Picnic Under Tree Relieves Monotony of Harvest Grind

ROCK FALLS — Long, hot days and hard work characterize midsummer in these parts, according to Mrs. Floyd Johnson, The Frontier's Rock Falls correspondent. Dust-filled eyes search the horizon for a rain cloud.

About all there is to break the monotony of the heat and work grind during harvest is an occasional picnic—someone celebrating the finish-up or else simply hunting for relaxation.

During these harvest days the women folk are obliged to prepare a meal and hustle it to the field where they join the men under the shade of a friendly tree to indulge in fried chicken and potato salad. Sometimes there isn't even a tree.

The harvest "spread" usually includes fresh beets, carrots and cucumbers from the garden; also pie and cake. And, of course, a whooper jug of cold drink or a thermos jug of hot drink.

Anything relieves the monotony and hard work of harvest.
