

THE "DAILY BEE"

Monday Morning, Feb. 2.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Peter Dentar, the small-pox patient, was discharged from the pest house Saturday.

Seventeen new members received the right hand of fellowship at the Presbyterian church yesterday morning.

Fred Westbrook and C. E. Hacker, the professional bicyclists, returned to the city last night, after a successful tour of the state.

D. I. Moody, the evangelist, will hold a three days' convention in Omaha about the middle of March. Delegates from all parts of the state will be in attendance.

Charles Pries and Mike Gilligan became involved in a drunken row Saturday night, in which Gilligan was quite severely cut about the head. Both were arrested.

Henry Hartman, who vainly attempted suicide by gashing his throat last Sunday morning, is now at St. Joseph's hospital and progressing favorably toward recovery.

A great many complaints are made of daily papers, which are left by the carriers, being carried off by sneak thieves. It is proposed to watch these fellows and make an example of the first one caught.

Lon Catlett and Belle Harris, two young sports, were arrested last night, charged with being inmates of a house of prostitution within the forbidden quarter, the school house block of the East Dodge street building.

Elias Gish, the old standby at Drexel & Maul's undertaking rooms, has been quite ill for a few days past, but is now on the high road to ultimate recovery, a fact which his many friends in this city will be pleased to learn.

The Musical Union orchestra gave an afternoon concert at Turner hall yesterday which was largely attended by the lovers of artistic music. It is needless to say that the affair was up to the usual high standard of merit of the concerts given by this organization.

Notorious Belle Sanford, colored, in company with a man by the name of Tom McGregor, was arrested yesterday morning on a charge of disturbing the peace by fighting. Belle stoutly refused to tell her story, declining to have anything to do with "them pesky idlers."

The Creighton college scientific exhibition postponed on account of the unfavorable weather of December 30th will take place next Thursday, February 5th. It is earnestly hoped that no unfavorable weather will prevent those who were formerly invited from enjoying a scientific treat.

The report that Miss Annie Davis had run away Friday afternoon is utterly false. Miss Annie is a young lady of pure and perfectly unquestioned character. The story was a malicious one, and bolstered up by men who ought to know better than to deceive her anxious father in the manner in which they did.

The funeral of John Cassidy, the ex-soldier who ended his life with Laudium, took place Saturday afternoon from McCarty & Burke's undertaking rooms. A detail from his old company, K, of the Fourth Infantry, came down from Fort Omaha, escorted the body to the Holy Sepulchre cemetery and fired a volley over the grave.

A report was circulated yesterday that small pox had broken out afresh in the St. Joseph hospital. It was even rumored that one of the sisters had been taken ill and died of the dread disease. The hospital physicians, however, say that there is no truth in the stories, and that at present there is not the slightest sign of another outbreak of the plague.

John Vanvalkenburg, of Fort Madison, Iowa, supreme challenger of the Knights of Pythias, will arrive in this city on Thursday morning next, and will be received at the depot by the various K. of P. lodges in the city, who will escort him to the Paxton. In the evening he will exemplify the secret work of the order and will be tendered a banquet and ball at the Knight's hall.

Mr. James Wilson, the stenographer, relates an amusing experience which he had in a Tenth street resort Saturday night. Mr. Wilson, who is British to the backbone, was discussing with a friend the dynamite horror, when he was approached by a native son of Erin, a trifle the worse for intimate communion with John Barleycorn and who blurted out, "And it's that yer don't believe thin dynamite 'plussions were all right, eh?" Mr. Wilson carefully defined his position on the point, when he was struck by the Irishman, whose action drove Mr. Wilson to self-defense. In the course of the national struggle (in miniature) Mr. Wilson was slightly cut with a knife over the right eye, sustaining, however, no serious injury.

Two Bad Men

To the Editor of THE BEE.

Wednesday last, three young men of this city went over to the Bluffs. One of them (name unknown) asked the other two for a drink. They took their drinks and had a lunch to boot. When they had taken lunch, he who asked them in walked out leaving his partners behind him. The promoter took hold of one of them and asked him to pay for it, but he would not, and so followed a quarrel between them. The police arrived and arrested this young man, who gave his name as Frank Quirk. The other young man was also arrested for not paying and for using the proprietor's wife, and gave his name as Pete Powers. They were bailed out to appear next morning before the judge. He asked them what occupation they followed. T. Quirk said he was a blacksmith and Pete Powers a moulder. They were dismissed. We learned afterwards that they gave false names, and that their right names were Mike O'Brien and Bartholomew Maher, two well known loafers of this city.

POLICE COURT.

An Interesting Morning Session in This Tribunal.

Three Small Boys to go to the Reform School and Mrs. "Whisky Jack" Gets a Dose of Bread and Water.

Saturday's session of police court was a very interesting one and called out a large crowd of spectators.

Andrew Wilson was charged with drunkenness, but denied the charge. After several witnesses had been sworn he admitted that he had been drunk and was "slashed" to the tune of $10 and costs. Alfred Lupton admitted having been drunk and was fined $5 and costs.

Mrs. Kate Connolly, wife of the notorious "Whisky Jack," was charged with being drunk. She denied the charge stoutly and said that she had only drunk a nickle's worth of beer. "Didn't you drink my whisky?" asked his honor. "Niver a drop," replied the prisoner. "Nor gin!" continued the court. "Divil a gin," retorted the woman. Two officers who arrested her were sworn and testified that she was so drunk that it was necessary to get an express wagon to haul her to jail.

"Yes," said the woman, "They broke in the door of me, and loaded me into a wagon like a dog and hauled me off to jail." "Whisky Jack" appeared in behalf of his wife, but he was so drunk that he was ordered to beat a retreat or he would be run into jail.

After quite a squabble the woman was fined $1 and sentenced to the county jail for one week on bread and water. Jack made another appeal, but it was no go and the woman went up on the hill.

Robert Parks was charged with vagrancy. He pleaded not guilty and was discharged, with orders to find work or leave the city immediately. He is the man who recently robbed "Sarah Mary" of $10, after she had taken him in and given him a night's lodging.

The next case was that of the state against Owen Connolly, a son of "Whisky Jack, and Kate Connolly," and Will Miller, a colored boy, for stealing two turkeys from Bergen & Smiley's grocery store. They said they stole the turkeys and sold them at Ella Mitchell's den for $5 cents. They were both held and will be sent to the reform school. Why the Ella Mitchell dive is allowed to run is a thing which no man can find out. It is nothing more than a fence and a rendezvous for the vices and thugs. The woman and her whole gang should be immediately driven from the city and never allowed to return under penalty of death or something worse. She has figured in more criminal cases than any other person in Omaha, barring, perhaps, Clara Thomas, another of her class.

Dan Thompson, a youth of twelve years, was charged with stealing a book from Caulfield's book store. He said that the colored boy, Will Miller, had stolen the book and that he was going to sell it for him. He said that a Mrs. Bull, who lives on Tenth street, bought such things and even sends out small boys to steal for her, paying them a premium upon all they bring in. If such is the case it is high time that the city be rid of this school for crime and the woman who acts as promper and teacher, be driven hence to return no more forever. Dan said he had twenty cents, but that he spent it in playing pool at O'Connell's place on Tenth street. The judge was thunderstruck at finding out that boys only twelve years old were allowed to play pool. This is about the only class of custom that O'Connell has and he has small stools made for the little boys so that they can reach up to the table to make a shot. An information was at once filed against O'Connell for allowing minors to play in his place. The boy, Thompson, was held and will be sent to the reform school along with the others.

THE COMING FAIR.

The Fair of the Omaha Benevolent Society at Falconer's Hall.

This evening in Falconer's hall, will be opened the fair of the Omaha Benevolent society. For several weeks this organization has been laboring hard to make this fair a success and their anticipations will be more than realized for the right persons are at the head of it to make it go.

Many valuable donations have been received and many more are promised. The hall will be attractively decorated and each evening a choice musical programme will be given after which all who desire can indulge in a pleasant dance to the strains of the Musical Union orchestra.

To-night the Musical Union orchestra, composed of twenty-five pieces, will give a grand concert. The Synagogue choir, a professional vocal organization, will also take part in the entertainment and it promises to be a rich one.

Season tickets can be obtained for $1; single admission tickets, 25 cents.

The Boys' Home.

We are pleased to learn that the efforts of Messrs. Jarvis and Howard, the president and secretary of the Youth's Mutual Improvement association, are meeting with success. The room is centrally located and is being fitted up to be used as a reading room, dining room and ere long a night school will be inaugurated, so that the boys will not only have a home, but the advantages of school life as well.

To teach them habits of economy, arrangements have been made with the Savings bank to accept such deposits as the boys can make from day to day, which will be a great incentive to them to save their earnings.

If the readers should receive a postal, requesting a monthly contribution of from five cents a month up, don't throw it into the waste basket, but fill out the amount and mail it to the secretary.

The Ministerial association meets in the Y. M. C. A. rooms every Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock.
