motion is to be heard by Judge Loofbourow next Friday.

The prisoner and his mother seemed the least concerned of any who watched the progress of the trial. On the witness stand Johnson seemed so little concerned and treated the matter so lightly that many lookers-on could not believe that a man who had committed such a crime could be so little moved. It is claimed that there is still stronger evidence against him, which will be forthcoming in case of another trial. It is understood that the prosecution has now learned the whereabouts of the watch, and will be able to show how and where Johnson disposed of it, and that other equally important evidence will be produced. The man Johnson belongs to the same family two members of which caused such a sensation by the husband shooting his wife and then killing himself.
