Council Awards Contract for Well

Layne-Western Firm Bids $9,088

The Layne-Western company, an Omaha firm, Friday was awarded the contract for a new well here. The well is intended to alleviate a critical water situation.

Low bid was $9,088. Contract provides for start on the drilling on Friday, June 17, and for completion July 1. The site is six feet northwest of the middle pump house, located on the U.S. highway 281 right-of-way two miles south of the city.

Layne-Western engineers plan to go to a depth of 386 feet and the well is intended to deliver 1,100-gallons-per-minute at capacity.

However, Water Supt. Don Douglas said the pump will be operated at only 500-gallons-per-minute.

Meanwhile, all water bills are being paid at the combination lounge-police station, located in the Yantzi building, immediately north of Biglin's. Mrs. Edith Castleman is the hostess.

The combination office-lounge telephone is 68 and all police calls are to be routed there. The headquarters formally opened on Monday.

Mayor Alva Marcellus this week offered congratulations to the motorists and pedestrians in the community for their "wonderful cooperation" while police are enforcing new traffic regulations.

"The people have been very good in keeping below the speed limit, eliminating noisy mufflers, observing two-hour parking and speed zones and eliminating the 'U' turns in restricted areas," the mayor declared.

85 Compete for Rodeo Prize Here

Thousands of people acclaimed the second annual RCA-approved O'Neill rodeo a big success Monday night at the close of the two-day show. Approximately two thousand persons were on hand for the matinee showing Sunday afternoon. Performances continued Sunday evening, Monday afternoon and Monday night.

Fifteen hundred dollars in purse money was distributed among the 85 competitors. More than one hundred cowboys from 17 states were registered.

Roger Bowen of Page, president of the O'Neill Saddle club, said the crowds were "substantially greater" than a year ago.

The Saddle club sponsors the event at the club's arena one-half mile east of the O'Neill city limits.

Rain late Saturday and threatening skies Sunday came near dampening the opening show, but by mid-afternoon the sun broke through and the weatherman smiled favorably on the performers and sponsors.

Eighteen horses were entered in the cutting horse contest. One wild bronco smashed into a fence with a rider aboard. The bronco suffered a broken neck and was killed.

The number of contestants far exceeded expectations and points up the intense competition existing here. Saddle club officials said this indicated the O'Neill rodeo is now well established in the field.

Incomplete results follow:

Cutting horse contest—Dick Thate of Denver, Colo., first; Mick Teresa Sully of Belvidere, S.D., second; Phil Groethen and Miss S. Seaman of first and fourth; Pete Replege, fifth; Pete Beckler and Don Konick, tied for sixth.
