Why So Many Colors in Diamonds?

The answer lies in the characteristic of the diamond—what the scientists call the power of DISPERSION. Ordinary white light is a mixture of all the colors of the rainbow. When the light enters the diamond, it is broken up because the diamond bends each different color ray at a slightly different angle—one angle for red, another for the orange, and so on through the blue and violet. So the light the diamond gathers is sent back to you with a dazzling rainbow fire. For this reason you should choose only fine cut diamonds—to obtain maximum fire and beauty. A wise policy when buying diamonds is "TO KNOW YOUR JEWELER".
