The ninth annual exhibition of the univer-

The nicth annual exhibition of the university union at the opera house met with a fair house Saturday right, opening with a dust by Miss Minnie Coch ane and Dr. Saxley, which was finely executed. Owing to the sickness of Mr. W. F. Wigginss, the cration on "Civil service" failed to materialize, the programme afterwards being somewhat varied, was completed as failows.

Eulegy by E. C. Wiggenhern on "The Founder of the German Empire, Bismarck." The speaker briefly sketched the early life of the great statesman, and explained in a clear and intelligent ma ner some of the more important acts and measures of Osto Von Bismarck which have made him and his empire famous in modern history and will carry through all time the reputation os one, if not the holdest most aggressive and personally the boldest, most aggressive and personally most unseifish statesman whose name yet adorns the history of nations.

"Fall of the Alamo," a poem by Mirs Awana H. K. Painter, was well received by the audience. Her voice and easy manner upon the stage were in strong contrast compared with those of some of the gentlemen who app-ared during the evening. A strong and unanumous applause and baskets of flowers were given her upon her conclusion.

The vocal solo, "Sing, Sweet Eird," by Miss Chamberlain was highly pleasing to all. Her voice is clear and bell like, each note being distinct. At the close of her song the applause was loud and continuous. She again appeared upon the stage and sang an encore, "The Three Old Maids of Lee," that made even the bald headed benedicts lange. It was manifest from the first appearance that Miss Chamberlain was a favorite with the audience and she proved worthy of the the audience and she proved worthy of the

Mr. Bigelow. In rather an argumentative way, tried to convince the audience that the lion ought to fight; that her army and navy were large enough to defeat the Russian power and hold India, and that if Russia was not checked she wend likely soon take possession of Herat, thus holding the key to all India and finally Asia. Mr Bigelow at these arms of the bight head the way are side for that reason her name is withheld. all India and finally Asia. Mr Bigelow at times seemed to think he had the wrong side of the question or perhaps was waiting for ap-plause. Mr. Conely, the gentleman having the negative side, proved himself the singed cat. His facts were not dry, and he soon proved with these and figures that Gladstone had abundant reason for not fooling with the hear at Herat threast or any other place. bear at Herat, thereat or any other place. His argument was forcible and sho wel that he had studied well the subject, and under-ated considerably the complications of in-

The closing regitation was by Miss Rheta Louise Childe, "The Lorelt." In advancing upon the stage s'e was generously applauded and proved herself a good recustionist. Her enthusiasm and interest seemed to a great extent to be imported to her hearers who listened attentive y to each word and sylable. Her personal beauty added, perhaps, to the interest of her recitation, which was greeted with vocit-rous appliance by the entire auditories of the recitation of the personal beauty by the entire auditories. One noticeable feature throughout the exer cises was that the ladies needed no prompting and were graceful and at ease upon the stage and were graceful and at ease upon the stage.
