Shafter holds the key to the gates of Cuban liberty and Hayden Bros hold the key to the clothing trade of Omaha. In other words Haydens are the agents of the people—secure their fashions for them from the World's greatest tailors and deliver them closer to the cost of manufacture than any other clothing concern in existence. Other stores in Omaha sell goods cheaply because the country is full of cheap manufacturing tailors, but there are only a few makers of men's choicest suits, and recently we closed out an entire stock of men's finest suits at less than 60 cents on the dollar so that the sale here consists of only the finest goods.

MUSICIANS RAISE THEIR CRY

Congress Sounds the Shilleboth of a New Cult for This Country.

AMERICAN MUSIC FOR AMERICANS Dr. Sherwood Voices the Sentiment in a Vigorous Address and is Applauded by the Delegates and Spectators.

The music lovers of the city are evidently beginning to more fully appreciate the enjoyable and rare features on the programs of the Musical Congress at the day sessions of the First Congregational church.

Yesterday's session was lively from every point of view. The addresses and recitals were of a high order, and there was something new and also that even an ordinary layman—whose ears are not perfectly attuned understanding to the rendition of intricate classics, but who compels the performer by enjoying them just the same—can appreciate in. This was the fact that the assemblage of musicians displayed their Americanism to a great extent.

The music lovers of the city are evidently beginning to more fully appreciate the enjoyable and rare features on the programs of the Musical Congress at the day sessions of the First Congregational church.

On the Origin of Harmony. In the absence of Mr. Moore yesterday Mr. Sherwood presided. The congress was opened at 10 o'clock by a paper prepared by Mr. John S. Van Cleave of Chicago. It was a deep and scholarly address and a very interesting study of the origin of harmony as it was practiced among the ancient Greeks. Mr. Van Cleave was not present and his paper was taken up by Mrs. Edward W. Peck.

Dr. Gerrit Smith, the organist who is delighting the assembly with his renditions, then talked on "The Place and Influence of the Organ in the Development of Musical Art." The address was prepared under a stress of time while the organist was summing at Colorado Springs, and he said that the paper would go under almost any name. It was, however, an instructive treatise of the beginning of the grand instrument. The history was entwined with personal experiences and bits of reference that showed his familiarity with the subject. He showed that the church had been the institution that had designed for the service of praising the Deity. The doctor humorously observed that there were but very few Smiths who had ever been able to play the organ. There was a Smith of old who had assisted in the development of the instrument.

There are but three great Smiths I ever heard of in connection with the history of the cathedral organ," he said. "There was Tubal Cain, a smith; old Father Smith and myself." The attendance at the afternoon congress was fully representative and worthy of the brilliant numbers that graced the program. The church was comfortably filled with a distinctly music-admiring crowd and there were features on the program rarely excelled.

Music and its Coloring. An address that combined the features of a lecture as well as a recital was presented by Mrs. Katherine Flisk of New York. Mrs. Flisk treated the subject of "The Voice as a Painter of Emotion." Mrs. Flisk was assisted by Miss Rita Lorton, the soprano of Nebraska City. The paper was on the theme of tone color and how the voice is capable of portraying in feeling in the same way that a painter does with his brush the varying shades of human feeling. The selections from the world of music, of operas and other great creations, were in the best of taste. The selections were illustrated throughout by examples and only one who has heard and felt the power of Mrs. Flisk's contralto and the beautiful soprano of Miss Lorton can conceive the beauties that were brought out in this performance.

After the outset the speaker said she would throw aside the technicalities and offer in a simple and straightforward manner what she understood by tone-color. The keynote of the poem is understanding it and as she sings she captures the poet will depict its ever-varying emotions and the singer must interpret them. There were many pretty thoughts in Mrs. Flisk's comments. Her first interpolation was Dr. Dyvorak's biblical songs—the setting of songs to music. Somber and grey were the colors, clouds and darkness; the power of God in judgment and terror and the earth itself fairly trembling.

Wagner's Music Analyzed.

Dr. Albert Ross Parsons of New York, who has studied the music of Wagner as much perhaps as any man in this country, occupied the next hour with an address on "The Soul of Wagner's Music." It was a careful analysis of the life and work of the great German composer. The purity and the speaker had the undivided attention of all. Dr. Parsons said that the composer realized the relation of music to the soul of all things animate and inanimate. He was the truly and ideally inspired writer, harmony and when he surrendered himself to the influence from the invisible world he created that which was lastingly grand and had the merit of greatness in it.

William F. Sherwood and Miss Jennie Osborn alternated in recital which was given between 3:30 and 5 o'clock to a great audience which listened with rapt attention and gave vent to most enthusiastic approval. Miss Franc Van Kuran presided as accompanist.

At 5 o'clock the delegates and visitors to the congress were given a reception at the residence of Hon. George W. Linsinger and wife. The delegates were entertained in that hospitable mansion for which the Linsinger house is so well known.

Evening Concert. The evening concert was given at the exposition Auditorium and was entirely devoted to the music of Wagner. The work of the orchestra was truly up to the high average which it has established for itself and after the playing of the Prelude and Love-Death from "Tristan and Isolde" Mr. Mees, the conductor, was obliged to bow his acknowledgments at least half a dozen times.

This concert was signalized by the first appearance of Miss Jennie Dutton, the noted soprano from New York City, who sang the soprano part with Mr. Homer Moore from the grand duet from the second act of "The Flying Dutchman." Miss Dutton possesses a strong dramatic voice and a temperament well adapted to the rendering of such music.

The following contributed to the program the famous "Parsifal" from the third act of "Lohengrin." His rendering of the selection was one of the gems of the performance.

The quietest of "Die Meistersinger" sung by Miss Osborn, Miss Bryant and Messrs. Fellows, Hannah and Moore, secured a hearty encore and showed the audience the genius of the composer in the realm of concerted music. The musical program ended with "Wotan's Farewell and the Magic Fire Scene" from "Die Walkure," sung by Mr. Homer Moore. The audience gave Mr. Moore a most enthusiastic reception on his appearance and applauded for fully five minutes at the close of this number.

At the close of the musical program a large number of stereoscopic views were shown, illustrating the scenes in the Wagner music drama. Mr. Moore explained briefly each picture and incidentally recited as accompanist.

Today's Program. The exercises of the congress today are specially important. At 9:30 o'clock Mr. A. J. Goodrich of Chicago will deliver an address upon "The Relativity of Tones." He will be followed by Mr. John C. Fillmore of California, who will give forth some new and valuable ideas, all of which are the result of original investigation, upon "The Harmonic Basis of Indian Melody." At 11 o'clock the fifth recital of the series will be given by Mr. J. Wallace Goodrich, organist of Boston and Miss Mabel Crawford, contralto, of Chicago.

At 1:15 Miss Alice C. Fletcher of Washington, D. C. will deliver an address upon "The Psychic Aspect of Indian Music" and she will be followed by Mr. Francis L. Fleische, also of Washington, upon "The Omaha Indian Songs of War and Peace." Mr. Fillmore will be assisted by Miss Amanda Vierheller, who will sing one of the Indian songs. Miss Fletcher will be assisted by Mr. Frank Adelman, who will play upon the violin a number of Indian melodies, and Mr. L. E. Klesche will have at his disposal a company of Indian singers, who will sing a number of their native songs. At 2:30 Mr. Bernhard Listemann, violinist, of Chicago, and Miss Jennie Dutton will give a recital.

BO/ RD OF EDUCATION MEETS

Gilman, Banker and Reipen Re-Elected Secretary, Superintendent of Buildings and Custodian. The meeting of the Board of Education held last night was attended by all members of the board. Few reports were offered and the session was a brief one.

The chairman's report was adopted, and $5,500 appropriated for the salaries of janitors, laborers and census enumerators. The new school census shows that there were 32,892 children in attendance upon public schools last year, against 30,134 children the previous year.

The exposition directors are anxious to have the Omaha schools make a comprehensive exhibit, and the matter of making such an exhibit was considered by the board and referred to a committee which is to look into the cost of such an exhibit and report at the next meeting.

A motion was adopted which provides for the employment of janitors for eleven months, beginning with July 1 instead of the Pacific school next came up, and the choice for the coming year, H. J. Banker for superintendent of buildings and C. H. T. Reipen for custodian of buildings.

The question of choosing a site for the Pacific school next came up, and the choice for the coming year, H. J. Banker for superintendent of buildings and C. H. T. Reipen for custodian of buildings.
