If this resolution is adhered to it will put Hainer practically out of the race, as several of the counties will go to the convention instructed for local candidates, Jefferson having already led off by allowing Hinshaw to select the congressional delegation.

Notable Gathering of Indian Educators at the Annual Institute.

MAUD ECHO HAWK AS A TEACHER

Interesting Persons at the Meeting at Colorado Springs-Some of the New and Old Workers for the Indians.

COLORADO SPRINGS, July 21 .- At the National Institute of Teachers in the Indian schools in session here there are a number of interesting persons, and the gathering is altogether one of the most interesting ever held by these teachers. There are nearly 500 persons in attendance. Among them are a few Indians who have taken up the work of educating and civilizing their own

One of these native teachers is Maud Echo Hawk, a beautiful Pawnee girl who displays gold filling in her teeth when she smiles. Picture a slim graceful figure attired in a dainty blue check gingham dress trimmed with white lace, small feet shod n pointed kid shoes tipped with patent leather; an oval distinctively Indian face; inted coppery complexion; brownish black eyes that express a fathomless depth of tenderness. This is Maud Echo Hawk, an upto-date Indian maiden who makes her own clothes and knows how to concoct cream tarts, mince pies and ever so many other civilized things to ruin the digestion of her future husband.

She has such a sweet romantic name, suggestive of caverns and mountain crags and cataracts, that it seems a shame to civilize her. In her the untamed blood of her forefathers has not been entirely subdued n spite of the civilizing process she has been put through since she was taken away from her father's wigwam as a little girl and placed in the Carlisle Indian school.

Miss Echo Hawk is now 23 years old and she has had many advantages, but she says that she sometimes longs to go back to her people. When asked if she would ever go back to ber nation and be married; the tint of brown cheeks deepened and she smiled bashfully. The question confused her and she said in her quaintly accented English that she did not know, but she dropped her eyes and a dreamy look came into them as she played with a little ring on the third finger of her left hand.

This young girl is the head seamstress in charge of the sewing department of the Hope Indian school at Springfield, S. D. After a course at Carlisle she was trans ferred to the Lincoln institute at Philadelphia, where she graduated. She has paid a few brief visits to her father, who is a chief among the Pawnees in Oklahoma. Her people treat her respectfully, but the women turned up their noses at her broad sleeves the last time she was there and she was criticised a good deal because she could not split wood. As a teacher she earns $35 a month and boards herself.

Some Veteran Teachers. Attending the institute are men and women who have devoted the best years of their lives to the work of teaching the younger generation of Indians to adapt themselves to civilized conditions. They have lived for years among these children of the forest far away from their friends, cut off from the things which educated people enjoy; they have seen the aboriginal American in all his moods and under all conditions, yet not one who was consulted in all the strongholds of the gold men and but declared that the Indians are not only capable of becoming thrifty, educated, temperate, worthy citizens of this enlightened nation, but that a large majority of those who have had a fair opportunity have become excellent citizens. These teachers also declare that the Indians are increasing rapidly in numbers, which they mention as a proof that the race is better adapted to civilized environment than to the precarious life of nomads. A. H. Viets, who has been superintendent of the Cheyenne Indian school at Darlington, Okl., for eight years, says that the Indians are rearing larger families now than they did twenty-five or fifty years ago and that a much larger percentage of the children live to maturity "Give an educated Indian half a chance," said Mr. Viets, "and he will get along. "Well, yes-it seems to agree with the children to smoke, but I don't know as I would like to be quoted on that point."

Teacher from Nebraska. Miss Ella Worden, who has been isolated for twelve years at the Santee agency, in the northern part of Nebraska, is a brave young woman who loves to help the Indians. Sh is in charge of about thirty men and boys Burt County Sunday School association was Her youngest pupil is seventeen years old held in the First Baptist church in this city and her oldest is nearly forty. Her department is a part of the Santee missionar school conducted under the auspices of the American Missionary society of the Congre-ational church. Miss Worden spends her days all alone with her savage pupils, but she has no more fear of them than if they were little chil-

"They very quickly discover whether you love them," said Mis Worden, "and if you do they will be as submissive as lambs. In my experience of twelve years none of my pupils ever offended me. These big fellows are generous and chivalrous at heart.

"I believe that Indians are more easily managed than whites," declared Miss Worden judiciously. "Indian girls are sweet and superior advantages of women in civilization. In our schools, of course, we teach religion and I find that my pupils make earnest Christians. In fact the Indian is earnest in whatever he does.'

Miss Worden is the institute instructor in the department of domestic science and nursing. The classes are held at Montgomery hall, one of the Colorado college buildings. New Superintendent.
