MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

The high-handed attempt of President Barrios, of the republic of Guatemala, to unite the five republics of Central America into one confederation without so much as asking their consent, has stirred up a little breeze that extends from the Gulf of Mexico to the senate chamber of the United States.

The total population of these republics is about 2,600,000. Guatemala has 1,200,000 inhabitants, of whom only 20,000 are whites. Honduras has 450,000 and San Salvador 600,000, there being not more than 15,000 whites in the states.

It is rather amusing at this time to read the resignation from the Chicago democratic central committee of Joseph C. Mackin, one of the convicted election crooks.

THE BURLINGTON HAWKEYE printers have struck against a reduction of ten per cent. This is one of the depressive effects of a change in the national administration.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE makes a mistake in stating that Dakota has a population as large as that of Nebraska. Dakota has less than 500,000 people, while Nebraska has nearly 800,000.

THE NEW YORK STAR will very shortly resume its publication of a daily issue. In politics it will be independent.

THE CHICAGO NEWS says that "Senator Van Wyck may be a crank, but the crusade against that 'backbone grant' decision indicates that even a crank may sometimes serve useful purposes."

HON. J. E. BOYD has been tendered the nomination of mayor by a large number of citizens, and he has accepted the nomination upon the understanding that he is to be considered a citizens' candidate, irrespective of party.

GREAT pressure is being brought to bear, as we expected it would be, upon President Cleveland to rapidly displace the republican office holders all along the line in order to make room for the democrats.

THE number of justices of the peace, under a law passed by the last legislature has been reduced from six to three in Omaha. The city is to be divided into three districts, each district to contain as nearly as possible one-third of the population.

MACKIN AND GALLAGHER, two of the Chicago election conspirators, have been sent to state prison for two years, and fined $5,000 each.

It won't do for the wholesale liquor dealers to attempt to do business under a druggist's license. They might as well plunk down their $1,000 first as last.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS having said that his road, the Union Pacific, "serves" six states and four territories, the Denver Tribune-Republican corrects him by saying: "We don't know much about the others, but it strikes us that 'serves' is not the right word to describe what it does for Colorado."

IT may interest the gentlemen who have invested in the South Omaha dressed beef enterprise, to learn that about five hundred marketmen of Boston attended an auction sale of a car-load of fresh beef from St. Louis, one quarter being disposed of at a time.

DETECTIVE POUND, who has been indicted for the murder of James Griffin, one of the state treasury raiders, will probably get a different reward from that which he expected.

THE IOWA PROHIBITORY liquor law may be a dead letter in some places, but that it can be enforced is demonstrated by the fact that a Des Moines saloonkeeper, who was indicted for violation of the law, has been convicted by a jury on thirty-five counts out of sixty, and the court assessed a fine of $50 on each count, making a total of $1,750.

SENATOR VAN WYCK continues to receive deserved compliments from all the leading newspapers of the country. The following from the Philadelphia Record, which is only one of a hundred similar compliments, will no doubt be appreciated by the senator's friends in Nebraska:

SENATOR VAN WYCK is indefatigable in his warfare on the corporate grabbers of the public domain. His resolution in relation to the Atlantic and Gulf West India Transit company is designed to restore more lands forfeited to the government by the failure of this company to comply with the terms of its grant.

POSTMASTER PEARSON, of New York, whose term expires on the 21st of this month, will probably have to go. The democrats, who of course want to see him ousted, have found cause for his removal, which they believe will satisfy the president.

THE Springfield Republican says that the first real contest between the reformers and spoliemen will come over the New York postoffice, Postmaster Pearson's term expiring on the 21st. He is supported by all the independents and a part of the democrats for another term.

IT has been discovered that the patronage at the disposal of the vice-president consists of a private secretary, a telegraph operator for the senate, and keeper of the senate restaurant.

A paper in Detroit had the following statement in its account of the consecration of Dr. Worthington of that city to bishopric of Nebraska, which took place a few days ago: "The Te Deum was breathed over him, the solemn act was performed, and the Rev. George Worthington was no more."

more than $100. We are informed that agents from Omaha are still circulating all over the state for dead hogs and other animals which have died from cholera or other diseases, and are purchasing and shipping them to this city, in direct violation of the law, and that the shipments are both numerous and large.

THE Nebraska university ought to take a very high rank among the educational institutions of this country. It is about to import from Europe a professor who has been elected to the chair of Sanskrit and modern languages.

WAR RECOLLECTIONS.

The Campaigns of the Second Iowa Infantry.

From Donelson to Pittsburg Landing.

Camping in the Tennessee Woods--The Long-roll--Double-quick to the Front--Sunday's Battle at Shiloh.

Written for THE BEE.

In a few days after the surrender [of Donelson we found ourselves] quartered in log cabins which had been built by the confederate forces. They were warmed by means of fire-places constructed of sticks and clay which did not throw out much heat.

Here we were visited by a great many people from the north. Governor Kirkwood, of Iowa, made us a speech, telling us that "the backbone of the rebellion was broken," that the war was nearly over, and that we would all be home by the following fourth of July.

On the 12th of March we embarked on the "Champion No. Four," and proceeded up the river and after a good deal of steaming up and down past a long line of heavily loaded boats, finally on the 9th embarked at SHILOH.

or Pittsburg Landing. While our boat was tied up near the landing and we were still on board a soldier belonging to the Second Iowa, which regiment was on a steamer, came on board and asked us to further up stream, fall off the crowded hurricane deck and was swept down past us by the swift current.

Our camp at Shiloh, about three-fourths of a mile from the landing, was delightfully located on a handsome meadow, with a large forest trees on three sides, and the ground was very fertile.

The legislature passed two railroad bills--one to regulate fares the other to establish a commission to collect statistics, but it was very careful to give it no power of action in the matter of regulating rates.

ence the rebel guns. Solid shot, grape, canister and bursting shell pass over us in a fearful manner, and here we have in a forty-eight minutes killed and wounded one of our company threw his foot forward to stop a piece of exploded shell which was thrown towards the line and which he thought had spent its force and instantly his foot is so that amputation follows. I am lying so close to Capt. Bob Little that I could touch him by putting out my hand when a shell bursts directly in my front and a jagged piece of iron tears his arm so nearly off that it hangs by a slender bit of flesh and muscle as he jumps to his feet, and crazy with the shock and pain, shouts, "here, boys! here!" and drops to the ground insensible.

Meanwhile the crash of musketry and the roar of artillery at other points of the battlefield has become absolutely appalling. At least 50,000 men are engaged in the dreadful carnage and the slaughter is frightful. The look day is drawing toward its close; there is quiet in our immediate front, but the firing on our right and left appears to be getting nearer and nearer, and it is evident that our forces are falling back.

We moved back in good order, finding the flanks of our division "in the air," entirely disconnected from any other command. To the right and left through the open woods we see a long line of union soldiers extending in an oblique direction, marching towards each other.

and shelter for the gun boats is made, while the confederates with cheers and yells "follow fast and follow faster." I soon find myself entirely cut off from my company and hurry along, the rebel bullets doing great execution in the surging of the water.
