

THE DAILY BEE.

Thursday Morning, May 28, LOCAL BREVIETIES.

It is now believed that the recovery of Frank Marlin, who was shot Sunday night, is assured. The torrid weather of the past few days has temporarily passed away and yesterday was quite a rainfall. School Superintendent Bruner arrived today from an extended trip of inspection among county schools. An effort is on foot to get a base ball club here from either Hannibal or Keokuk to play the old Union Pacific nine on Decoration day. Mr. Harvey Storek Tuesday sold out his interest in the Real Estate Bulletin, and the paper will be conducted altogether by the purchaser, Mr. W. A. Thompson. Major Woods, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy detective, is in the city, looking up a brace of crooks who have been operating extensively on the company's trains in Iowa. Judge Weiss' court yesterday Kittie Howard began a replevin suit against Birdie Mann, for the possession of a trunk, which, it is alleged is wrongfully detained by the defendant. The "Chinese Mother," a beautiful drama is to be presented by the Young Ladies Sodality, B. V. M., of the Holy Family church, at Creighton college hall, Wednesday, June 3, 1885. Two small school-boys went to Marshal Cummings yesterday with four pairs of fancy slippers which they claimed to have found hid away in a pile of stable litter. The marshal still has the slippers in his possession. Y. Kanko, T. Ota and R. Totain are three mercantile gentlemen of Japan who are making a business tour through America. They arrived in the city this morning and are stopping at the Paxton. They leave on to night U. P. train, Frisco-bound. Cards have been issued for the marriage of Miss Eleanor Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Boyd, to Mr. Ellis L. Bierbauer, United States marshal. The wedding will take place on Wednesday, June 10, at half past twelve o'clock in Trinity Cathedral. It is hoped that the ladies and children of Omaha will defer visiting the court house today, until afternoon and evening, in order to allow the country cousins to have full sway during the day and to prevent crowding. It is expected that the rural delegations will be very large. The Omaha team put a touching climax to its phenomenal record. They tackled the Indianapolis club and were downed by a score of 26 to 5. Manager Hay has cancelled the games here during the latter part of this week and will play them in Kansas City. It is quite probable that he will not return at all. Loud complaints are heard against the city for allowing the pool of stagnant water on Dorcas street, between Tenth and Eleventh. The pool is the receptacle of all kinds of refuse, and the stench arising from it is not only disgusting, but seriously endangers the health of the residents in the vicinity. About fifty-four members of the G. A. R. from Portland, Oregon, passed through Omaha Tuesday, enroute to the national encampment at Portland, Maine, thus making a tour across the continent. The travelers reached this city by the Oregon Short Line and Union Pacific, and from here go to Chicago via the Milwaukee & St. Paul road. Master Harry Fair, a boy about 4 years old, and living on Fourteenth street between Leavenworth and Jones, swallowed about an ounce of cedar, which had been procured for killing insects, Tuesday morning. He soon went into spasms, and his life was only saved by prompt work. Dr. Peabody was called and antidotes were sent from the Central hospital, and after a short time the young experimenter was pronounced out of danger. Bids for Excavating. The fact that several bids for grading lots 5 and 6, block 116, the proposed site for a new city hall, were received by the council Tuesday night and referred to the proper committee does not appear in our regular report of the meeting, for the simple reason that they were referred without being handed down. James K. Jones, James Welch, Chas. E. Fanning, Stult & Hamel, C. F. Williams and Patrick Welch, are the bidders. Mr. Jones proposes to do the grading at 1 cent per cubic yard, and Mr. Welch at 10 cents, while Mr. Fanning asks 20 cents and let the city have the dirt. The other bidders, Stult & Hamel for the grading at 10 cents per cubic yard, and the dirt 20 cents per cubic yard and let the city have the dirt. Mr. Williams' bid is on the same basis, only he wants 17 cents per cubic yard and 1 cent for the dirt. Mr. Welch's bid is for 10 cents per cubic yard.

THE GREAT DAY. The New Douglas County Court-House to be Dedicated To-day. The Programme to be Presented on the Interesting Occasion. Brief Sketch of the New Structure--Something About the Old Court-House--Reminiscences. To-day has been fixed for the formal dedication of the magnificent new court house of Douglas county. For more than three years the architects and laborers have wrought upon the building which is to furnish for many years to come the official centre of Douglas county, and at length their labors have found consummation, and the beautiful structure is complete--in readiness for the ceremony which will celebrate its formal transfer from builders and architects to the people of the county of Douglas. PRELIMINARIES. The building will be thrown open to the public from 8 o'clock a. m., until 10 p. m. All citizens of the county are invited to view the building and inspect thoroughly its various features. A formal reception will take place in the evening from 7 to 10 o'clock. At 8 o'clock p. m. the following programme will be carried out: Presentation on behalf of the county commissioners to the court and the people of the county. Hon. J. C. COWIN. Acceptance and dedication on behalf of the court. JUDGE JAMES NEVILLE. The old court house and its history. Hon. J. M. THURSTON. The past jurisdiction of Douglas county. Hon. JAMES M. WOOLWORTH. Reminiscences of the Douglas county bar. Hon. J. S. RADICK. The future bar of Douglas county. ARTHUR WAKELRY. RICHARD O'KEEFE. H. W. COLEMAN. GEORGE TIMME. County Commissioners. G. W. ABERGHOSE. B. E. B. KENNEDY. W. J. CONNELL. W. A. SIMONAL. W. A. RADICK. Committee. It will be noted that the speakers are those who are capable of handling the parts assigned to them with eloquence and thoroughness. No effort has been withheld to have a programme perfect in every particular and the occasion will be one, doubtless, to furnish for long years to come, pleasant and enjoyable memories. THE NEW COURT HOUSE. The readers of the Bee have already been furnished in these columns with a thorough description of the new court house. In this connection, however, a brief resume of its new features will not be ill-timed: The court house was commenced in May, 1882, E. E. Meyers, Detroit, Mich., being the architect, and J. F. Coats superintendent of the building. The structure, including furniture and retaining wall, has cost the people $245,367 74. Of this amount $130,369 74 has been already paid, leaving $125,000 to be disbursed. This sum has been provided for by the issue of bonds of $125,000, bearing 6 per cent interest. The building is of the massive classical style, 120x137 feet in size, there being eight stories, including the basement floor and the five stories of the tower or dome. The building is constructed entirely of Berea, O., sandstone, galvanized iron, and cast iron, the foundation being of limestone and the sills of granite. The building is thoroughly fire-proof, and in point of safety from fire no structure ever erected can surpass it. The main entrances are on the north and east, and are heavily recessed, flanked by four heavy columns, with capitals, which support a colonnade with a large balcony. Entering the building, the first floor is found to be divided into four sections or quarters by two corridors which run transversely north and south, east and west intersecting each other in the center. In the northwest section of the first floor are the recorder's office and the county clerk's private and business offices, together with a massive fire-proof vault. In the southwest quarter is the county court room--together with three smaller ones--county judge's, sheriff's, and jury rooms. There is also a large vault sixteen by nineteen feet. In the northeast section are the treasurer's private and business offices, together with the district attorney's office, and a fire-proof vault. In the southeast section are the offices of the county superintendent of schools, private and business, and the office of the county commissioners. There are four entrances to the first floor, with vestibules, the entrance on the north side having three double doors, the others being single. Leaving the first floor by the heavy iron staircase, in the northwest section of the second floor, is the law library room, separated by a small corridor from the grand jury, witness and ladies waiting rooms. In the southwest quarter is the judge's chamber, together with the room and vault of the clerk of the court. In the northeast section is the largest room in the building, the district court room 40x75 feet, into which open, in the southeast section, the attorney's consultation room and the judge's private office. On the west side of the second floor is the stair-case leading to the third floor. In this story all the rooms will be left unfinished, but on the same general plan as the rooms on the first and second stories. A central shaft, technically called a well-hole, runs from the intersection of the first floor corridors clear through to the very top of the dome. Leaving the third story by a winding iron stair case, one ascends to the first floor of the tower. In this tower there are four stories, provided with balustrade ornamental cast-iron columns of the Corinthian pattern which are topped with elaborate frieze and architrave. The fourth and last story of the tower is very small. On each of the four sides are placed the glass dials, five feet in diameter, of the monster clock which is to be placed on some future day on this floor. All these stories are surmounted by the dome. This, taken in its entirety, is the most splendid feature of the structure, being ornamented by a series of cornices, consoles, and pediments. The ball of the dome is an irregular quadrilateral, supported and ribbed by massive iron beams and covered with zinc. Standing on a pedestal on the topmost extremity is a towering figure of justice, with the symbolic scales--a beautiful climax to this palatial structure. The lighting of the interior is effected by large windows placed at regular intervals, surmounted by cornices and pediments of ornate figure. The roof is of tin. On the four sides of the roof in the center of each side stands a large gable, with frieze cornice and pediment, while Grecian urns of beautiful design are placed along the edge of the roof. The cornice of the roof is finished with stone and marble. The building is heated by steam, and ventilated according to the latest and most perfect plans. All partitions, of roof, sides and ceiling, have been thoroughly constructed, making the structure absolutely fire-proof. THE OLD. In this place a brief sketch of the old court house is given, as being apropos. Situated in a small hollow on the corner of Sixteenth and Farnam streets, surrounded by a growth of ancient foliage, stands the old court house of Douglas county. Aged and decrepit, swaying and creaking before every onslaught of the weather, the old house is in the last stages of dissolution. Erected in the pioneer days of Omaha and reaching back to the early period of territorial history, the old courthouse might be made the prolific source of many an article of interesting reminiscence. The structure is now being torn down to make way for a new and modern building, and before many weeks shall have passed will be one of the things that have swept away by the rapid advance of civilization. The brief sketch could be supplemented to almost an unlimited extent by the detailing of varied reminiscences connected with the old house. But this is not the place and space will permit only the briefest reference to the various phases of storied lore which are connected with the building. The court house was erected in the year 1850 by the pioneers of the county, who thought that the growing demands of the city and county called for some official center. In the spring of 1851 the city council decided to build a block then known as Washington square, bounded by Fifteenth and Sixteenth and Farnam streets. The site of the lots, with the exception of those occupied by the building, were sold. The proceeds were applied to the erection of the court house. James E. Boyd secured the contract for the building. The brick work was done by Armstrong & Bovey, while John Davis did the carpenter work. The structure was finally completed in the year 1851, and has been occupied by the county officers, the district court, police authorities, etc. It has been repaired many, many times, and still stands, as one of the old landmarks of pioneer days. The old court house has been the scene in early days of many an exciting episode. In 1851 George E. Boyd secured the contract for the building, and was arrested for attempting to outrage A. M. Taylor, living near the military bridge, and for plundering his house. Public sentiment ran high against the man, and he was arrested and held in custody. A trial was held before Boyd had been accorded a trial by a body of citizens broke into his cell, took him out and hung him to a beam in the entry hall. He died in a few minutes, and no confession of his crime. Lynch law seems to have been greatly in favor, in the territorial days, and a still earlier lynching occurred. Constable Jerry McShane, 1858, two men, Braden and Daly, were incarcerated in the city jail for horse stealing. Citizens broke into the sheriff's office in the court house, which was then in use, and, securing the keys, unlocked the cell in which the two culprits had been placed. The two wretched men were then driven rapidly through a narrow alleyway, and next morning their lifeless bodies were discovered hanging to a tree situated two miles north of Florence on the main road. One of the most exciting scenes ever witnessed around the old court house was in the month of June, 1870, when Barney Doran was incarcerated in the city jail. Doran was the murderer of Constable Jerry McShane. He was guilty of the crime of adultery, and a warrant for his arrest was placed in Mr. Shane's hands. When brought to bay and ordered to give himself up for arrest, Doran drew out a long knife, and made a number of desperate lunges at his captors. Lawyer Thomas Mulcahey was with McShane at the time, and was dangerously stabbed in the breast. McShane, however, was more seriously injured. He was stabbed in the right temple by Doran, and shortly afterward died. Doran was immediately placed in the city jail. During the day, and most of the night, the court house and jail were besieged by a crowd of men determined to lynch the murderer. All day long the masses of the angry and excited populace surged back and forth, in front of the building, devising ways and means to effect the plan of dealing out summary justice to the offender. By the restless vigilance of the authorities, however, the scheme was thwarted. Doran was tried and given ten years in the penitentiary. He had been but a few months in the penitentiary when he managed to break out, and he has never been seen since. The district court rooms up-stairs also furnished the people of Omaha in the early days with a theatre--rude to be sure, but perfectly adapted to the wants of the amusement-loving public. The chairs were properly rearranged, while the platform a very small affair was fitted with a drop curtain in the shape of bed blankets sewed together. The scenery was painted on bed sheets. It is said that one of the first theatricals held in this remarkable theatre was little Fay Templeton, accompanied by her father and mother, who were traveling around the country giving variety performances. In early days the court house was the scene of much social festivity. In the old district court room the great balls and parties were held--always well attended and always enjoyable. From this brief, hasty and necessarily incomplete sketch, it will be seen to what an extent the old court house figures in the history of Omaha. The ancient structure has long lived and served, and the "day of its dissolution is now at hand. Erected at a time when the city of Omaha was in its infancy, it is crumbling to decay when the period of her greatness is dawning.

TRANSFERRING THE TROOPS. The Important Order Just Issued--General Military News. For the purpose of military instruction, and practice in practical field engineering, outpost duty, escort and defence of convoys, defensive and offensive manoeuvres, and, generally, the minor operations of war, the troops of this department will be assembled in camps as follows: Troops from Forts Douglas and Bridger, at a point near the Edge & Park City rail road, and in the vicinity of Washup Station. The camp to be located by Col. Alexander McD. McCook, Sixth infantry, and commanded by the senior officer present for duty. Troops from Forts Russell, Laramie, Sidney, and Robinson, at a point on the Union Pacific railroad, near Pine Bluffs Station. The camp to be located by a staff officer from these headquarters, and commanded by the senior officer present for duty. The infantry companies stationed at Forts Washakie, McKinney, Steele, and Niobrara, will conform to the requirements of this order, each, however, confining its movements to the country within fifty miles of their own posts. The battalions from Forts Washakie and Steele, will be commanded by the senior officer present for duty at those posts. The battalion from Fort Niobrara, by the senior officer of infantry present for duty. The Fort Archaer company will be commanded by the senior officer present with it for duty. The cavalry stationed at Forts McKinney, Niobrara, and Washakie, will, in consideration of the nature incident to a change of station, be exempt from the operations of this order. The troops from Fort Omaha, including Light Battery D, fifth artillery, will be at a point near Fremont, Neb. The camp will be selected by a staff officer from these headquarters, and will be commanded by the senior officer present for duty. The troops will march to the camps to which they are assigned, timing their movements so as to arrive on Saturday, the 5th day of September, and will be broken up on Monday, the 21st day of September, the troops returning by easy marches to their several stations. The arrangements of the tents for each command will be as follows: For the personal use of the commanding officer, one (1) wall tent; for an officer, one (1) wall tent; for each two staff officers, one (1) wall tent; for the officers of each company, one (1) wall tent and (1) common tent; for every three enlisted men, one (1) common tent; for the sick, one (1) hospital tent; for the shelter of stores, one (1) pu in or tent; for the guard, two (2) common tents, and the necessary tents for servants and messes. Each enlisted man will carry with him one-half shelter tent for the out-post service. The troops will wear the required fatigue dress. Full dress not to be worn at any time. Haversacks, canteens, and knapsacks (blanket bags) lightly packed, will be worn during the marches and on all duty outside the camp. After returning to his station each commander of camp will submit to these headquarters a report, giving in detail the operations of each day, with such remarks as he may desire to make. A Diamond Scarf Pin. A good story is told on a certain well known clothing merchant on lower Farnam street. It is rather too rich to keep. It appears that the gentleman, who is (in his own opinion) a beautiful little diamond in a charming setting of golden bric-a-brac, a scarf pin of rare beauty. The jewel was in the possession of a French street barber, Maurice Robling. The clothing merchant, without any solicitation on the part of the owner of the beautiful little gem, remarked that he thought he should like to buy it--was positive that it was a pure diamond. However, before he made the purchase, he would like to apply an infallible test--that of dropping the stone into a glass of water and noting the divergence of the scintillating rays. The glass of water was procured and the test proved perfectly satisfactory. The diamond pin was immediately purchased for a good round sum by the merchant, Mr. Robling declining to say anything about the value of the jewel, or the propriety of the bargain. The new owner at once took the gem to an up-town jeweler who pronounced it a two-for-a-cent glass pin with a cheap brass setting, such as fresco the bosom front of the habitual poor corn eater. It has cost the vendor of coats, pants, and vests about ten dollars to date in the way of drinks in endeavoring to "suppress" the tale of his "diamond pin."

HOT BREAD MADE WHOLESOME. The Royal Baking Powder possesses a peculiar merit that is not possessed by any other leavening agent. It provides bread, biscuit, cake, muffins, or rolls which may be eaten when hot without inconvenience by persons of the most delicate digestive organs. With most persons it is necessary that bread raised with yeast should lose its freshness or become stale before it can be eaten with safety. The same distressing results flow from eating biscuit, cake, pastry, etc., raised by the cheap inferior baking powders that contain lime, alum or other adulterants. The hot roll and muffin and the delicious hot griddle cakes, raised by Royal Baking Powder, are as wholesome and digestible as warm soup, meat, or any other food. Another greatly superior quality possessed by the Royal Baking powder is that by which the preservation of important elements of the flour is effected in raising the bread by the mechanical operation of the gas without fermentation. Yeast, and all baking powders that produce the leavening gas by fermentation, as is well known, destroy a portion of the nutritive elements of the flour, and particularly those which are the most healthful and the greatest aids to a perfect assimilation of the food. The Royal Baking Powder, while perfectly leavening, retains without change or impairment all those elements which were intended by nature, when combined in our bread, to make it literally the "staff of life." No leavening agent or baking powder, except the Royal Baking Powder, possesses these great qualifications.

THE FEATHERED SONGSTER. And His Enemy, the Small Boy--An Unheeded Ordinance. "Why don't the Bee call the attention of its readers to the deprivations which the boys are creating in the way of killing birds and robbing bird nests in different parts of the city?" asked an official of a reporter to-day. "You have no idea," he continued, "to what extent this malicious and worse than useless practice is being carried on. Private grounds are invaded by these ruthless youngsters who not only rob the homes of the feathered songster, but kill the birds themselves, for no other purpose than of furnishing a temporary pleasure, cruel and depraving in its nature. Something ought to be done, or the birds will be driven from our parks and the private grounds where heretofore they have enjoyed the blessings of immunity from the attacks of the wicked small boy." The city council at this time, three years ago, passed an ordinance providing a penalty for offenses of this class. It was passed on account of the urgent demands of the citizens who requested that steps be taken at once to remedy the evil. For the benefit of those interested it is in the main reproduced: "It shall be unlawful for any person to cruelly, inhumanly, or unnecessarily kill, torture, injure, or in any way interfere or torment any birds of the insectivorous order, having and making their abode within the city limits of Omaha, or interfering in any manner with their nesting, or destroying the same, or stealing any eggs that may be found therein, or destroying or interfering with the same. Any persons violating the provisions of the above section, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in a sum not less than $5 or more than $25, and for a second or subsequent violation thereof, in addition to fine, such person may be imprisoned not to exceed thirty days. Smoke Seal of North Carolina Tobacco. A Crooked Postmaster. Yesterday morning Postal Inspector Lawrence arrived in this city, bringing with him, as prisoner, Postmaster W. O. Swartwood, of Silver Creek. This gentleman was arrested Tuesday night for embezzling money belonging to Uncle Sam, which necessarily passes through his hands while acting in an official capacity. So far as Inspector Lawrence has examined the accounts, Swartwood has been found to be behind in his accounts about $800. It is probable that the defalcation is much larger. He was arrested before he could reach his missioner Anderson last night, and bound over in the sum of $1,000 to appear at the next term of the United States district court for trial. Mr. Swartwood secured Hugh Clark as his bondsman, and was released from custody. Swartwood has been postmaster of Silver Creek for three or four years, and has always been thoroughly trusted. He is of good family, and his wife is highly connected.

Be-ko From the Cage. Deputy Sheriff J. W. Gordon, of Logan, Harrison county, Iowa, arrived in the city yesterday. He is looking for five prisoners who broke jail at Logan Tuesday morning, and the 25th, by drilling out a plate in the bottom of the cage in which they were confined. They are all desperate criminals, set up for penitentiary effort. They are Henry Lee and William Wood, sent up for safe blowing. Wm. Whick, bigamy, Geo. Johnson, grand larceny, and Ed. Woodway, stolen killing. They started west, and are supposed to be lurking in Omaha and vicinity. The police have been looking for them so long, and the police for the gang. Mr. Gordon will probably return to Iowa to-night.

Seal of North Carolina Tobacco is the best. A Suspect Arrested. Tuesday afternoon Officer Turnbull arrested Charles Pitts, a colored man, resident on Eighteenth and Cuming streets, upon suspicion of being the man who stole $100 from Fieldt Farnsworth Monday afternoon. It seems that he found some money near the sill of his back door step, and has been spending it quite freely of late. Moreover he has been telling conflicting stories as to how the money came there, and as to the amount. A piece of paper, containing a cash memorandum which had been in the safe of the drug store, was also found in Pitts' coat. These circumstances, combined with others, lead Officer Turnbull, who has been working upon the case since the commission of the crime to believe that he has the right man. The hearing is set for to-day.

Two Telegrams. Marshal Cummings received a telegram Tuesday night from the chief of police of Minneapolis asking him if a girl by the name of Annie Tirt had been murdered here that day. If any such occurrence took place, it is unrevealed to the police or the "hard up" news-hunters of this city. [Yesterday a telegram was received from J. L. Hammill, of Sioux City, asking the police of Omaha to be on the lookout for four boys who have just left that burg on a runaway expedition. They are supposed to be coming on the train or by skiff on the Missouri.
