PRIZES STILL AWARDED
The earliest known rodeo that put up prize money for the contestants was held in Pecos, Texas, in 1883 on the Fourth of July. The rodeo is still held annually.

MOST NATIVE SPORT
Rodeo is the most native American sport - more so even than baseball, which is patterned after a game played with sticks and a ball in 18th Century England.

PACKS 'EM IN!
Approximately 13.5 million spectators see RCA approved rodeos each year, a total roughly equal to the attendance to all college football games.

LONGEST SEASON
Rodeo has the longest season of any professional sport, starting early in January and running through the following December.

An estimated one person in twenty saw a rodeo last year in California, which had more rodeos than any other state in the union.

The Fourth of July rodeo in Prescott, Ariz., in 1888 is the first rodeo known to have charged admission.
