The music-loving people of Omaha have been rarely regaled this week, at least two evenings, Wednesday and Thursday. It is not often that we have an opportunity to hear allowed the result of the resu a clear and thorough interpretation of organ music as is presented by Mr. Eldy, and still more seldom is it that such music can be heard in conjunction with good yould and chorus singing So that it is no wonder that the concerts were well attended and accorded everything that could be desired in the way of enthusiastic applause. Aha! The index hands are quivering.

They settle to rest and one discovers them in a highly sugge tive position. They are pointing to the names of two young people—well, not so very young, either—who, as the well, not so very young, either—who, as the instrument suggests, are about to leap into the fields of matrimonial happiness. One is a gentleman recently elected to serve in an important municipal position—the other that of a young lady who handles the green, red and blue in the postoffice. It is whispered that this event is becoming more and more distinctly outlined, as the days flit past.

Pat was taken before Police Judge Stenberg, who issued a warrant on Constable Edgerton's complaint, and pursuant to it he was lodged in jail. In a short time after being jailed the deputy marshal of Council Bluffs came over, and "Pat" is now safe in the city across the

And again the hands move around responsive to the subtle magnetism of Capid's pres ence. Again they suggest two names, those of the chief clerk in the coroner's office, and a rich widow living in Marion, Iowa. It is said that this case is developing rapidly and will soon reach the happy crisis. In fact the sterner principal is out of town at present and is expected before many hours to return with the gentle and blushing one on his arm.

Once more the index hands flutter around into position. They stop opposite the name of a gentleman distinguished as one of the chief clerks in the office of Superintendent Smith of the Union Pacific.

The fair one, says the hymenometer, is a young lady formerly in the Union Pacific headquarters, but now engaged in the field of histrionic honors. The dates on the dial of the former of the factors of the field of the factors.

There is something peculiarly sad bout the death of the stranger German-Glmme-who was found dead and stark and stiff in his bed Thursday morning. It seems that he and his wife had just come to Omaha, in fact recently left the old country. He was a ship builder by trade, and both were very poor. He was a member of some society of shipbuilders there by which in the emergency that has just arisen, the widow would be entitled to assistance from the society, under ordinary circumstances. But here lies a difficulty. Mr. Gimme had left the old country, and his wife thinks that nullifies his claim on the home society. She is badly in need and the fear that the society young lady formerly in the Union Pacific headquarters, but now engaged in the field of histrionic honors.
