SECRETARY DOWLING MUCH ENCOURAGED

Reports at Hand Indicate that the Attendance This Year Will Be Larger Than Ever at a National Convention.

The preliminary arrangements for the annual convention of the National League of Republican Clubs, which will meet in this city July 13, 14 and 15, were completed at a meeting of the subcommittee of arrangements, which was held at the Millard hotel last night. The members of the committee who were present were: President of Newport, Ky., F. R. Connaway of Des Moines, M. J. Dowling, the retiring secretary of the league, and Charles E. Winter of this city. The remaining member, H. L. Remmel of Little Rock, Ark., was unable to be present. President Crawford and Secretary Stine came in from the Kansas state convention and did not arrive in Omaha until last night instead of in the morning. as was expected. The other two members spent the forenoon in visiting the exposition grounds, after which they were entertained at dinner at the Omaha club. The principal questions that the committee considered last night referred to the location of the convention and the pro-The former was quickly decided in favor of Boyd's theater, which had been reserved for the three days by the local committee. The other was discussed at some length and it was decided that the afternoons should be occupied by visits to the exposition, while the business sessions should be held in the morning. The convention will meet at 10 o'clock each forenoon. On the first day the program will consist of addresses of welcome in behalf of the state, the city and the state league and the appropriate responses, with the annual address of President Crawford and the appointment of committees. In the evening there will be a reception at the hotel.

Will Pe a Busy Day.

The seasion on the second day will be one of the most important of the convention. This will be occupied by the reports of committees and consequent action and several important questions will come up nder this head. First in interest will b the report of the committee on resolutions. As this will be the only national gathering of republicans this year it is waged during the fall campaign. This makes the platform of more than ordinary significance and it will receive the close atelection of officers and routine business.

Secretary Dowling's Expression. The members of the committee will leave today, but Secretary Stine will return in about a week and open headquarters in room 5 at the Millard hotel. The members who visited the exposition grounds were so much impressed with the magnificence of the Transmississippi show that they nearly ceeded their greatest expectations and that all that is necessary to secure the attend-L. J. Crawford and Secretary D. H. Stine ance of every delegate is to get them to they stayed away. In regard to the the Secretary Dowling says his correspondence indicates that the coming convention will be one of the most notable sessions the National league has ever enjoyed. States that have previously been represented only full delegations and the attendance promises to be a record breaker. This is tially accounted for by the attraction of the exposition and the exceptionally low railroad rates that have been made and also by the fact that an unusual number of state conventions are being held this year. In previous years the delegations from a large number of states have been named by the president or the executive committee of the nearly all holding conventions and the national delegates are much more likely to attend than if they had been merely designated by the state league officials. There are half a dozen state conventions scheduled for June, among which is that of California, which has not held a state convention fo four years. Secretary Dowling adds that there are indications evreywhere of inincreased interest in the league organization and the prospects for the usefulness of Veterans Teach the Children the Lesson That Memorial Day Emphasizes.

The old veteran with his gray hair showing in sharp contrast to the blue and gold of his army coat was a conspicuous figure on the streets yesterday afternoon. He was on his way to give a lesson in patriotism to the rising generation by telling them the story of the times in which Memorial day had its beginning. The regular Memorial forgot politics. They declared that it ex- day exercises were held in all the public schools of the city yesterday and in ac cordance with the custom that has obtained for many years the local members of the understand what they would miss if various posts of the Grand Army of the Republic were detailed to act as speakers convention at the various schools. When the practice was first inaugurated in Omaha there were so many veterans and so few schools that it was sometimes difficult for the committee that had the matter in charge to assign all the old soldiers who wanted to particiby one or two delegates are coming in with pate in the exercises. But the schools have multiplied while the ranks of the veterans have thinned year by year, and yesterday it was found that there were not nearly enough speakers to go around. Consequently some of them had to speak at two and even three schools, but with one or two exceptions one of them was present at every school during the afternoon.

The speeches varied according to the oratorical abilities of the speakers. As a rule state organization, but this year they are they were simple and well adapted to the crowds of children that heard them. The speakers briefly referred to their experiences on the field and few of them neglected to draw on the present war for material with which to inspire their auditors with the apirit of patriotism.

In nearly every case the children signified their appreciation of the services of the speakers, not only by their close attention and hearty applause, but by the presentaion of more or less elaborate floral courtesies as souvenirs of the occasion. In several cases the old soldiers carried away huge baskets of roses that would have been cceptable to an operatic favorite. In most of the schools the speechmaking was supplemented by a brief program of patriotic songs and recitations.

In speaking of the sessions, which were held from May 18 to 25, inclusive, Mr. Clark said: "They were grand meetings and accomplished much good in the way of diffusing ideas among the 700 delegates who were present. In addition to attending this meeting we succeeded in securing the special session of the Congress of Charities which will convene in Omaha on September 8 and remain in session for at least five days. This congress will have fully 700 delegates.

Referring to the New York meeting Mr Clark described it as one of the most enthusiastic meetings of the kind that he had ever attended. "We visited all of the charitable institutions of the city," added, "and learned much in the way of looking after and caring for the dependent classes. Child saving work was discussed at great length and the problem of organizing charities and charitable work in cities was considered. The delegates also took up the question of the state bearing a
