Putting a timber loop around the bobbing head of a high-tailing calf takes skill. Calf-roping will be only one of the events at the two-night rodeo under the lights at the 66th annual Holt county fair. Rodeo performances will be Wednesday and Thursday, August 20-21, at Chambers.

Clowns Fight on Foot for Purpose

Brahmas Would Kill Horse in Arena

Rodeo clowns fight Brahmas on foot because the bulls would quickly kill a horse used to fight them.

That's the harsh fact behind the dangerous but highly important role played by these Pagliacci of the dusty arena.

Some of the toughest Brahmas in the world will be loosed in the arena at the Holt fair's rodeo performances August 20-21.

It's ironic that the pickup men rescue the cowboys in the bronc riding events can't be used in bull riding.

The broncs, for the most part, carry no grudge against their riders. They simply want to get the cowboys off their backs. That done, they go on about their business.

The bulls, on the other hand, try to throw their riders so they can charge them, trying to kill them with their hooves and horns.

They're no more friendly toward horses. So the pickup horses are kept a safe distance away at the other end of the arena and the clowns move in on foot.

It's a real David and Goliath match. Rodeo Brahmas often average a ton apiece, are wise to the evasive ways of man, and, unlike the naive fighting bulls of Spain and Mexico, don't waste their energy on long, straight, easily sidestepped charges.

To even things up a little, the clown needs a memory like a librarian and a complete catalogue of the fighting characteristics of several strings of bulls, legs like a champion sprinter, a flawless sense of timing like a trapeze artist and a double endorsement of just plain guts.

How much they have of the last quality is apparent in the way they play for laughs even when working in close to the horns.

They not only save cowboys from situations too tightly dangerous for trained horses; they do it with the nonchalant ease of a slap-stick comedian slinging pigs.

Clowns fall generally into two categories: barrel men and bull fighters. The fighters work afoot, while the others, usually teamed with a fighter, work in and out of a steel drum padded on the outside with old rubber tires.

It would seem at first that the real rescue work is done by the fighter, with the barrel man there simply for the comedy of being bounced around. But the barrel man is an important part of the team.

No man can flat outrun a Brahma bent on killing. The fighter's technique is to bait the beast with short, curving passes, make the turns lighter than the bull can manage at full speed. Often the pace of the dance can get pretty giddy as the bull, getting madder, gets wiser at the same time.

Then the bull fighter will duck behind the barrel, pushing the attention of the pursuing bull off on another target.

That's the whole idea of the clown, to offer the bull a target so inviting he won't be taking after the bull riders. But the bull will lose interest in a target he charges often but never hits. So they get him to hit the barrel, a nice firm victim that takes the full force of the charge with a satisfying crash. It restores the bull's confidence.

The barrel man is only relatively safe. Some seasons ago one had a chance to ponder this fact for several terrifying minutes. A small horned bull thrust his head in the open end of the barrel, when it stuck fast, face to face with the cramped, curled up clown. Next day, the barrel man modified his steel drum by putting in a rear entrance.

Then there was the barrel man who was the victim of an unusual bull's tactics several years ago at Tucson. The big Brahma just jumped—and came down with his full weight on the barrel, squashing it flat enough that it took a good, strong blacksmith and a couple of helpers quite some time to pry the clown out of his sardine can.

Pre-Fair Day Here Next Week

Plans for the annual pre-fair 4-H style revue are nearly complete.

The style revue will be held Tuesday evening, August 12, at the O'Neill public school auditorium, starting at 8 p.m. In addition to the modeling of clothes made by 4-H girls, small 4-H music groups will take part.

The style revue will be preceded by the 4-H music identification contest at 7:30 o'clock followed by the speech contest.

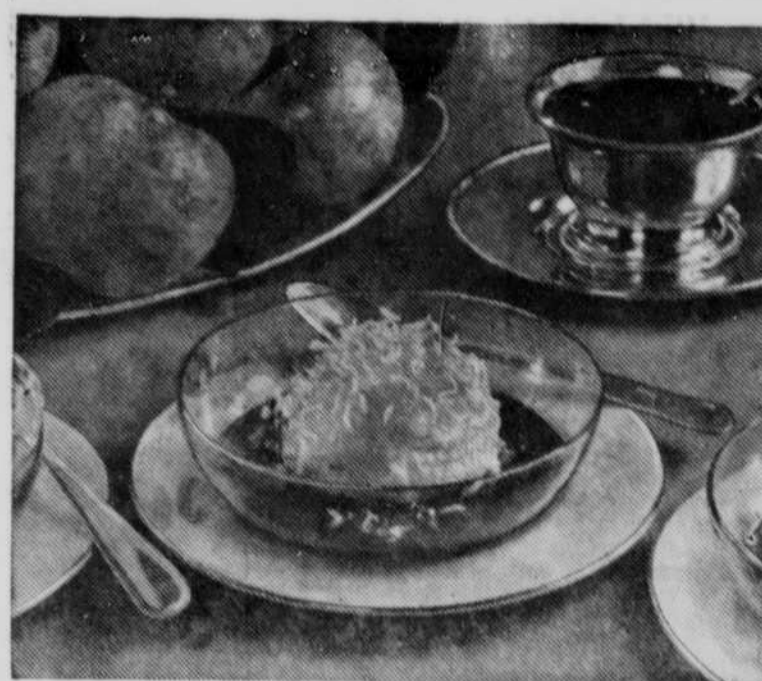

This year a portable sewing machine will be given to the top girl in the style revue by the Adler Sewing Center of O'Neill. The next six award winners will be presented dressmaker shears through the cooperation of the Holt county home extension council and Coyne Hardware and Montgomery Hardware. Ribbons will be awarded all contestants in music, speech and style revue by the O'Neill Chamber of Commerce.

The Holt County Agricultural society will give premiums to those who participate in the style revue at the county fair.

Judging of the style revue will take place Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the auditorium of the public school.

The public is invited to attend the style revue and contests on Tuesday evening.

New Spicy Applesauce Ice Cream

LITTLE and big summer apples have many uses in the kitchen. One of the surprising best is in a new, flavorful and mighty good ice cream. Buy 1 quart packaged vanilla ice cream; combine with 2 cups sieved applesauce. Let ice cream soften slightly; add applesauce slowly blending well. Spoon into freezer trays. Set control for fastest freezing. Freeze until firm. Makes 10 to 12 servings. Top each serving with coconut, chopped nuts, or any other favorite topping.

Spicy Applesauce
3 pounds summer apples (10 to 12)
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Core, pare, and quarter apples. Simmer in covered saucepan with 1/2 cup water 10 to 15 minutes or until apples are tender. Combine sugar and spices; add with lemon juice. If desired, put through food mill or sieve. Makes about 3 cups.

And don't forget applesauce on warm muffins, as dessert at end of a hearty luncheon, with cookies for the children, in a covered container in the lunch box. It's never better than when made from the first young apples of the new crop.
