IN THE KITCHEN

Unseen Friend Versus Unseen Enemy

The American woman loves cleanliness in the kitchen, and she wages constant war against the invasion of dirt. In no theater is this war more stubbornly fought than in the oven. There the slightest bit of grime left from one use is baked into the walls of the oven during the next use, corroding the surface and opening the gates to more invaders. The "unseen enemy" is dirt that goes unnoticed and uncleaned after an oven is used. In an ordinary enameled oven, grime—grease and solid food—too frequently escapes a scrubbing and the "unseen enemy" establishes a beachhead for further conquest.

Today's housewife has found a new ally in the 1939 battle of the oven. Now, oven in quality stoves have gleaming chrome plated interiors that make it easy to spot the enemy dirt and whisk it away before it gains a foothold. Backing up the chrome plate in the fight against the "unseen enemy" is the "unseen friend"—nickel—a thick plating of nickel—and the thicker the better—protects the chrome from nicks and scratches and the steel underneath from corrosion. This all grime is detected before where all grime is done. The "unseen friend" conquers the "unseen enemy".

The chrome-nickel plating does much more because it reflects the heat inward for speedy, even cooking and cooler, more comfortable kitchens. Again, the heavier the nickel under the chrome the longer these qualities will be preserved.

Fuchtmann Rites Held at Creighton

Miss Abart Honored—
Miss Kristie Ann Abart, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Kieth Abart, celebrated her 7th birthday anniversary Wednesday, January 21, with a party at her home given by her mother. About 16 children were present. Games were played and treats were given to the children.

Refreshments of jello, cupcakes and pop were served.

Winners of MM club held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Esther C. Harris were Mrs. L. A. Burgess and Mrs. A. A. Hiatt.

Lives Many Years on Knox Farm

CREIGHTON—Funeral services for Mrs. Joseph Fuchtmann, 69, were conducted at a requiem high mass Friday morning, Jan. 16 at St. Ludwig's Catholic church. Celebrating the mass was Rev. Melvyn Weisse, assisted by the Rt. Rev. Joseph B. Falke, Rt. Rev. Robert Burns, Rev. William Loneman and Rev. H. Schwartz. Burial was in St. Ludwig's cemetery.

Mrs. Fuchtmann died Tuesday, January 13, at the Creighton hospital.

Palbearers, all nephews, were Eugene Dartman, Elmer Fuchtmann, Leonard Fuchtmann, Carl Schulz, Don Schwartz and John Van Brocklin.

Mrs. Fuchtmann, the former Clara Schulz, was born December 23, 1869, at Wisner. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schulz. She was united in marriage to Joseph Fuchtmann in 1912. They became the parents of 12 children. One died in infancy in 1915.

For five years they farmed near Wisner and then moved to a farm near Creighton.

Survivors include: Widow; daughters—Sister M. Rosamund, OSF, of Osmond; Sister M. Anastasia, OSF, of Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. John Burns and Mrs. Marvin Hasenpflug of Creighton and Mrs. Richard Focht of Omaha; sons—Leonard, Walter, Willard, Raymond and Joseph, all of Creighton, and Edwin of Hartington; brothers—Herbert Schulz of Wisner; John of Los Angeles, Calif.; and Eugene of Albuquerque, N.M.; sisters—Sister M. Charlene, OSF, of Norfolk; Sister M. Veronica, OSF, of Fulda, Minn.; Mrs. Henry Dartman of Norfolk; Mrs. Fred Van Brocklin and Mrs. Leo Storz of Creighton and Mrs. Charles Wagner of Pueblo, and 24 grandchildren.

Frontier Purchased by Wayne Publishers

employ multiple linotype machines in this area and established precedence here by expanding to an eight-column newspaper with installation of a larger press.

Wedding stories, church notices and "local news" dominated front pages of area newspapers before the rebirth of The Frontier, which came to be known successively as "North-Central Nebraska's fastest-growing newspaper" and for the past four years as "North-Central Nebraska's biggest newspaper". It is Holt county's oldest business establishment and is now in its 79th year.

Circulation 2600

Today The Frontier's audited circulation of 2,600 copies is the greatest of any weekly newspaper in an eight-county area.

Stewart inaugurated radio journalism as a supplement and the "Voice of The Frontier" a weekly scheduled program, is heard regularly by a large and responsive audience in three states. The same format with which the "Voice of The Frontier" went on the air in December, 1948, from a special studio in The Frontier building is still followed. The radio voice was widely-listened to during the now-famous Recurring Blizzards of 1948-49 and some of the special news programs were rebroadcast by networks. Rural electrification was in its infancy and farm and ranch people huddled close to battery-operated radios for more than six weeks while the area was gripped by the severest winter on record.

Special editions were published during "Operation Snowbound" (exactly 10 years ago today). At the time of the slaying of O'Neill Police Chief Chet Calkins and the subsequent trial of the slayer, Joseph Emmett McLimans. The Frontier promptly had extras on the streets and on newsstands.

In June, 1949, The Frontier published a 64-page diamond jubilee edition commemorating the city's 75th birthday anniversary. The copy-righted issue still stands as the biggest single issue of a weekly ever published in Nebraska.

The stewarts have three children: Suzanne, 12; Scott, 8; Sally, 7.

Stewart has announced no future plans except that he anticipates a "good rest". He brought back from Europe considerable data concerning the air force's low-level bombing of the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania. A New York publishing firm has been showing increasing interest in the material for several years and the withdrawal of editor of The Frontier indicates he will devote several months to organizing the material.

Building Leased
Cramer and Champion have leased The Frontier building from the Stewarts, who will continue to reside in their own home at 406 East Adams st.

The new owners contemplate no personnel changes except possible expansion of the staff.

"Negotiations for the sale were carried out during the past three months," Stewart said.

Todd, who was reared at Neligh and worked with Stewart prior to Hartington, came to The Frontier from Fairbanks, Alaska where he had been assistant mechanical superintendent of the Daily News-Miner three years. Todd will remain with the new owners during the transitional period.

By coincidence, Stewart and Cramer's father were engaged in negotiations 12 years ago concerning a partnership venture involving The Frontier, but the negotiations never went beyond the talking stage and Stewart became sole owner.

Todd was operating The Neligh News at the time the Stewarts purchased The Frontier. In addition to doing all the mechanical work at The News, he commuted between Neligh and O'Neill during the Stewarts' first few weeks in O'Neill.

First Legislative Hearings Underway

LINCOLN—First hearings of the new session of the legislature got underway this week.

They are an important part of the legislative process in Nebraska.

It is here Nebraskans have a chance to "speak their piece" on proposed legislation. This is done before a regular standing committee of the Legislature.

The senators hear the arguments, look over the bill and then decide whether to send it to the floor for full-scale debate and action, amend the proposed legislation and then report it to the floor, kill it outright or just let it lay in committee.

Sometimes, of course, this can be "planned," by lobbying organization with a large membership. But it still is decided by the lawmakers as a sign of what the "home folks" think.

High on the priority list also is the matter of mail from home.

Communications from legislator's district are among the most influencing things on his attitude on a measure, especially if the mail is large.
