Mail Man Reverses Direction in Snow!

Correspondent Found Flat-Footed

ROCK FALLS — Hi everybody! Did you think your reporter was buried last week in that first snow of the season?
Well, yours truly was high and dry but with the road completely blocked for a mile or two, it was certain () the mail couldn't get through to pickup the news letter. But, guess what, the mail man came from the opposite direction and left the mail. But no news had been written, hence you didn't hear from this corner last week.
And now everyone is so busy preparing for the coming holiday there is no time to make news. Folks are making ready for Thursday's festival, while at the same time a 1,001 plans are flashing through already crowded minds.

Driving in town to pick up that Thanksgiving bird and overhead and all along the streets are huge red Christmas bells and strings of pretty lights, just clamoring to be turned on. Needless, to say, the Christmas rush is already on!
