

Keep Ol' Boy Busy, Well-Fed

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE, Homemaking Editor

It hardly seems possible that August can be half gone but I guess it is. I'll be glad when all the hot weather and all the hard work of the summer are over, but in the meantime there still remains plenty to be done.

Some of you will be still wanting to make pickled beets so here is a recipe.

PICKLED BEETS
Cook small beets until tender. Cold dip and slip skins, cover with spiced vinegar made of: Two cups water, two cups vinegar, one lemon (sliced thin), one tablespoon cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon allspice.

Cover beets with mixture and simmer for 15 minutes. Pack into hot sterilized jars and seal tightly at once. You can also can wax beans (golden type), small carrots or the stems of Swiss chard this way—a pickle.

'One Who Knows'
Can Keep Hubby—
Dear Blanche:

Isn't it amusing and rather disgusting, all the articles in the magazines one sees on "How to hold your man"? Of course, they have different headings but all mean the same thing. Goodness! What one does have to go through! You must keep a figure like a model and dress like one, too (no mention of a budget or Junior's suit and baby's shoes), keep a pleasant disposition so the old boy will never be irritated and also keep up on world affairs so you can talk intelligently on any subject.

He must be fed nutritious attractive meals with all his favorite dishes and the house must be spotless. You must never bother him with your troubles. You must meet him at the door as fresh as a daisy with a kiss and his slippers. Woe is me! Have any of them ever tried to manage a home and raise a family? I rather think not.

But what gets me is that friend hubby can develop a bay window or stay skinny as a bean pole, which ever the tendency may be; can shave when he feels like it; come in with clothes only a rag man could love and bore you to tears with his difficulties; come to meals late and do anything else he pleases and you must stay sweet and loving with never raising your voice or the old boy might seek greener pastures.

Huh? What do they think we are, a bunch of morons? Maybe they've got something there—we must be rather simple at that to bother reading such nonsense.

They always amuse me no end. I just can't imagine anyone getting paid for writing such nonsense. I've often felt I could compete with another woman, maybe even come out on top. If nothing else, I could pull her hair and scratch her eyes out. But gee, being a farmer's wife is rough!

How are you gonna win over a mother pig with 10 little ones that get all the attention, or the old Jersey cow that really has what it takes? Those magazine writers just don't know the half of it.

Maybe I'm just a bit old-fashioned but I still think it takes face powder to catch him and baking powder to keep him and most of the big brutes are more interested in what's cooking than whether your dress is the latest creation.

He has to pay so he hopes it isn't the latest number. Any-wearing jeans? So hanging slips and gogging socks are just no worry at all.

If I weren't so busy using the baking powder, I believe I'd write and tell them the perfect solution. Just keep the old boy so busy and fill him so full of victuals that all he wants to do is sleep. Then your figure may spread as it may and the greener pastures will fade into the horizon.

Relish Recipe of the Week—
BEST YET RELISH

Two cups grated raw carrots, six cups finely chopped cabbage, two cups finely chopped white onion, one cup finely chopped red mangoes, one cup finely chopped green mangoes; ½ cup salt; one tablespoon finely chopped hot peppers.

Mix ingredients and hang in a cloth bag to drain overnight.

Add: One tablespoon celery seed, one tablespoon white mustard seed, six cups brown sugar, six cups cider vinegar.

Mix and cover with weighted plate. The relish will keep without being sealed.

Engler, brother of the bride, was groomsmen.

The bridegroom and his attendants wore light brown business suits and white carnation boutonnières.

Ushers were Charles Stokely, jr., of Azle, Tex., and Alan Stokely of Des Moines, Ia., brothers of the bridegroom, Leonard Engler of Lincoln, brother of the bride, and LaVern Engler of Atkinson, cousin of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue nylon sheer dress with white accessories and the bridegroom's mother a white suit with white accessories. Both wore corsages of orchid mums.

Breakfast was served to the bride party at the home of the bride's parents. A dinner was served at the Stuart auditorium at 12 o'clock for 60 relatives.

A reception was held in the afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock at the auditorium. The bride's table, covered with a lace cloth, was centered with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and flanked on either side by candles and bouquets of flowers. The wedding cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. James Batenhorst. Sisters of the bride, Mrs. Alfred Straka of Atkinson and Mrs. John Schmit of O'Neill, poured coffee and served punch. Mrs. Harold Drobvolny had charge of the guestbook and gifts.

Mrs. Clarence Johnson, Mrs. Louis Steinhauser and Mrs. John Kramer prepared the dinner. Serving at the dinner and reception were Mrs. Edwin Nachtmann of Chambers, Mrs. James Batenhorst of Stuart, Miss Delores Engler of Atkinson, Mrs. LeRoy Moore, Miss Mary Frances Vitt and Miss Loretta Cuddy, all of O'Neill.

Mr. Stokely attended high school at St. Mary's academy in O'Neill and St. Joseph's hall in Atkinson where she was graduated with the class of 1949. She has been employed in the Holt county assessor's office in O'Neill for the past three years.

Mr. Stokely was graduated from a Lincoln high school, spent one year in the navy and is a graduate of the University of Nebraska college of agriculture. The past year he has been assistant county agent in Holt county. He recently resigned his position there to take a similar post at Mullen.

After a short wedding trip, the newlyweds will be at home in Mullen.

For her going-away dress, the bride chose a charcoal and pink summer dress with white accessories and a red rose corsage.

Among relatives from a distance attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Stokely, sr., and son, Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Engler and family, all of Lincoln; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Spurlock and family of Osborne, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Alan Stokely of Des Moines, Ia.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stokely, jr., and family of Azle, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Billings and Louise of Norden.

Miss Helen Engler Becomes Bride of Harry C. Stokely

STUART—On Wednesday, August 3, Miss Helen M. Engler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Engler of Stuart, and Harry C. Stokely, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Stokely, sr., of Lincoln, were united in marriage at 9 a.m., at a nuptial mass in St. Boniface Catholic church.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Anthony J. Paschang. Thomas Brewster and Anthony Steinhauser served the mass.

The church altar was decorated with gladioli and mixed garden flowers. Music was furnished by the St. Boniface men's choir with Miss Mary Coufal at the organ.

After the mass the bride and bridegroom presented a bouquet of flowers to the Blessed Virgin Mary while the choir sang "On This Day, O Blessed Mother."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, appeared in a gown of white nylon tulle and alencon lace over satin, fashioned with a fitted bodice and portrait neckline. The long tight sleeves ended in bridal points at the wrists. The full, graceful skirt fell to floor-length and was accented with lace motifs. Miniature buttons and loops completed the trim of the gown.

She wore a double fingertip veil of imported illusion which fell from a cap of pearls. She wore lace and carried a matching necktie and carried a pearl and a gift from the bridegroom. Her cascade bouquet was of red roses and lilies of the valley with white satin streamers and a built-in corsage of red roses. She carried out the tradition of something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue and a penny in her shoe.

The maid-of-honor, Miss Mary Catherine Grof of Omaha, and bridesmaid, Miss Arlene Ruroede of O'Neill, friends of the bride, were gowned in shades of turquoise and tangerine net and lace styled identically with molded bodices and floor-length skirts. The skirts were adorned with alternate ruffles of net and lace. Bolero jackets of lace, with pebble collars completed the gowns. They wore matching head bands with rhinestone trim. Their flowers were colonial bouquets of white mums with white net and streamers. They wore rhinestone necklaces and earrings, gifts from the bride.
