

Holt Cattle Association Will Hold Special Sale

An innovation in the selling of Hereford cattle here in the Sandhills has been planned by the Holt County Hereford Association. Keith Abart, secretary of the organization, has announced that a top quality Hereford stocker feeder sale was discussed at the meeting of the organization. The date of October 19th has been set as the date for the special sale where only high quality animals will be accepted. "We've been thinking of this for some time now," Abart said. "The ultimate purpose of the plan is to bring to the consign- or premium prices for their stock." The secretary explained that the group had observed the Black Friday sales, well known in this area for selling quality "blacks" and that the group wished to pattern their annual sale "somewhat" after it. "We haven't decided on a name for the sale yet," Abart said. "This will come in a few days, however." Abart explained that any rancher or feeder wishing to consign to the sale would be welcome in this area, but that only "good quality or better" animals would be accepted. Abart said some system of inspecting the cattle before the sale would also be adopted. "We might go right into the fields to do this," he explained. The stocker and feeder committee of the Association held their meeting at the O'Neill Livestock Market Monday evening.

St. Mary's Alums Told That Study Includes 'Arts'

Approximately 225 alumni of St. Mary's Academy were told that we must not place too much emphasis on technological advancement in our high schools to the detriment of the cultural and spiritual development of the students. Father Eugene Gallagher, a Jesuit priest, spoke at the banquet Sunday at St. Mary's, and said that the technological-cultural split was one of the problems facing education today.

He said that St. Mary's Academy had met this challenge in the past and was continuing to do so. "Mathematics and science are taught at St. Mary's, but the other subjects, such as history, English and language are also taught along with the most important subject of all, religion," Father Gallagher said. "This type of education enables man to become a well rounded individual."
