Million Gallons Whisky Downed

LINCOLN—Some odds and ends from the year-end date book Nebraska's consumed a record pile of cigars in 1957, enough to shovel $4.2 million into the treasury in the statehouse—a new high. Without an added cent in tax okayed by the legislature, state-house sources still feel the total is a record. An average of a gallon of hard liquor per person, or 1.3 million gallons, was consumed in the state in 1957 (about 30% less than the 1956 national average). Beer sold in Nebraska amounted to 21.4 million gallons in 1957, about 15 gallons per person average (just about the same as the 1956 national average). Twenty-three Nebraska airports are scheduled for 26 improvement projects during the current fiscal year, at a total cost of $1.4 million. About half of this will be federal funds. Collections of the seven cent tax on gasoline totaled $33.4 million in 1957, a million bucks higher than in 1956. A total of 89 Nebraskans died in 1957 from influenza, the highest since 1953, and 374 succumbed to pneumonia as against 342 in 1956. An office appliance firm predicts Nebraskans will shell out $22.1 million in 1958 for office equipment and stationery. State safety officers, although disappointed in the high traffic death count in 1957, posted the year as the safest since 1949 when 258 persons were killed on highways. The 1957 toll was 302. And, a final one: The game commission is warming water in the Gremlin Bay area of the Harlan county dam reservoir, to attract fish to the warm well water pumped in so as to boost success of ice fishing. School Aid—If congress passed a federal aid to education program as now proposed, Nebraska could have a first class scrap on its hands. This program, according to State Education Commissioner F. B. Decker, would provide about $5 million to Nebraska that would have to be matched on a dollar for dollar basis. The federal program is to boost the number of science and math graduates through a scholarship program, under a state-federal financing program. Gov. Victor Anderson, a leader on the current committee of the national governor's conference which is trying to eliminate unnecessary or new federal aid programs and reduce present ones, had no comment. The governor, who also is an advocate of a "hold the line" state budget, said he could not comment until he found out more details on how the federal program would fit into the Nebraska situation. To raise $5 million in matching funds, under the present valuation of property in Nebraska, would require an extra $1.66 per each $1,000 worth of property.

Minor Problem

The State liquor commission said its biggest problem in 1957 was sale of liquor or beer to minors. Public drinking by minors has been reduced, the commission said in an annual report, but
