

THE DAILY BEE COUNCIL BLUFFS. Wednesday Morning, March 25

SUBSCRIPTION RATES. By Carrier... Office: 7 Pearl Street, near Broadway.

MINOR MENTION.

See J. Reiter's new spring goods. Easter cards, half price, at Seaman's. The paving of Broadway will be completed in three days probably.

If that new patent wagon could be turned into a street sprinkler, it would be a good change. Otto Lund took a drive to Crescent yesterday on a bat. He won, making it inside of two hours.

The police now want to make an arrangement by which they can pay their bills in the same city script in which they get their pay.

John Hammer's lime house, with 200 bushels of lime, was destroyed by fire at about 1 o'clock yesterday morning. It was located on upper Vine street. The election of city clerk, chief clerk of the fire department and other city officers is to take place at the meeting of the city council, the first Wednesday in April.

The Byron combination is said to have wound up their show at the opera house Monday night by a set-to between the manager and property man in which both got badly up.

The temperance meetings continue at the Presbyterian church. Mr. Woodford as a speaker is interesting and earnest, and is convincing many of the errors of their ways. The forces in the county treasurer's office is kept at work nights as well as days, there being a rush of taxpayers who want to avoid the penalty which is incurred after April 1st.

Justice Trainey will now have to pay his own office rent. The council has decided to quit paying the rent of the place as a mayor's office, the aldermen thinking the mayor can have desk room in the city building if he wants. The county supervisors and County Auditor Kirkland left yesterday for Marysville, Mo., to look at the iron revolving jail there which is similar to the one to be built here. They will also look at some stone while on this trip so as to get some idea of what material shall be used on the new court house.

It is proposed to build twenty feet additional to the rear of the old feed store now used as a city building, so that vault room may be provided for the old city records. In making the improvement it is probable that provision will also be made for a room to be used by the mayor as his office and for council meetings for their meetings. Supervisor Graham has his eyes open to the county's interest. He is giving attention to the important fact that drainage and sewerage must be provided for the new court house and jail. This is certainly a very necessary matter to be arranged, and it is well that Mr. Graham has started in to early to see that it is provided for. The city council will doubtless co-operate heartily and promptly with the board of supervisors in this matter.

Ed Sanders was before Judge Aylesworth yesterday on a charge of disturbing the peace and threatening to kill George Beemer, who rents a house from him, both living on North Madison street. The trouble seems to have arisen from the fact that there are children in both families, and no fence separates the yards. The little folks got to quarrelling, the older folks picked it up, and a general row ensued. Judge Aylesworth gave one of his fatherly talks and dismissed the matter, with warnings.

There seems to be a general disgust over the city's recent purchase of a patrol wagon. The chief reason for getting one was that Des Moines had got one, and there are a number of the city officials who seem to set up Des Moines as a divinity to be worshipped and by some as a pattern for right actions every way. Hardly a council meeting passes without some matter being suggested with the wonderful argument that "Des Moines does that way." Now Council Bluffs has enough brains of its own, or ought to have, to run its own business, and do a few original acts, and let Des Moines do the copying for a while, but as Des Moines is now said to have housed its patrol wagon those who so ardently pattern after the capital city advocate earnestly the abandoning of the patrol wagon here.

The Council Bluffs' Paint Manufacturing company will be accepting orders in a few days. Wait for them. Real Estate Transfers. The following is a list of real estate transfers filed in the recorder's office of Pottawatomie county, Iowa, as furnished by A. J. Stephenson, abstractor, real estate and loan agent, Council Bluffs, Iowa, March 24, 1885:

A. C. Welch to M. J. Cheaney; w. j. n. s. 4, and n. j. n. s. 5, 75, 41--$1,510. Deborah C. Wayne, et al., to Ernest E. Hart; lot 23, block 4, Mill add--$250. Ernest E. Hart to J. D. Edmundson; lot 23, block 4, Mill add--$250. W. W. Bigger to Martin K. Radlow; et. w. j. 4, 75, 39--$2,400. E. W. Davis, et al., to R. G. Harlow; part lot 2, of n. j. n. s. 16, 77, 39--$350. Elizabeth H. Smith to Albert F. Cross; n. j. n. s. 24, 75, 38--$1,000. W. S. Williams to S. Armstrong; lot 1, block 2, Williams' add. to Hancock--$75. T. L. sales, $6,135.

WHICH IS WHICH.

The Dispute About the Appropriation for the Government Building.

There have been conflicting opinions as to whether the total appropriations for the new government building here footed up $250,000 or $300,000. Some claim one amount is right, some claim the other. Originally $100,000 was appropriated. There came in the closing days of congress an appropriation for the additional $100,000, and in the civil service bill there was $50,000. Congressmen Pusey telegraphed that the total appropriations were $250,000, but others have construed it differently. Congressman Lyman has been corresponding with Senator Wilson on the subject and he claims it is only $200,000 in all. The following is the letter:

HON. J. LYMAN, COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA. Dear Sir: Yours of the 10th inst. is at hand. I waited on the first comptroller of the treasury this morning to ascertain what his construction of the two appropriations would be, and it is that the $100,000 additional appropriated by the act of March 3, 1885, a copy of which I inclose, is the one that will govern the case; therefore, that the aggregate appropriation for the Council Bluffs public buildings is $200,000 and not $250,000, as might be inferred from the additional appropriation made in the sundry civil act of last session. I thought it was best to get the construction from the first comptroller before any arrangement should be made, based upon a misunderstanding as to the aggregate amount of appropriation. Therefore I called on him with the result stated, and he has directed a letter to be sent the supervising architect conveying to him the construction of the legislation as above stated. Yours truly, JAMES F. WILSON.

PERSONALS.

Mr. L. Kinnehan is now getting able to sit up a little. J. A. McWade, one of Atlantic's merchants, is in the city. W. L. Culbertson, the Carroll banker, is attending court here. Michael Smith, the grain dealer at Glidden, was in the city yesterday. Frank Stotts, auditor of Audubon county, is in the city. Isaac Bowley, of Schluter & Bowley, goes south to-day after two carloads of horses. Frank Whitney, the well-known Atlantic banker, is attending the U. S. court here. Dr. Hanchett was called to Vail yesterday to attend to a difficult surgical operation. Hon. W. H. M. Pusey, ex-member of congress, returned from the east Monday evening. Col. J. B. Cooke, of Carroll, a well-known agricultural implement man, is in the city, attending U. S. court. R. B. Vermylia, deputy U. S. marshal, came in on the "Q" yesterday with a number of witnesses, and is at the Pacific. Prof. McDonald, of the institution for the deaf and dumb, is as proud as a king. The little new-comer is a boy, and a bouncer. Bob Harris, the loud lad with the new quill, from Missouri Valley, was in the city yesterday. Welcome, always welcome. Miss Ida Warren, daughter of Dr. Warren, of Shenandoah, is in the city, visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Snellien. James Leofhorst was one of those drawn on the U. S. jury as a resident of Atlantic, but explaining yesterday in court that he is now a resident of Nebraska, he was excused. Dr. S. Moshier, of the Sioux City Chronic Disease Institute, will be at the South here in this city, Thursday, April 24. Will attend to patients and a who are afflicted will do well to give him a call. Consultation free.

THE BLOODY BEER GLASS.

There was a lively racket in Nelson's saloon yesterday in which Mike Dolan and Still Bates were the prominent participants. Dolan got badly cut up about the head by a beer glass. Still Bates has been used with a great deal of leniency by the authorities on account of his family record and his relatives, but it seems that the practice of letting him off without any punishment seems to have had little effect in reforming him. It is now about time that he was no longer considered a "pet," and that he be fairly and squarely dealt with, and when found guilty of any offense that he should have to stand the penalty the same as if he was a stranger.

HABEAS CORPUS.

Another Peculiar Case from Harrison County. Yesterday a habeas corpus case came up before Judge Aylesworth, the parties being from Harrison county. It appeared that a man named Gainer last September was convicted of keeping a "saloon," or, in plain English, a saloon, and was fined $150 and commitment until it was paid. It would take 45 days in jail to pay off the fine, and instead of committing the man to jail, the officers let the matter run about until lately, when they proposed to make him pay or go to jail. A commitment was finally issued the other day, and the defendant now seeks to get release on a writ of habeas corpus, claiming that the time is passed for the execution of the sentence, and that it was the fault of the court that a commitment was not issued at once, and that the delay was not the fault of the defendant. Judge Aylesworth held that this claim was good, and ordered the man's release. This is the third case of the kind which has come up before Judge Aylesworth from that county. The supreme court in this state has not decided any case of this kind yet, but the authorities of some other states are to the effect of the decision given yesterday.

RISKY REVOLVERS.

Narrow Escape from a Bloody Tragedy. Council Bluffs lately had a narrow escape from one of those fearful accidents which come from the common cause of "didn't know it was loaded." A professional gentleman in this city for protection from burglars, purchased a fine new revolver, a self-cooker, with all modern improvements, intending to keep it in his home. The revolver was about the house several days unloaded, and was handled and snapped by various members of the family, its novelty not having worn off. One night the gentleman loaded the revolver, and spoke to his wife about it. She was busy about some household duties, and either failed to hear the remark about its being loaded or forgot it. The revolver lay in a drawer of the dressing case, and a day or two afterwards the girl asked the lady for some money to get milk tickets with, and as she opened the drawer to get the money, she laughingly took the revolver and pointing it at the girl said, "Why don't you take this and make the milk-man give you tickets without money?" At the same time half-cocking the revolver. Before putting the revolver back in the drawer, she still supping it was unloaded, jokingly put it at her breast as if about to shoot herself, and was about to snap it, when the thought occurred to her, while her finger was just pressing the trigger, to look in to the cylinders. As she saw to her surprise the cylinder filled with cartridges, the revolver almost dropped from her trembling hands, and she nearly fainted at the thought of the narrow escape, a double escape, in fact, for the least pressure of a finger would have sent a bullet through the girl or a moment later would have carried her own life to be taken. The fright resulting from the event was such that the lady can now hardly look at a gun of any sort without trembling, and no amount of persuasion can get her to handle a revolver now, whether loaded or not. She is less afraid of burglars now than of an empty revolver even.

UNCLE SAM'S COURT.

It Opened Here Yesterday for a Two Weeks' Term. The United States court opened yesterday for a two weeks' term, the term being set about on account of the fact that Judge Love has to take the place of the other judge, who has gone to California. A large number of attorneys and well known citizens were present besides the officers, Judge Love, the clerk, H. K. Love, District Attorney Rannella, and United States Marshal R. Root. Among the attorneys present are, V. B. Jennings, of Essex; H. B. Williams, of Glenwood; Brown & Barber, of Carroll; Judge McDill, of Afton; Jno. V. Stone, and H. B. Woodruff, of Glenwood; J. W. DeLane, of Atlantic; Mr. Bibebe, of Chicago; George Draper, of Sidney; George E. Penrell, of Atlantic; John Throckley, of Sidney, and a great array of others. The jury will be impaneled to-day. The grand jury has already met, but will not begin business actively until to-day.

LIVELY SCENES IN COURT.

A Clergyman and a Canadian Lawyer at Loggerheads. A Toronto dispatch says: A short time since the Rev. T. O'Connell, of London, Ontario, was removed from the charge of the Anglican Chapter house for drunkenness while in the pulpit and other unbecoming conduct. He has since entered actions to recover damages against some of the witnesses against him. Not being satisfied with Mr. Sanderson, his legal adviser, he called on the Rev. Mr. Penney, refused to pay his bill and summoned him to show cause why he should not furnish particulars of his account. The case came up before Judge Elliott yesterday. Mr. O'Connell was addressing the court when Mr. Sanderson suggested that as Mr. O'Connell was represented by counsel he should not occupy the time of the court. This aroused Mr. O'Connell's ire and an exciting scene ensued. Mr. Sanderson suggested that the reverend gentleman should "shut up." Mr. O'Connell replied: "I won't shut up. I have his Honor's permission to speak and I will speak." Mr. Sanderson commenced to smile, "Smile, and you look like a monkey," said Mr. O'Connell. "Let the judge look at you, and he will conclude you are one of the missing links of the Darwinian species. Smile, and smile, and be a villain," says Shakespeare. You are a liar of the blackest kind, unworthy of a client's trust, and if the London bar have any respect for themselves you will be unfringed." Mr. Sanderson, jumping up, said: "Your honor, if you don't stop this man I'll strike him." Mr. O'Connell, jumping up excitedly and flourishing his blacktop, exclaimed: "You strike me! I'll pick you up and pitch you down stairs, you little manikin. You strike me! I'll pitch you down stairs, and there will be one legal rascal less in London." Mr. O'Connell was at length quieted, but finished his address, saying that as long as Judge Elliott was on the bench justice would be done, but for all that, he (Mr. Sanderson) was a liar and a scoundrel, and he would strike the judge to know it. His honor promptly considered the excited litigants to keep silence, and the proceedings then went on quietly.

NEW PAPER FOR BANK CHECKS.

A safety paper manufactured by a Massachusetts mill will make it difficult to tamper with bank notes or checks printed upon it. The coloring matter of the paper is so prepared that the application of any chemical to remove the ink will permanently change the color of the paper, and an ingenious device is added which betrays at once any attempt to make a duplicate of the paper. The new enterprise forger will be sure to come to grief.

A MINE BULL.

Brought to the Light of Day After Thirty-Five Years' Service.

Coalbrook (Pa.) Letter to Philadelphia News. Three years ago a mule known as "Old Barney," having spent thirty-five successive years in drawing coal cars in the tunnels of Old Hickory colery, was taken out of the mine by his owner and turned out to do as he pleased. Not having breathed any fresh air nor having a glimpse of daylight since 1850, Old Barney did not take kindly to his new life, and for two hours hung around the miners as they went in and came out, and giving every evidence that he was homesick and wanted to go back to the dark and gloomy chambers where he had grown old. He was unable to see in the daytime for several days, but his sight gradually came back under the best of conditions. After Barney found that they were not disposed to take him back into the mine he quit going near it and spent his time wandering alone about the neighborhood, making no spot his particular habitation, but being welcomed everywhere, as he was known for miles around as the mule that had lived thirty-five years in a coal mine. He acted as if he felt that he had been turned out as a useless appendage, and he had a perpetual look of melancholy on his face and chose the most solitary spots, where he would sometimes remain for days at a time, communing with himself. In spite of his melancholy and his years, his eyes were bright, his coat soft and glossy, and his body in good condition. He never showed any disposition to mingle with the other mules, but he was always followed and surrounded by troops of miners' children, tugging at his stubby tail, hanging to his mouse-colored ears and straddling his round back. He tolerated children without a protest, no matter what they did to him, but their merriment never depelled his melancholy for a second. For a week or so past workmen have been blasting in a ledge of rocks near Old Hickory colliery for the purpose of cutting a roadway through it. Last Thursday Old Barney came sauntering along from some place in the hills and stepped to watch the men at work in the ledge. He evidently remembered the days of blasting in the mines, for every time the men made a charge ready and sought a place of safety to await the explosion Old Barney would take himself off too, returning after the blast had gone off. After a half hour or so of solemn enjoyment of this kind Old Barney walked off and disappeared behind the ledge, and the men forgot all about him. An hour later they put in an extra blast and retired, as usual to their safe retreat. About the time they expected to hear the report and see the fragments of rocks flying about, what was their astonishment to see Old Barney reappear around the ledge and walk deliberately up to within six feet of the burning fuse. It was too late to retreat in the mines, for the fuse would be burned to the powder before the men could go ten feet toward the mule. They turned their heads. The blast went off like a cannon, and poor Old Barney was thrown a rod away and torn to pieces by the mass of rocks the concussion hurled from the ledge. No one can convince anyone who knew old Barney that he did not place himself in the way of the blast knowing full well that the mule was there for the purpose of ending a life that had become burdensome to him.

GOULD AND THE STRIKERS.

The Cherokee Philosopher as an Eloquent Champion of the Toolers. Denison Letter to the Atlanta Constitution. This is the first strike I ever saw and it gives food for thought. Here along the line of Jay Gould's great railroad are over 5,000 men in rebellion against the tyrant of one man. Money and power are the subject. This is not a strike for higher wages, but a desperate resolve against any further reduction. What is to become of the poor mechanic—the man who was born poor and raised poor and had to go to work in the shops where his poor father worked before him. Here are hundreds of them, the hardy ones of toil who have no home beyond their daily bread and humble clothing and a shelter by night, and every few months another slice of their small wages is taken off. The average laborer in the shops or along the line has already been reduced to one dollar and fifteen cents a day, and now the fifteen cents has been taken off and hence the rebellion. These workmen are forced to board in the company's boarding houses at fifty cents a day. Many of them have families near by and could board at home at twenty cents a day, but if they do they are nevertheless docked the fifty cents. They are forced to buy coal at Jay Gould's coal yards at eight dollars a ton, for Gould must be king and the cars that carry the coal, and has no competition. Some of these master mechanics begun years ago at five dollars a day, and have gradually been reduced to two dollars, and now have been cut down to one dollar and seventy-five cents. But there is no reduction of the salaries of the higher officials of the shops of the company. They still receive from $2,000 to $20,000 according to position. The result is that these laborers and mechanics are nothing but slaves and machines. Human toolers for the rich, with no hope of advancement, no hope of being able to lay up something for a rainy day or for sickness or old age or for an invalid wife or child. But man can get hardened to anything. I used to look upon a corpse with awful solemnity, but during the war the sight became so common that I could almost step upon the dead to avoid a ditch or a mud hole. Gould says his roads are making no money but he obliges the toolers. But in these times of depression he ought to supplement his losses from his own private fortune and let these men live. Who thing is to be observed, and that is if his never advances wages even when they stay out down. This is the sixth reduction in five years. The strike is hurting Jay Gould badly, and he will have a thousand lawsuits on his hands. Every stoppage of freight gives the consigned an action for damages, and the lawyers are harvesting a heavy crop of legal business. There is no sympathy for Jay Gould in Texas. These people are very jealous of one man power, especially when that power is used tyrannically. Within the last ten years nine golden weddings have been celebrated in Canada, Va., and all but one of the individuals are now living. Most of them are between eighty and ninety years of age and quite vigorous for such old people. S's heads of cabbage was the price received by an attorney in Imlay City, Mich., for his services in trying a case in a justice court recently.
