

BOGUS ORDER HOLDS THEM

One of the Russes by Which Colonel Bryan's Men Are Kept.

BOYS ARE ANXIOUS TO GET TO THE FRONT

Engagers to Enlist in the First or Second Instead of Waiting for the Third Threatens Regiment's Declaration.

LINCOLN, June 18.—(Special.)—It is learned that in some localities where the men have signed the enlistment rolls to become members of companies in the Third regiment and have later concluded that they would like to recruit into the First and Second regiments, an alleged order from General Barry has been used to prevent the men from joining the last named regiments. Word that this was being done has been received from two of these points. Today a dispatch from Hastings to a Lincoln morning paper reads as follows: Captain Dungan of company K, Third regiment, Nebraska volunteer infantry, has ordered all those who have signed the enlistment roll to report to their captain at company headquarters at or before 10 p. m. Sunday, the 19th, for mobilization at Fort Omaha. To make certain that the men do not quit the company to join the recruits for the First or Second regiments the captain further orders that according to instructions from the Third regiment all men who have signed the enlistment roll of K company cannot be enlisted in any other organization, and that all those who fail to report to their captain on Sunday morning will be reported as deserters. This action is taken to prevent some of the boys from enlisting under Lieutenants Wilson of the First and Hartigan of the Second regiments. It is reported that at the time it was their only chance to enlist, but now that the opportunity offers they have been considering the change. The information was obtained from the adjutant general's office today that no such order had been sent out, as the men in the companies have not yet been mustered into the service, either as guardsmen or volunteers, and the department has no control over them. Contrary to expectation the companies of the Third regiment will not be taken into the Nebraska National Guard, but will be mustered direct into the volunteer service. This leaves the men at liberty to enlist in the two other regiments if they choose. They are bound to the companies in the Third regiment only by the agreement they entered into when they signed the company lists.

Has No National Guard. Nebraska is now without a National Guard, and practically without equipment for one. In order to draw the national apportionment which is due June 30, and amounts to nearly $7,000, the state is supposed to have a National Guard of at least 800 members. There is, however, no apprehension that the present condition will interfere with the drawing of the appropriation, as it is based on the annual report which was made before the other regiments were mustered out of the guard and into the volunteer service. It is probable that within a few days the Third regiment will be in a move will be made to build up a new National Guard. There are a large number of companies organized over the state ready to join when the opportunity presents itself. Edwin H. Luikhart, one of the state bank examiners, enlisted in company L, Second regiment, and went south with the company. He has since received a discharge in order that he might be appointed second lieutenant in company G of the Third regiment, and arrived in this city last night. The official order making the transfer was issued today as follows: Private Edwin H. Luikhart, company L, Second Nebraska volunteer infantry, Camp H. Thomas, Chickamauga National Park, Ga., having reported to this office in compliance with paragraph 35, special orders No. 137, headquarters of the army, adjutant general's office, Washington, June 11, 1898, he will report to Captain G. H. Wakefield, company G, Third regiment, Wakefield, Neb., for duty.

Christian Endeavor Convention. The district convention of the Christian Endeavor society will meet in Lincoln next week, opening on the afternoon of the 23d. On the evening of that day there will be an address of welcome by Rev. Hindman of this city and a response by Rev. Madden of Nebraska City. There will be other talks by prominent ministers and church workers. Two of the most interesting sessions in the morning, afternoon and evening, one of the principal speakers being Rev. Mr. Turkle of Omaha. The local Endeavorers are making such arrangements as will insure the success of the convention.

Eastbound Freight Shipments. CHICAGO, June 18.—Eastbound shipments for the week amounted to 7,713 tons against $2,235 for the week previous and 53,061 last year. The Lake Shore led with 10,512 tons. Other lines carried: Michigan Central, 6,719 tons; Wabash, 8,454 tons; Fort Wayne, 7,270 tons; Paganline, 7,488 tons; Baltimore & Ohio, 5,520 tons; Grand Trunk, 4,515 tons; Nickel Plate, 7,850 tons; Erie, 8,904 tons; Big Four, 2,545 tons.

BUCKET SHOP CLOSES OUT

Turn of the Wheat Market Winds Up the John L. Boyd Commission Company.

The John L. Boyd commission firm was on the wrong side of the wheat market Friday and the firm was forced into liquidation. Its head, John L. Boyd, cannot be found by a horde of customers who would have profited by his failure to get on the right side of the market had he staid in Omaha and paid them their winnings. The failure of the firm affects at least fifty customers, whose investments with the firm range from $5 upward. One customer, a traveling man, makes the assertion that his winnings amounted to $200. As the firm did a bucket shop business on a very small scale and had for its customers a class that are not overburdened with wealth, it is thought that the failure will not amount over $100.

HASTINGS' COURT PROCEEDINGS

Several Cases of Importance Come Up and Are Decided.

HASTINGS, Neb., June 18.—(Special.)—The district court had several important cases before it this week, among them being that of John H. Yager against the Exchange National bank of this city. Several years ago John H. Yager, a prominent business man of this city, was the owner of a fine farm in Adams county, which he had mortgaged and encumbered for a large amount of money. The Exchange National bank of this city being the principal creditor. A little later he decided the farm to an official of the bank, and still later the official sold the farm at a boom price, which it appears was in excess of Yager's former indebtedness to the bank by several hundred dollars. Several months before the sale of the farm through his attorneys, demanded from the bank an accounting and that it pay over to him the difference between the amount of his indebtedness and the amount realized by the sale of the farm, holding that the deed was in effect a trust for this purpose, but the bank considered the deed to Yager absolute and refused to account. February 11, 1893, Yager brought suit in the district court to enforce his theory of the contract and the case was tried before Hon. William Gaslin as referee, who decided against him. He carried his case to the supreme court, but the bank considered the deed to Yager absolute and refused to account. February 11, 1893, Yager brought suit in the district court to enforce his theory of the contract and the case was tried before Hon. William Gaslin as referee, who decided against him. He carried his case to the supreme court, but the bank considered the deed to Yager absolute and refused to account. February 11, 1893, Yager brought suit in the district court to enforce his theory of the contract and the case was tried before Hon. William Gaslin as referee, who decided against him. HARMONY NOT IN EVIDENCE

Discord Prevails in the Ranks of the Populist Party.

RINGSTERS TRY TO ENFORCE THEIR RULE

State Put Up to Give Holcomb a Place on the Supreme Bench and Edmitzen the Governorship.

Discord prevails in the inner circles of the populist party in Nebraska. It is due to the attempt of the state house ring to dictate the nominations for not alone next fall's campaign but the supreme judgeship in 1899. The ringsters are just at present in a quandary. The intent at first was to force the nomination of Governor Holcomb for a third term, but such opposition to this arose that the arrangement has been cancelled and the plan as now arranged is to head the ticket with no less a personage than State Oil Inspector Edmitzen. Well concerted plans have been laid to accomplish this end, the ringsters, realizing that Douglas county had one or more candidates who would be potent factors if Douglas county were given its 100 or more delegates in the convention, at once set at work to fill the pathway of these candidates with insurmountable obstacles. How to circumvent this was not an easy problem to solve, but the ringsters hit upon a plan which if they succeed in carrying out, will give the state house bosses sweeping control over the nominations and render the Douglas county candidates and delegation helpless and impotent. The plan as laid makes the vote for Maxwell three years ago the basis upon which delegates shall be apportioned. Those opposed to the ring insist that the basis shall be, or should be, the vote cast for Bryan for president. The latter would give Douglas county more than 100 delegates, whereas the state house ring plan would reduce the delegation from Douglas county fully 65 per cent. The ring's scheme is a bold one and it has generated no small amount of hostility, but bold and bare as it is, the state committee, headed by Edmitzen, is presumably backed by the fusion element of the populist national committee, stubbornly refuses to recede and insists that the program shall be carried out let come what may. The question is being seriously debated and it has even reached the national committee with the result that it has met the tact endorsement of the advisory members of that body.

The anti-ringsters are loud and emphatic in their denunciation of the bosses and they openly declare that if the ring does not indicate something will draw it. Douglas county next fall loud enough to be heard all over Nebraska. The ring's plan will not alone reduce the delegation from Douglas county but it will reduce the delegations from five other counties, counties that are certain to send delegates opposed to the nomination of Edmitzen.

Holcomb to Succeed Harrison. As has been said before the slate is not confined to the ticket headed by Harrison. It goes farther and carefully provides for Silas A. Holcomb, who, according to the cut and dried plan, is to be the nominee for supreme judge to succeed Justice Harrison. Holcomb's term as governor will not expire until January 1899 and he has concluded that it would be better for him to step from the executive into the judicial branch of the government. He was reluctant to relinquish the governorship and was quite willing to become a candidate for the third term, but his administration has been so unpopular as a result of unwise appointments and kindred proclivities which have given rise to more or less scandal that he was warned by his friends that he would undertake such a thing at his peril. The strongest objection to his nomination came from Omaha, where, in many quarters, it is felt that if he were to step from the executive into the judicial branch of the government, he would be given to understand, and so were the party leaders, that at best the party would be severely castigated this fall for the abuses inflicted upon the citizens of this community within the past year.

Like a chivalrous Caesar who once looked upon the ruin he wrought, Governor Holcomb concluded that under the circumstances retreat was the better part of valor, and he and his lieutenants have finally agreed that he will abandon the third term idea and start on still higher ground.

There are a good many other would-be martyrs in the ranks of the populist party and they find little consolation in the plans as adopted. They are opposed to ring dominance and they fear, too, that the conduct of the present state house ring, directed that of the political bosses and head-ers who have sat in chambers and directed the policy of the administration, has been such as to invite righteous retribution at the hands of a justly indignant electorate, and they are of the opinion that the only safe way is to route the ringsters home, foot and dragon, and to come over from the outside to take up their abode in the different ticket. Just how the ring will be broken up and how the party will be reorganized remains to be developed, but a war is on and unless the ringsters retreat and turn their outposts over to the anti-ring element the latter say that the final engagement will be fought not in secret party councils but at the ballot box next fall.
