TO THE PEOPLE OF NEBRASKA

We are pleased with your decision on Election Day, approving Constitutional Amendment No. 300, which authorizes the payment of taxes by us.

We believe this provides for a sound, long range program for tax payments as we continue to grow with Nebraska.

We take real pride in the electric service we render, and being a vital part of nearly 300 Nebraska towns which we serve retail.

Thank you, Nebraska Voters
Consumers Public Power District

Forsythe Land

This real property was owned by the late Alex Forsythe and is being offered for sale by the Executor of his estate at private sale:

The South Half of Section 5, Northwest quarter of Section 8, Township 31, Range 14;

The Southeast quarter of the Northwest quarter, the Southwest quarter of the Northeast quarter, the East half of the Southwest quarter, the West half and the Southeast quarter of the Southeast quarter of Section 27, the Northeast quarter of the Northeast quarter of Section 34, Township 32, Range 14.

The land will be offered as a unit of 800 acres, more or less; or an improved 320 acres, 80 acres upland hay and 80 acres idle land, more or less; or improved 320 acres, more or less; or 80 acres upland hay and 80 acres idle land, more or less; and 320 acres hay and pasture, more or less. The land will be sold whichever way it brings the most money, as a unit or in separate tracts.

The improved 320 acres has a good house 36' x 20' (pitcher pump in kitchen), with oil storage tank; good barn 36' x 24' with 1 lean-to 24' x 10' and another 24' x 16'; double crib and granary 30' x 24'; cattle and machine shed 60' x 18' with lean-to 18' x 10'; stock well and electric pump at buildings; 2/10 of a mile heavy windbreak on North and West. This half section pastured 35 cows, 2 heifers, 1 bull and 35 calves this summer. Small field of alfalfa and small meadow cut 11 tons hay. Served by REA. A share in the Collins Independent Telephone Co. goes with this tract. The 80 acres of upland hay cut 31 tons this year. The idle ground was not used.

The 320 acre unimproved hay and pasture tract cut about 120 tons of hay. Most of this meadow cuts hay with considerable clover in it. There were 30 heifers in the pasture for a month and a half and 50 cows and calves on the aftergrowth and pasture for a month.

The Executor invites bids from all persons interested in buying this place or any part of it. All bids are subject to the approval and acceptance of the Executor and all others whose approval may be required.

Property will be sold for cash. If prospective buyers desire time, loan arrangements will have to be made by them elsewhere.

Terms 25% down when sale is confirmed, balance on March 1, 1959, when transaction is completed.

Lussenhop-McKee

Rites at Las Vegas

ATKINSON—Miss Janet Lussenhop and Neal Strudevant McKee, both of Denver, Colo., were married Thursday, October 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Church of the West, Las Vegas, Nev. A dinner followed at the Desert Inn. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Velma Lussenhop of Denver and the bridegroom the son of Dr. and Mrs. Neal P. McKee. Miss Jeanne Dunn of Denver and Randall Barnhart of Atlanta, Ga., were attendants. A reception was held Saturday at the Willshire Country Club in Denver. The bride attended the University of Colorado at Boulder. Her husband attended the University of Nebraska, Miami university in Oxford, O., and Columbia university in New York City. He is affiliated with Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. The couple will live in Denver.

Disabled Son or Daughter May Benefit

The 1958 social security amendments provide that a son or a daughter over 18 but disabled may receive monthly benefits if the insured parent is receiving benefits, advises Clifford Kittelson, manager of the Norfolk social security office.

To be eligible the disabled son or daughter must have been disabled since before he was 18. The disability must be so severe as to prevent him from being able to do gainful work.

Anyone thinking he is eligible should contact his social security office, Kittelson said.

Anderson Pressing Brooks in Final Tab

Carpenter Hurt Vic in Campaign

LINCOLN—Nebraska's general election was very much a matter of vote totals on an important matter—who won the mail vote and thus the governorship of Nebraska as well as lieutenant-governor and state treasurer?

These three hung in balance as the result of a surge of Democratic strength in Nebraska unequalled in 18 years.

It went into office State Sen. Donald McGinley of Osallala, who defeated Ren. A. L. Miller in the Fourth congressional district and Lawrence Brock who turned back Rep. Robert Harrison in the Third.

Brook, who was nipped by Harrison by 246 votes in 1956, was considered the race to watch with the Fourth district the dark horse in pre-election guesses.

The biggest surprise was the democratic tide, strong nation-wide, running in the GOP-dominated statehouse and even to the courthouse level in many areas.

Gov. Victor Anderson, trailing behind Ralph G. Brooks, set the statehouse into shock, then agonized suspense as inhabitants awaited the outcome of mail balloting.

A win by Brooks could clean out many top level positions in the capitol, along with many employment positions.

Pre-election guesses failed to take into account strong union activity in Omaha and Lincoln especially, and effect of the anti-Anderson activity by State Sen. Terry Carpenter on the tax enforcement issue.

Associates of the governor conceded those two factors were the deciding ones in the democratic vote for Brooks.

Carpenter cut deep inroads, political observers say, in the final 10 days of the campaign after tax law violation hearings in Lincoln and Omaha and a string of television appearances in those two cities.

The mail vote outstanding is large enough to change the results in two other races besides the governorship.

That is where Lt.-Gov. Dwight Burney of Hartington holds a lead over Frank Sorrell of Syracuse, and in the state treasurer's contest where State Sen. Monroe Bixler, is trailing Richard Larsen, Omaha democrat.

Nebraska took in $118,444 in revenue on the severance tax on oil and natural gas during September. Elmer Watkins, severance tax chief, said $116,288 was produced from 2,029,385 barrels of crude oil. The September total is higher than the same month in 1957.

A year earlier crude oil production of 1,697,561 barrels brought in $39,980.

There will be fireworks in the 1959 legislature on the matter of taxes, regardless of who is governor.

State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, re-elected easily to the legislature, promises that he said he considered the general election ballot a "mandate to attempt to change Nebraska laws."

Carpenter crusaded for months against Gov. Victor Anderson, striking at what he termed the lack of enforcement by the governor of existing laws.

The governor had replied that the law he pushed for in the 1957 legislature to provide enforcement was made ineffective by a Carpenter amendment.

The first order of new business for the lawmakers, Carpenter said, is revision of tax laws. He said he will make such proposals to the legislative council when it meets November 18-20.

Carpenter has steadfastly denied he has any further political ambition than the legislature. He said he expects to file for that position again.

Bingo—One of the surprises of the general election balloting was the ease with which a constitutional amendment to permit legalizing of Bingo sailed through.

Now, opponents and proponents of the measure have slated a meeting December 3 to work out a possible law the legislature could pass.

Object of the meeting, spokesmen say, is to come up with something that can be enforced without heavy cost and that will prevent gambling syndicates from taking over.

Two surprises also were rejection of an amendment that would have permitted cities to buy property for lease to private industrial corporations, and one to double the salaries of lawmakers.

There have been other attempts to try to raise the pay of state senators, now at $872.09 per year. They also failed at the polls but it was felt this time the lawmakers, in view of the cost of living, would go along.

However, they apparently looked to their pocketbooks on that issue.

Regarding the industrial amendment, C. V. Price, state director of the division of resources, said he feels its loss was due to the fact it was not understood by voters.
