State Capitol News . . . Size of Vote

Question Mark Candidates in Final Stretch

LINCOLN—The stage is set for Nebraska's November 4 election, but candidates are working to the last day.

A question mark in the balloting will be the size of the vote, not expected to be a record because this is a non-presidential year, and whether farmers will swing to the Democratic side.

There are bumper crops and some concern about what to do with them but no definite indications if farmers plan to sit tight or to change.

Nebraska Republicans are confident of a sweep in all offices, but concede they are running "scared."

Democrats predict a victory and point to the caliber of their candidates.

Campaigning is at a fever pitch this week, one that many politicians believe is a crucial period because the voters who haven't made up their mind often do so a day or so before election.

There was more than the normal amount of verbiage this election year from both the Republican and Democratic parties, mostly because of new spirit within the state Democratic organization.

But looking as a big obstacle is the finely-organized GOP in Nebraska, and a lack of money on the part of Democratic candidates.

Primary election vote totals tell the difficult problem the democratic party is facing. They show a total GOP ballot of 126,450 compared with 79,833 for the opposing party.

Healing Arts—

A legislative council study committee has no goal in a radical program of legislation in the field of the healing arts.

Its chairman, State Sen. Donald McGinley of Ogallala, said the goal of his committee is one of "mutual understanding" between osteopaths and physicians.

Said the chairman: "We hope we can recommend to the legislature a course of action that will be helpful to doctors of medicine and doctors of osteopathy to smooth out some of the differences that they seem to have and which show up before the Legislature every two years in some form."

McGinley said Kansas has solved the problem by a composite examination board which gives the same licensing to both groups.

Normal Schools—

Gov. Victor Anderson says he favors an increase in the budgets of the four state teachers colleges to provide higher pay for instructors.

The colleges are at Wayne, Chadron, Peru, and Kearney.

"We must pay adequate salaries in order to have first class schools," the governor commented, "because after all, the most important factor to a good school is good instructors."

Gov. Anderson already has gone on record for higher salaries for University of Nebraska staff members.

Carpenter Hearings—

Sen. Terry Carpenter's probe into tax law violations and his crusade against Governor Victor Anderson is winding up in Douglas county.

Carpenter says he is amazed at the "realism" in the returns from Douglas county businesses. He also praised County Assessor Joseph Stolinski for "preventing" unfavorable situations found in other counties.

Early hearings in Douglas, Carpenter noted, showed none of the conditions he had expected would exist.

Welfare Budget—

One of the big spending agencies in state government has announced its request for funds for 1953-54.

The division of public welfare asks for $41,781,600 total budget for the next two years. This is up $2.5 million from the current 1952-53 period.

Frank Woods, division director, said the request for state money from the property-tax supported general fund is down $1.3 million, with the total asking $41,198,600.

A federal hike in assistance allotments is responsible for the $3.8 million increase in federal funds sought, making the total federal fund asking $27,554,600.

The request goes to the board of control which has a dual role as the State Welfare Board, then to Governor Anderson.

Governor Anderson will hold budget hearings and make recommendations to the next Legislature after which a budget committee, composed of state senators, holds hearings and makes its recommendations.

Final appropriation is decided by the entire legislature. All federal funds that would automatically come to a department must first be approved by the state.

Signs Must Go—

There should be no political signs along right-of-way of state highways, Governor Anderson has said.

The governor requested the state chairman of the Republican and Democratic parties to cooperate in asking their workers to remove "illegally posted" signs.

There has been criticism in recent weeks about signs being posted along highways and on public property throughout the state.

Rural Youth Planning Session Held—

At the Monday, October 13, meeting of the Holt county rural youth, plans were made for a YMW meeting to be held Monday, November 3. This will be especially for young adults, married or single. A program is being planned to interest such a group.

A planning meeting was held at the Orville Indra home Monday, October 27.

The group voted to donate $30 to the IFYE fund for 1953. Plans were made for a meeting with one of this year's IFYE, Miss Alice Young—who is in Belgium.—By Bob Martens, reporter.

Nebraska Farmer Says:
"d-CON CLEANED UP MY RAT-INFESTED FARM!"
Read what Melvin M. Yonke, of Crofton, Nebraska, has to say about d-CON:
"When I moved onto my farm, it was infested with rats. I tried lots of rat-killers, but they just didn't prove out. Then one day I heard about d-CON. I believe me, d-CON really works. It's a rat-killer that gets results. d-CON cleaned up my rat infested farm. Switching to d-CON was a great break for me!"

It's a fact—in the great corn and wheat belts of America, where farmers really know how to get rid of rats, d-CON outdoes all other rat and mouse killers combined. Farmers know that d-CON is the quick, sure, easy way to rid their property of destructive, disease-bearing rats. For rats hangily eat d-CON's exclusive LX 3-2-1 formula, never suspect it's bait, never get bait-ahy, devour it without guessing that every bite puts another nail in their coffin. d-CON actually makes rats commit suicide. d-CON is THERMO-SEALED—always reaches you "factory fresh." Economical, too. One package of d-CON makes several bait stations. Remember, d-CON, used as directed, is safe to use around small children, pets, poultry and livestock, yet is guaranteed to keep your property rat and mouse free forever!
