Two more councilmen will be chosen in O'Neill as a result of city council action at their scheduled meeting.

The creation of a fourth ward by a four to one vote by the council, makes it possible for voters to choose the new men at the municipal election in April.

Traditionally the city has been divided into three wards. All north of Everett and east of 4th ward; all west of fourth and north of Everett; all south of Everett and all south of Everett, the third ward.

Here are the new lines defining the wards with Douglas the new line of demarcation; Everett no longer the division.

First ward—all of the city north of Douglas and west of Fourth.

Second ward—all of the city north of Douglas and east of Fourth.

Third ward—that portion situated south of Douglas and east of Fourth.

Fourth ward—the new ward—that portion of the city south of Douglas and west of Fourth.

One councilman, Robert Moore, of the present third ward was opposed to the addition of an extra ward. His was the dissenting vote.

Another third ward councilman, Fred Heermann, abstained from voting.
