Ranking Member of the Finance Committee Makes a Strong and Lucid Argument-Jones of Nevada Opposes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.-The financial debate in the senate reached its climax today. Two great speeches, one in favor of the pending senate substitute measure nd the other in opposition to it, were delivered, and both were listened to by sentors with close attention.

The first was delivered by Allison, the ranking member of the finance committee. He had been an attentive listener to the speeches delivered on the other side of the chamber and in the course of his argument he presented his answers to the points raised against the pending senate bill.

What the Platform Demands.

Whereas, In the opinion of the national anti-trust conference, assembled at Chicago February 12, 13 and 14, 190, the just and true remedy for the combinations known as trusts, which consist of corporations and natural persons controlling legalized and special privileges is the abolition of those privileges; and

Whereas, the legalized privilege of telegraph monopoly, the legalized privilege of protection against foreign competition with American goods controlled by trusts, the legalized privilege of monopolizing the lesue of paper, money and the legalized privileges incident to the private ownership of rallways are potent factors in creating and maintaining trusts, therefore be it resolved.

"Whereas There has been passed by the house of repercentatives a bill known as the currency bill, which bill is now pending in the senate of the United States, and "Whereas By said bill and by the senate amendment it is proposed by law to extend further special and exclusive privileges to favored classes, and "Whereas Said bill and amendments, if monopolies from entering agricultural fields"

M. C. Wetmore, the tobacco manufacturer of St. Louis, addressed the conference on his personal experience with trusts. Mr. Wetmore declared that the trust promoter is the worst enemy of the human race. The protective tariff, he declared, was the foundation of the modern trust and its concomitant evils.
