The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Juliana Kamphaus of O'Neill. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Stewart of Page.

Rev. Robert B. Duffy officiated in the double-ring ceremony. The bride, escorted to the altar by her brother, Joseph Kamphaus, approached the altar in a floor-length gown of antique lace and sheer nylon net. The fitted bodice was entirely of lace, trimmed by tulle, forming a square neck line. The long sleeves tapered to a deep ball point over the hands.

The full overskirt of lace to the hip line was accented with descending in a circular effect descending to the floor in transparent nylon. The underskirt of net ruffles showed through the transparent. A pearl seeded tulle held her net veil of nylon trimmed in Chantilly lace. She carried white carnations on a white prayer book. A three-strand string of pearls was her only jewelry.

Mrs. Genevieve Shaw, sister of the bride, was matron-of-honor. Her gown was yellow net over tulle with a strapless bodice having a sweetheart neckline. The bouffant skirt was water length.

Mrs. June Neubauer, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Her gown was similar in styling to the matron-of-honor's, of blue net over tulle. Each wore a matching headband and over each of lace and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow and white mums.

Richard Stewart, ETSN, was best man for his brother and wore his navy uniform. Leo Neubauer, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was groomsmen. He was attired in a gray business suit.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Kamphaus chose a gray dress with black accessories. The mother of the bridegroom was dressed in peach-colored blue with sequins and black bows. Both mothers wore pink carnation corsages.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Juliana Amburger, was dressed in black. The bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Carrie Sterner and Mrs. Francis Stewart, chose dresses of navy blue with blue and black accessories. Their corsages were fashioned of white carnations.

A dinner and a reception at the American Legion auditorium followed the ceremony, given by the bride's mother and served by friends of the family.
